Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th February 1875, and was referred to a Select Committee, who are to report thereon in one month:—

A Bill to amend Bengal Act No. VI of 1864.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to amend Bengal Act No. VI of 1864 (to provide for the periodical Inspection of Steam-boilers and Prime-movers attached thereto in the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta); It is enacted as follows:—

Section 6 of Act No. VI of 1864 repealed.

1. Section six of the said Act is hereby repealed.

Power to revoke certificate already granted.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, or any person authorized by him in that behalf, may revoke any certificate already granted, or to be granted under the provisions of the said Act, on any of the following grounds:—

(a) That such certificate has been fraudulently obtained or erroneously granted;

(b) That it has been granted without sufficient inspection;

(c) That the Boiler or Prime-mover in respect of which it has been granted has sustained injury or is not in good condition;

(d) That the Boiler or Prime-mover in respect of which it has been granted is not in charge of a person competent to have charge of the same.

On such revocation, an Inspector, not being the person who granted the revoked certificate, shall again examine the Boiler or Prime-mover in respect of which such revoked certificate was granted, in the manner prescribed in section four of the said Act; and if he is satisfied that the same is in good condition, and in charge of a competent person, shall grant another certificate:

Provided that no additional fee shall be paid unless there shall appear to have been reasonable ground for such revocation as aforesaid.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The necessity for the introduction of this Bill has arisen from the fact of unqualified persons being in many instances placed in charge of steam-boilers and steam machinery. In order therefore to necessitate the employment of competent persons to take charge of such machinery, the Bill has been framed so as to enable the Lieutenant-Governor to revoke a certificate already granted on the ground that an incompetent person is in charge of any machinery, in addition to the grounds formerly set out in the old Act.

THE following farther Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, together with the Re-amended Bill, are, by order of the President, published for general information :—

WE the Select Committee appointed to take into further consideration the Bill "to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872," have considered the Bill, and have the honor to report as follows :—

1. We have, in accordance with the directions received from the Council, provided the conditions on which a license for a jute warehouse may in future be granted, and, in so doing, have endeavoured to carry out the wishes of the mercantile community, to the effect that jute may be combed and dried in enclosures, and also, that properly protected light may be used.

2. We have, in clause three of the Re-amended Bill, directed that the Justices shall, at the option of the holder of an old license, alter the conditions of the license as regards the matters above mentioned.

3. We have made paragraphs (1) and (2) of clause 2 of the Re-amended Bill very general, so as to suit the circumstances of jute warehouses in the Suburbs and Howrah.

4. We have omitted clause thirteen of the Bill as first amended as being unnecessary.

RE-AMENDED BILL.

TO

Amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872; It is enacted as follows :—

Repeal of sections of Bengal Act II, 1872.

1. Sections nine, ten, and fourteen of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act are hereby repealed.

Amendment of section 7 of Bengal Act II of 1872.

2. For section seven of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

"7. Any person proposing to use any land for the purposes of a jute warehouse within the town of Calcutta, shall send to the Justices a plan of such land and all the buildings thereon prepared in such manner as the Justices may direct, and it shall be within the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to grant or refuse a license to establish the same.

Every license for a jute warehouse to be granted under this section shall be subject to the following conditions, namely :—

(1.) That no loose jute, jute rejections or cuttings, or cotton shall be stored, or screwed, or pressed, save within a building constructed of such materials, and on such a plan as may be approved of by the Justices.

(2.) That no loose jute, jute rejections or cuttings, or cotton shall be combed or dried except within an enclosure approved of by the Justices :

Provided that the top or roof of any building or of any hut shall not be used for such combing or drying.

(3.) That space shall be reserved on land appertaining to the jute warehouse for the loading and unloading of carts.

(4.) That no portion of the jute warehouse shall be used as a residence, and no artificial light (other than one duly and thoroughly protected), or lucifer matches shall be introduced therein, and no person shall smoke therein.

(5.) That the jute warehouse shall at all times be open to the inspection of officers duly appointed by the Justices.

(6.) That the engines and furnaces used in the jute warehouse shall be placed as may be considered necessary by the Justices.

(7.) That an annual fee, as the Justices at a special meeting may think fit, shall be imposed in respect thereof at one of the following rates (namely) :—

Rupees	...	...	1,000
"	...	...	750
"	...	...	500

and shall be paid in such instalments as the Justices may direct.

In fixing the amount of fee to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse, the Justices at such special meeting shall have regard to the annual value thereof as it is for the time assessed, to the payment of municipal taxes, to the size and position of the jute warehouse, to the number and excellence of the pressing machines erected, or proposed to be erected, in such jute warehouse, and to the probable income derived from such jute warehouse by its owner or occupier.

The Justices may from time to time, as they shall think fit, at a special meeting, alter the amount of the fee to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse."

Certain provisions of last section may be applicable to old licenses.

3. The Justices shall, at the option of the holder of any license heretofore granted for any jute warehouse, exclude from the conditions of such license so much of clause (1) of section seven of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, as relates to combing and drying, and also clause (3) of the same section, and in lieu thereof insert clauses (2) and (4) of the same section as amended by the last preceding section of this Act.

On change of occupation in warehouse, occupier to give notice.

4. On a change in the occupation of any jute warehouse, the person entering into occupation of the same shall, within two weeks of his so entering into occupation, give notice in writing to the Justices of such change of occupation, and shall thereupon pay to the Justices a fee of two rupees ; and his name shall accordingly be entered in such license as the occupier in the place of the name of the person going out of occupation.

If any jute warehouse is let out in portions, the person so letting it out and entitled to the rent shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the occupier.

Cancelment or suspension of license.

5. It shall be in the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to cancel or to suspend, for such time as they shall think fit, the license of any jute warehouse in respect of which any one or more of the conditions under which such license is held shall appear to them to have been broken, or in respect of which the provisions of the last preceding section have been broken.

Municipal Commissioners to have same power as the Justices

6. In regard to any jute warehouse situated or used, or any land proposed to be used as a jute warehouse out of the town of Calcutta and within the limits of the operation of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, and of this Act, the powers and duties conferred and imposed by Part II of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, and the powers and duties conferred by this Act on the Justices, or on the Justices at a special meeting, shall be exercised and discharged by the Municipal Commissioners, at a meeting, within whose jurisdiction such warehouse or land is situated.

The annual fee in respect of any licensegranted, by the said Municipal Commissioners for a jute warehouse may be at the rate of one hundred and fifty rupees, or at such other rates not exceeding one thousand rupees, or less than one hundred and fifty rupees, as the said Municipal Commissioners may direct Penalty on occupier in case of breach of conditions of license.

8. Whenever any of the conditions under which a license is held in respect of any jute warehouse have been broken in such jute warehouse, the person whose name appears on the license as the occupier of such jute warehouse shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees in respect of any one rule so broken.

Penalty on any person in case of breach of conditions of license.

9. Whoever breaks any of the conditions under which a license is held in respect of any jute warehouse shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees for any one such offence, and in default thereof to imprisonment not exceeding one month.

Penalty for omitting to give notice of change of occupation

10. If on a change in the occupation of any jute warehouse, the person entering into occupation shall fail to give the notice required by section four of this Act, such person shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Provisions applicable to all warehouses.

11. Sections four, five, six, eight, nine and ten of this Act shall apply to to every jute warehouse in respect of which a license has been granted under the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, or under this Act, or both of them.

Form of license.

The day of

THE HON'BLE SIR R. TEMPLE, K.C.S.I.,

Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

Dated Calcutta, the 1st December 1874.

HON'BLE SIR,

WE the undersigned beg to represent that the Act (No II of 1872) entitled the "Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act" has been found defective, being injurious and obstructive to the interests of the jute trade, and that several clauses, which were designed with the view of protecting the public from fires and nuisances caused by those carrying on the jute trade, have been worked in an oppressive manner, and may be relaxed without injury to the public at large. This is admitted by the magistrates, inspectors, and all who have been concerned in carrying out the Act.

This Act was framed with the view of lessening the chances of fires in jute godowns—fires which, from the inflammable nature of jute and the populousness of the neighbourhoods in which it was usually stored and screwed, generally spread rapidly, and might have destroyed a large area of the quarter in which they broke out; also in order to prevent the storing and carrying of so bulky an article in narrow streets, which were frequently blocked up for hours together by carts of jute.

Section 7 provides that no loose jute, &c., shall be stored or pressed or combed or dried save within a building. Jute frequently comes to market in drums or bundles saturated with water, and in the rainy season almost all jute has 5 to 10 per cent. of water in it. It the jute be baled in this state, it will in a short time become greatly heated in the interior of the bale, causing the jute to rot if there is free current of air round the bale, or resulting in spontaneous combustion if there is not, as on boardship in bad weather when the hatches cannot be removed. Attempts have been made to dry such jute by hanging it up inside a building, but they have generally resulted in its dropping off the ropes or hooks in a rotten state, and of course even the largest premises will only suffice for opening out a small quantity of jute at one time. Provided jute is not dried in the open in the proximity of dwelling-houses or places where a fire would spread, there seems to be no reason for objecting to its being so dried; and as most of the screw-houses and presses that have recently been erected are well removed from the bazars, there should be no objection to balers drying or otherwise handling the jute in the compound of any press so situated.

A native was recently fined heavily at Howrah (where the Act appears to have been carried out most stringently) for drying a cargo of jute, which had been wrecked, in an open garden belonging to an uninhabited house at Ghoosery, where, had it all gone on fire, no possible harm could have resulted to any one. In this case it was not the spirit of the law that was carried out, but the letter of it; and many other equally hard cases have occurred.

Section No. 2 also requires revision. It provides that the buildings in which jute is stored shall have "all the roof, including the beams on which such roof rests, of iron or of masonry, or of tiles." This resolves itself practically into ordering either a galvanised iron roof with iron frame, or the roof of iron and tiles or bricks. We venture to point out that both of these are infinitely more dangerous in case of fire than the old roof of teak beams with tiles and cement above. The latter was nearly indestructible, as was seen in various fires in jute warehouses before the passing of the Act, whilst those composed of wrought iron will fall in almost at once, or as soon as the tiles become red hot. The danger from this would deter the firemen from working in any building with such a roof. This Act was drawn up at the very time when so much was being written at home as to the poor resistance to fire shown by buildings with iron supports or roofs; and we cannot but regret the great expense to which the owners of new screw-houses have been put by this clause in the Act. No practical man could ever have passed such an obvious flaw in the Act, which made a safe roof illegal and a dangerous one compulsory.

The fees levied appear to be quite excessive, the competition in this industry being now very great; and we think that these rates should be materially reduced. The Howrah Municipality has accumulated a considerable amount as profits on working the Act, for which it has no legitimate use.

Section 8 also needs revisal. The inspector ought either to be in uniform or to be furnished with a certificate from the Justices showing that he is the authorised inspector. A case has happened where a native in the ordinary attire of a European attempted to force his way past the durwans into a screw-house; he was prevented entering, and referred to the manager; but in place of seeing him, he went and took out a summons against the screw proprietors for obstructing an inspector in the discharge of his duty.

Being punished for breaking a law ought to be disgrace to any one, but it is quite the opposite in this case. Had balers simply complied with the Act and screwed their jute wet, the losses of vessels by fire at sea would ere now have forced a repeal of the objectionable part of the Act. But because balers continue to act honestly and dry their jute, and submit to be fined rather than endanger life and property at sea, the Government has up till now refused in any way either to relax the objectionable clauses or even to look into them.

We take the liberty of suggesting that in amending the law the original spirit of the Act be adhered to, and that drying of jute on the tops of houses or where there is danger of fire to other property be severely punished; but on the other hand that exposing in the open air in places where there is no danger be permitted to the fullest extent, authority being given in such cases under proper restrictions.

We have, &c.,

(Signed) RALLI BROTHERS, AND SIXTY OTHERS.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., C.S., Chairman of the Municipality for the Suburbs of Calcutta, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Legislative Department,—(No. 19F.B., dated Alipore, the 12th January 1875.)

WITH reference to the Bill now in preparation, for consideration by the Council of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for making laws and regulations, to amend Act II of 1872 (B.C.) (an Act to regulate jute warehouses and provide for the maintenance of an efficient fire-brigade, I have the honor, on behalf of the Municipal Commissioners for the suburbs of Calcutta, to lay before the Council the following points with reference to the Act, and to urge the claims already put forward by the Commissioners, to be empowered to deal with funds collected by them under that Act within the suburbs and to maintain their own fire-brigade on a scale suited to their requirements. These claims the Commissioners have already urged upon the attention of Government; but, probably owing to the undesirability of constantly altering and amending recent Acts, hitherto without success. They now, however, desire to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded by the approaching revision of the Act to again bring forward the points in which, as they believe, the Act is unfair, inequitable, and inconvenient, and they trust that the Council after duly considering their representations will amend the Act as desired by them.

The Commissioners' views having been fully set forth in their letters No. 58 of August 18th 1873 to the Commissioner, Presidency Division, and No. 47, dated 3rd July 1873, to the Chairman of the Justices, Calcutta, on the subject, copies of which are appended for reference, I need only add that the experience of the past eighteen months considerably strengthens their view of the inconvenience and manifest unfairness of the present arrangement, by which the whole of their collections are made over to the Justices of Calcutta.

That the payment of such a sum annually towards the cost of fire-brigade is unnecessary is amply proved by the enormous balance now at credit of that establishment and the statement of the Hon'ble Mover of this Bill that "since the passing of this Act there had been no serious fires." That the funds are liable to be appropriated towards purposes for which they were never intended is shown by the action of the Justices in alloting money from that fund for extra police to keep the roads within the town of Calcutta clear from over-crowding; and that the suburbs do not receive anything in return commensurate with the sum paid by them is proved by the following records of fires which have occurred since the brigade was formed for the suburbs; vide Police reports:—

Ten fires have been reported in the suburbs of Calcutta, in which property of the aggregate value of Rs. 4,116 only was destroyed.

In only two cases the steam fire-engines attended and worked, having arrived "very soon, considering the distance," and "prevented the fire from spreading further." In one case the engines did not attend, as the fire was scarcely visible by the time the engine and men were ready. In three cases the steam engines did not attempt to reach the scene of the fire. In one case "it could not reach the spot, there being no road."

In one case it went, "but did not work; No. 4 hand engine working, but doing no good;" and in the remaining case no engine attended at all, "the fire not having been seen by the look-out."

For this very inefficient service the Commissioners have had to pay the very large sum of Rs. 16,333 in 1873-74 and Rs. 17,597 in the past yaar. They would point out that the sum collected by them annually from Jute Act fees and fines is much more than is necessary for the maintenance of a more efficient local fire-brigade than that now maintained by the Justices for the suburbs; while, on the other hand, the growing heavy jute traffic has increased the wear and tear of the roads so as to largely augment the expenditure on their repairs; while the surplus funds which could and should the Commissioners submit, be available for the purpose, are absorbed by the Justices, who certainly have no just right to them, and are applied to purposes from which suburban ratepayers derive no benefit. There can be no doubt as to the course that would be preferred by the jute screw and warehouse owners from whom these funds are derived, and the Commissioners feel that their case is so strong on its own merits that it requires no further argument on their part. Should, however, the Council consider it unadvisable to provide for the separation of the fire-brigades for the town and suburbs, the Commissioners would urge that the provision by which the whole of the funds realised by them are made over to the credit of the account of the fire brigade in the books of the Justices be amended, and that it be declared that the Justices and the Commissioners respectively shall pay in proportionate shares—say Calcutta 10 annas, and the suburbs 6 annas—the actual annual cost of the fire-brigade, and such contingent extra expenditure as may from time to time be necessary in the same proportion.

The Commissioners are glad to find that the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill has adopted nearly all the suggestions put forward by them in their letters to Government with respect to the prohibitory clauses of the Bill, and they would now only add their voice to those of the ... Commerce and other bodies who have petitioned Government in the matter in ...laxation of those provisions as previously suggested by them. Another sugges... to press upon the attention of the Council. It has been found that the ... Honorary Magistrates are so inadequate to the offence, especially in ..., and repeated infringements of the law, as to hold out a premium to ...le persons to continue for long periods to evade the law and set at ...hich it was framed. I would therefore suggest that the law should ... in cases of repeated conviction and continuance of use of godowns

One point only remains which the Commissioners would beg to urge on the Council, and that has reference to the scale of fees provided in section seven of the Act. They would point out that a more gradually ascending scale would be more equitable in the suburbs. As the law now stands, there is no fee between 250 and 500, 750 and 1,000; the consequence being that many buildings are underrated, the Commissioners preferring under-valuing to over-valuing as they would otherwise have to do. They would therefore recommend that the following scale of fees be adopted instead of that now in force:—

250	750
350	850

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ, C S, Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners for the Suburbs of Calcutta, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 58, dated Alipore, the 18th August 1873.)

Proceedings of Ordinary General Meeting of the Suburban Commissioners held on Friday, the 30th May.
Copy of letter to the Chairman of the Justices, dated 3rd July 1873.
Copy of letter from the Chairman of the Justices to myself in reply thereto, dated 28th July.
Extract from the Proceeding of the Justices of the Peace in Special Meeting of the 17th July Proceeding of a Meeting of the Municipal Commissioners for the Suburbs held on 18th December 1871.

I HAVE the honor to forward herewith the documents noted in the margin, and to request that you will be good enough, in compliance with the views of the Municipal Commissioners, as expressed in the proceeding of the 30th May, to move Government to amend Act II of 1872 (B C.), so as to enable the Commissioners to administer the funds raised by them from the jute screws and warehouses situated within their jurisdiction to establish and maintain their own fire-brigade, and to dispose of any balance remaining over (after payment of all such necessary charges for inspecting, licensing, and supervising jute warehouses and maintaining an efficient fire-brigade) for the general benefit of the ratepayers of the suburbs (from whom those funds are derived) for purposes of roads, conservancy, and general improvement. The views of the Commissioners, in which I thoroughly concur, are set forth in the proceedings and in my letter No. 47 to the Chairman of the Justices In his reply to that letter, Mr. Cockerell has not touched upon the main principles on which the Commissioners' objections to the present arrangement are based, nor has he apparently thought it necessary to consult the Justices for Calcutta on the subject; and though he has expressed his willingness to join in a representation to Government for such an amendment of the law as would enable each municipality to dispose of its surplus revenue from this source, yet he has considered it unnecessary to discuss the real question at issue.

In paragraph 2 of that letter the Chairman adopts the same views as those expressed by one of the Justices at the meeting held in the Town Hall on the 17th July that the fire-brigade was maintained almost entirely for the use and benefit of the suburbs, and he also observes that it has hitherto worked exceedingly well. Regarding both statements there may be, and is, considerable difference of opinion; but admitting (which I do not) that the fire-brigade is maintained almost entirely for the benefit of the suburbs, there could not be a stronger argument in favour of the view held by the Commissioners: for it is obviously anomalous that an establishment maintained for the benefit of one town, paid for by monies realized by the municipality of that town from its ratepayers on property exclusively situated therein, should be administered and controlled by a foreign corporation, while the local municipality who are immediately responsible both to the Government and the ratepayers have not the slightest voice in its management and control; they can neither object to insufficient protection from fire nor to lavish an extravagant expenditure on appliances unsuited to their requirements. Their functions are confined to making over the whole of their receipts under this Act and providing for a possible extra demand up to Rs 10,000 per annum from their ordinary income.

Such an arrangement appears unfair alike to the ratepayers, the jute proprietors of the suburbs, and to the municipality: for, under present arrangements, it is incumbent on the Commissioners to maintain the license rates for screw and warehouses and the very highest limit to secure themselves against unforeseen contingencies.

That it may not be supposed that the Commissioners accepted the Bill in its present form without remonstrance, and therefore should not now object because it does not, in practice, accord with their views, I would beg to refer to the proceedings of their meeting of 18th December 1871, attached. The views therein expressed were communicated officially to the Secretary to the Legislative Council, Bengal, while the Bill was before the Select Committee, and certain slight amendments were made; but the Commissioners were not at the time in a position to calculate the probable cost of fire-brigade, or the probable receipts under the Act, and they certainly anticipated that, for whatever sum they contributed, they would receive a full equivalent, and therefore did not, at the time, object to the amalgamated brigade. Such, however, has not been the case; and although the Justices may argue that the brigade located in Calcutta is held ready to proceed to the suburbs on intelligence of the outbreak of fire being received at Bow Bazar, and notwithstanding Mr. Cockerell's opinion as to the good working of the brigade, past experience shows that the Calcutta brigade cannot, and does not, arrive at any distant part of the suburbs without serious loss of time and consequent destruction of property. I need hardly add anything to the arguments advanced in support of the Commissioners' request; but I will proceed to point out now the Commissioners are in a position to maintain a brigade much better suited to their wants than the present one.

The receipts for the past year from license fees and fines were Rs. 20,473-2-8, and it is not anticipated that they will decrease, as the jute-pressing industry in the suburbs is decidedly on the increase.

The Commissioners' present establishment and contingencies are below Rs. 3,000, or say Rs. 3,000, thus leaving nearly Rs. 17,000 to be expended on a fire-brigade. The fire-brigade hitherto (since the passing of the Act) has consisted of three old fire engines without horses and with the following establishment only.

The following estimates will show the first cost and expense of maintenance of a much more efficient brigade, fully horsed and equipped, and the entire first cost, in addition to the annual expenses, would be recouped within the year.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners for the Suburbs of Calcutta, to the Chairman of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta,—(No 47, dated Alipore, the 3rd July 1873.)

I HAVE the honor to forward herewith copy of the proceedings of a general meeting of the Municipal Commissioners for the Suburbs of Calcutta, held at Alipore on Friday, the 30th May 1873, and to call your attention especially to the following paragraphs and to the Resolution unanimously come to by the Commissioners on the question before the meeting.

Before, however, going to Government with a representation on the subject, I have thought it only right to inform you of that resolution and of the views held by myself and the Commissioners with regard to the present existing arrangements for the disposal of the funds realized from jute screws and warehouses within the jurisdiction of the Commissioners and for the maintenance of a fire-brigade as now laid down in Act II of 1872 (B.C.), in order that you may be able to express your own opinion on, and also to ascertain (if you consider it reasonable) the views of the Justices of the Peace on, the subject. I think you will agree with me that it is an anomaly to mix up the affairs of two distinct and independent public bodies appointed for the municipal management and control of two distinct localities as under existing arrangements is now done, and that it is not right to vest the control of funds raised from the tax-payers of one municipality in the hands of any but those who are immediately responsible for their levy and for the disbursement. You will also no doubt admit that it is not right that such a large sum of money as, say, Rs. 17,500, should be appropriated to a fund to maintain a fire-brigade when the actual cost of the brigade located in the place where the money is raised has not exceeded at the outside, say, Rs. 3,000 per annum The Commissioners for the suburbs, therefore, taking all these points into consideration, have resolved to address Government on the subject, pointing out that they are in a position, with the funds derivable under the Act, to maintain an efficient fire-brigade of their own, more suited to the wants of the suburbs than that now provided by the Justices, and at a very much smaller cost; and that they consider it more in accordance with the requirements and wishes of the suburban ratepayers that they should maintain and control all necessary establishments and arrangements for the safety and preservation of property within their own jurisdiction.

As it is desirable that no delay should occur in submitting the Commissioners' views to Government, the favor of an early reply is requested.

From the HON'BLE RAJAH JOTEENDRO MOHUN TAGORE, Honorary Secretary, British Indian Association, to H. MILLETT, ESQ., Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Legislative Department,—(dated the 16th February 1875.)

THE Committee of the British Indian Association have perused the Bill entitled a Bill to amend the Jute Warehouses and Fire-brigade Act of 1872, and desire me to submit the following remarks and suggestions for the consideration of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

It is stated in the statement of objects and reasons annexed to the Bill that representations having been made that the conditions contained in Section 7 of Act II of 1872 for the grant of license for the establishment of jute warehouses, "in so far as they compelled the owners of such warehouses, wherever situated, to dry jute in covered houses enclosed by walls, it has been deemed advisable to amend the Act, and take away the restrictions mentioned in Section 7, giving the Lieutenant-Governor power to make rules as regards the conditions on which licenses for jute warehouses may be granted."

The conditions in question, the Committee submit, constitute the substantive law on the subject; and if the executive Government be invested with power to lay down the substantive law, the Council would be practically abdicating its legitimate functions, and the measure appears the more objectionable and unconstitutional as specific penalties are provided in the Bill for offences which are unknown, and which are to be hereafter defined by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. The Committee are fully satisfied that His Honor will exercise his best discretion in framing the rules, but they cannot help thinking it anomalous that punishment should be laid down by the legislature for offences unknown to them. It was urged by the hon'ble mover of the Bill that the town and the suburbs would require different rules, and that it was not convenient to embody them in one law which would apply to both. But the object of the law is manifest—it is to protect property in town and the suburbs from fires, from the storage of combustible articles; and the Committee are of opinion that it cannot be difficult for the legislature to lay down certain general rules for the accomplishment of that object. If the circumstances of the town and the suburbs require different rules for them respectively, that difficulty, if it is a difficulty might be overcome by prescribing in the law one set of rules for the town and another for the suburbs. The present law makes a distinction in the application of some of its provisions to the town and the suburbs, and in the same way a distinction may be made, if necessary, in rules for the grant of licenses within the two municipalities. As for detailed regulations, power may be given to the executive authorities to make bye-laws consistently with the substantive law, as under the existing Act. It was urged by the hon'ble mover of the Bill that it may be necessary to change the rules from time to time, and that it would therefore be convenient to give the power to make such rules on the subject to the executive Government. But the Committee submit that the general conditions should not require constant change, and it is highly undesirable that penal laws should be frequently changed. The subsidiary rules may be changed from time to time, and in that view power may be given to the executive to make bye-laws.

As for the existing rules, the experience gained during the last two years shews the necessity of their amendment or modification. The Committee are of opinion that the rule requiring burnt bricks and iron beams may fitly be done away with, as they believe it has not been enforced in all cases by the Justices of Calcutta, and that a sufficient protection would be given to the public if permission were given for the drying of jute within a high-walled enclosure.

With regard to the scale of fees, the Committee submit that the present rates are too high and press hardly upon the proprietors of small buildings. Objection was taken to the licensing of small houses on the ground that they are more liable to danger, but there is no inherent liability in small houses to take fire more readily than in big houses; and if small houses fulfil the general conditions, they see no reason why they should not be licensed. In regulating jute warehouses particular attention should be paid to the locality where they may be situate; and if it should appear that the locality is unobjectionable, there appears no valid reason that a house should not be licensed because it happens to be small. It cannot be reasonable to suppress small houses by a prohibitory fee. The present minimum fee of Rs. 250 is too high, when the small godowns do not fetch more than 30 or 40 a month, while the fee alone comes to more than Rs. 20 per month. The Committee would therefore recommend a minimum fee of Rs. 100 per annum. The intermediate grades in the existing scale also take high jumps. The Committee would not recommend the reduction of the maximum fee, but the grades ought to be so adjusted as to bear a fair relation to the rent or assessed value of the premises and the actual income of jute screws. When Act II of 1872 was passed, the income to be derived from the licenses was uncertain, but the experience of the last two years shows that the revenues have been far in excess of the expenditure, and that it would not therefore be rash to lower the minimum and intermediate fees.

The Committee are glad to notice that the responsibility of carrying out the provisions of the law is fixed by the Bill upon the occupier, and that provision has been made for the registration of the name of the occupier; but they see no necessity for imposing a high fee of Rs. 20 for such registration. The Committee are of opinion that a nominal fee should be levied for this purpose.

According to Sections 7, 8, and 9 of the Bill, as they now stand, the owner, the occupier, and the person offending against the rules hereafter to be issued by the Government of Bengal, are severally made liable to punishment for the same offence. It would be just and proper that one of them should be punished for one offence and not all the three. The offences being unknown, it is difficult to point out how the law will act harshly, but it is easy to conceive that an act of carelessness on the part of a hired laborer may involve an absentee owner in trouble, annoyance, and fine.

The Committee observe in Section 7, as amended in the Bill, that any person proposing to establish a jute warehouse within the town of Calcutta shall send to the Justices a plan of the warehouse so proposed to be established, prepared in such manner as the Justices may direct, and it shall be within the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to grant or refuse a license to establish the same. If the plan is prepared in accordance with the directions of the Justices, it is anomalous that a discretion should still be vested in the Justices in meeting to grant or refuse the license.

The Committee are furthermore of opinion that some provisions should be made authorizing the retail sale of jute for the manufacture of rope up to a certain quantity, in regard to which the present law is silent. Practical inconvenience has arisen in consequence of this omission. Although a ropery does not come under the law, still the Committee believe the proprietor of a manufactory of this description was required to take out a license, because he was under the necessity of keeping a small quantity of jute in his godown for the manufacture of rope. In this case the manufacturer obtained daily supplies of about 4 maunds, which were consumed during the day; but as the law did not exempt such small storage, the Justices felt bound to require him to take out a license. Similar cases, the Committee understand, have occurred in the suburbs, entailing hardship on people engaged in useful, but not very lucrative, occupations. The present opportunity should therefore be taken to exempt such daily consumption of loose jute up to a certain quantity, and also similar small quantities for retail sale.

Lastly, the Committee notice that considerable irritation exists between the town and suburban municipalities with regard to the proposed application of the surplus. They are of opinion that power should be given to the two municipalities to maintain their own fire-brigades, and to apply the surplus revenue, if it should accrue, to their respective municipal funds. The existing central fire-brigade is a source of injustice to both the town and the suburbs. In the first place the number of fires has always been so small in the town, particularly since the Jute Act has come into operation, that an expensive agency for the suppression of fires is not needed, while the fire-brigade being located in the town much valuable time is lost in equipping it and carrying it to the scene of operations in the suburbs whenever a fire breaks out. It is also observable that the contributions levied for the purpose from the town and the suburbs for the maintenance of the fire-brigade under the existing law are not based on a sound and equitable principle. Although the necessity for a large and expensive fire-brigade in the town is so small, it is required to contribute to the expenses in the proportions of seven-tenths, while the suburbs, where fires are more numerous and where the fire-brigade finds the greatest work, are made to contribute in the proportion of three-tenths. This inequality would be remedied, and no room for dispute or complaint would be left, if the town and suburban municipalities were allowed to maintain their respective agency and to administer their respective funds in the best way they might think proper.

EDUCATION OF THE POORER CLASSES OF EUROPEANS AND EAST INDIANS IN CALCUTTA.

Minute by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, dated the 25th February 1875.

THE educational means available for the poorest classes of Europeans and East Indians in the provinces under the Government of Bengal generally, and the Presidency Town of Calcutta particularly, has for some time past been under the consideration of the Government of Bengal.

The subject was prominently brought to the notice of the local Government by a despatch from the Government of India dated 9th March 1874. It has subsequently undergone much public discussion. After consulting the authorities most conversant with the matter, I desire, first, to state my opinion in respect to the Presidency Town of Calcutta, which, in many respects, differs from all other places in these provinces, leaving the questions relating to the provinces for subsequent consideration. With this view I have obtained from the Commissioner of Police in Calcutta (the Hon'ble Stuart Hogg), a complete statement of existing institutions in Calcutta, which statement affords a statistical basis for my proposals. The return is appended to this minute, together with other papers marginally noted.

Notes of a conference held by the Lieutenant-Governor with Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Woodrow, and Mr. Clarke.

Letter from Revd. P. J. Jarbo, dated the 27th February 1875.

There seems to be an opinion entertained in many quarters that in some classes of poor Europeans and East Indians the children are growing up in ignorance; that this state of things is calculated to be detrimental to the public interest, and to bring discredit upon the Government in this country. How far this opinion is founded on fact may be seen from the return appended. Among other classes of Europeans and East Indians concerned, that is, classes receiving less than Rs. 300 per mensem, or £360 per annum, there are now 2,549 children at school or under tuition, 1,503 too young for school, and 1,275 not at school, but who might and ought to be there. Here, then, we see the precise extent of the evil in Calcutta. There are 1,275 children of a school-going age who are not at school. This number is made up of the following proportions:—

EUROPEANS—
Boys	... ...	122
Girls	... ...	132
	Total ...	254
EAST INDIANS—
Boys	... ...	422
Girls	... ...	599
	Total ...	1,021
	Grand total ...	1,275

If a numerical comparison be made between those who are and those who are not at school, it will have been seen above that out of 3,824 children of a school-going age (i.e., 2,549+1,275) about two-thirds are at school and one-third not at school. In other words, one child out of every three children may be said to be growing up in ignorance. Whether this fact, as regards Calcutta, entirely bears out the strong views which (if I understand aright) are sometimes entertained, may be a matter of opinion. At all events, the fact is sufficiently serious to attract the immediate attention of the Government of Bengal.

The first point which demands my consideration is the question as to what may be the cause or causes of the fact that among these children one out of every three fail to go to school. There are (as will be seen from the return) no less than forty-three institutions in this capital City specially for the education of European and East Indian children—a considerable number as compared with the European and East Indian population. These are all belonging to various religious bodies, and various denominations of Christians, supported wholly or chiefly from private resources, receiving, in most though not in all cases, assistance from Government in the shape of grants-in-aid. It would certainly appear prima facie that these comparatively numerous institutions are, or ought to be, sufficient to supply the educational needs represented and measured by the fact that out of about 3,000 children of school-going age, 2,000 do go to school and 1,000 do not.

How comes it, then, that about one thousand children of poor Europeans and East Indians in Calcutta fail to go to school?

They do not go, as I believe, because, in many instances, the schools or branch schools are too far off from their homes, they being unable to walk any distance in the hot weather or to afford any sort of conveyance, the parents, too, being unwilling to trust them too far away from home by themselves; because the fees and schooling charges though very moderate or even low, are still more than the parents can afford to pay; because the existing institutions, though for the most part assisted in some degree by Government, are seldom receiving the full amount of grant-in-aid to which they might be entitled under the existing rules, and are therefore unable to establish as many branch schools as they might otherwise have established; because, in some of the very poorest of the classes concerned, the parents do not see fit or do not care, for various reasons, to send their children to school.

I state the last cause with some sorrow; but its existence is believed in by many well-informed authorities; and it should be stated frankly now, inasmuch as we may find, after having done everything that is needful, and having offered every reasonable facility, that some children of a school-going age still remain out of school. The unwillingness of some parents to educate their children is a circumstance which appears in some sections of all nations and of nearly all societies; and its appearance among some of the classes now under consideration need not excite surprise.

Under the above view of the case, and after consulting Mr. Atkinson, the Director of Public Instruction, Mr. Woodrow and Mr. Clarke, inspectors of schools, three gentlemen who combine the largest and best experience available on the subject, I propose first to invite the co-operation of the existing bodies and private societies interested in education, and to allow them grants-in-aid, on application being made by them, within the limits, and under the conditions of the existing rules. These additional grants-in-aid would be given for the express purpose of affording education to the children of Europeans and East Indians with incomes below Rs 300 per mensem, and on the express condition of this object being attained to the satisfaction of the Government Inspectors. We believe that this will be found nearly, perhaps quite, sufficient for the object in view. The private societies whom I have consulted believe themselves able to extend their operations if they receive full grants-in-aid under the rules. If some such extension be undertaken by so many societies, it seems to me almost incredible that, with their combined efforts and with all their zeal and benevolence, they would fail to gather in all or nearly all of the one thousand poor children who remain to be brought under education Be this as it may, I am clear and decided that the old established and normal plan ought to be worked to its full power first, before any new, perhaps abnormal, plan be attempted. If, when thus fully worked, the old plan should prove insufficient, it will then be time enough to try some other plan; but I trust that such will not practically be the case.

Further, if, despite our efforts, some children, through default of their parents, shall still remain absent from school, we can reckon that the pastors of the religious community to which the children belong will feel additional responsibility for such absence. By giving grants-in-aid upon their application, Government signifies its reliance upon the pastors to do all that is possible to ensure attendance; and they probably will be willing to accept the responsibility.

The adherence to the old plan, if it can be made to suffice, will per se afford many advantages. There will be no question of setting up Government schools for Europeans and East Indians, either with or without religious instruction; there will be no question of affording gratuitous education by the State to these classes, or education to them by the State separate from that of other classes; there will be no relaxation for them of grant-in-aid rules, already liberal; there will be no undertaking by the State of duties which ordinarily pertain to private benevolence and to religious bodies. All the above difficulties which will in this case be avoided, might indeed have to be encountered and overcome in other places beyond Calcutta; but if we can avoid them in Calcutta, it is very desirable to do so.

The grant-in-aid rules, to which I would now appeal to, are those which are common to all individuals, all corporations, and all classes, both European and Native.

I cannot state precisely the additional sum which will be needed in the shape of grants-in-aid under the above ruling; but I estimate that it will not be large, not larger than our provincial finance can afford. After consulting the Director of Public Instruction, I anticipate that the extra allowance can be provided within the aggregate amount of the existing educational budget.

I have duly attended to what has been urged regarding the grants-in-aid being regulated by the plan known as "payment by results." On consideration, I would prefer not to clog the concession above proposed by a condition relating to the introduction of this plan, which is for the most part new to Calcutta. But I should be glad if the Director of Public Instruction would endeavour to introduce it for the particular purpose now in view, so far as the circumstances of the several institutions may admit of it.

It may be that some of these private institutions may desire to train schoolmasters and mistresses to afford instruction to the children of poor Europeans and East Indians. This sort of training does indeed constitute a most desirable object. If it be desired to apply a portion of the grants-in-aid to this object, I should willingly accede.

Also, I would afford the ordinary assistance for the construction of school-houses or branch schoolhouses.

There then arises the question, whether, while we are about to do more than heretofore for the poorer classes of Europeans and East Indians in Calcutta, we ought not, by parity of reasoning, to do something of a corresponding nature for the poorer classes of Natives in the same city. At present no assistance is given by Government to primary education among the Natives within the limits of Calcutta. Yet there are within the city numerous little schools, like, in their way, to the pathsalas and village schools in the surrounding districts. There is no reason why they should be excluded from the benefit which is extended to all other village schools in Bengal. To these, then, I would afford Government aid under the same rules and conditions as those which relate to the provinces.

A copy of this minute, with a transmitting letter, should be sent to the Director of Public Instruction, with a request that he will endeavour to give immediate effect to these instructions and report the result to Government by an early date.

RICHARD TEMPLE.

RESOLUTION ON THE BENGAL POLICE REPORT FOR 1873.

RESOLUTION.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 2ND MARCH 1875.

READ—

The Report on the Police of the Lower Provinces of Bengal for the year 1873, by Colonel J. R Pughe, Inspector-General of Police.

Read again—

The Report for 1872.

THE value of the voluminous report on the working of the police in the Lower Provinces of Bengal during the year 1873 is, the Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe, very much impaired by the extreme delay which has attended its preparation. The main cause of this delay is no doubt the pressing avocations which affected, during 1874, the district officers in so many parts of Bengal. But the Lieutenant-Governor must impress upon all officers concerned that no such delay can be permitted to recur in ordinary times; and he will expect the next report to be submitted with punctuality.

The system introduced by Sir George Campbell, by which the collection of information regarding crime and police administration, the collation and comparison of returns, and reporting on the subject to Government were specially entrusted to the Inspector-General of Police, was adhered to during the year under review. The Lieutenant-Governor has to thank Colonel Pughe for the regular submission of quarterly reviews of the state of crime in these provinces (except Calcutta), which have kept Government informed, at an early date, of all occurrences deserving attention in the various districts, and have shewn clearly the fluctuations, according to season, of the chief classes of heinous offences. Colonel Pughe now has, with considerable care and skill, summarised the various divisional reports, presenting the results of the year as a whole, and in a series of very careful analytical tables brought out clearly the more important features in connection with the administration of his department. The Lieutenant-Governor has particular satisfaction in acknowledging the assiduity with which the Inspector-General has laboured in behalf of his department in these important respects.

At one time the police department was believed to be often and unnecessarily at variance with the local magistracy. The Government then adopted measures to secure to the magistrate of the district the position which it was always intended that he should hold in relation to the police, and to ensure that, whatever might be the success or the failure attending the police work of his district, he should in no way be permitted to hold himself aloof from it, or to avoid the responsibilities justly attaching to his position as chief of the administration in his district. All the reports which have been before Government, both regarding the general administration of the various districts, and in regard to special crime which may have been reported, there is not a single instance of complaint either on the part of the magistrate that there was no assistance to be had from the police, or on the part of the police that in the discharge of their arduous duties there was no support to be had from the magistrate. The Lieutenant-Governor believes that the magistrates and the police officers heartily unite their energies to secure the efficient administration of their districts, which desirable result is due to the tact and moderation with which district officers have exercised the powers pertaining to them, and to the loyalty with which the officers of the police have accepted the position which is allotted to them.

The Lieutenant-Governor observes that many authorities seem to consider that for the police work more use than heretofore might be made of the services of the sub-divisional officers. Instructions have already been given to them to deal promptly on the spot with serious cases which may be reported to them, and to take into their own hands the conduct of the police enquiries. Though instances are not wanting, even in the present report, where these officers are said to have been of assistance in the administration of the department, their services are not utilized to the full extent possible. Constant inspection is an essential to success in police administration. It has been found necessary, with a view to meet expenditure in other directions, to curtail the number of Assistant District Superintendents allowed in these provinces, and it may happen that an assistant may not be available for a sub-division which can ill do without one. The Lieutenant-Governor would wish, therefore, to try, in some of the larger districts, if the Commissioner and district officers concur in thinking it advisable, the plan which has before been suggested of investing the officers in charge of a few of the more important sub-divisions with the power of an Assistant District Superintendent.

Similarly, the Lieutenant-Governor considers it a matter well worthy the consideration of the heads of the Police and of the Jail Departments, whether a like change could not with advantage be introduced with respect to jail guards. His Honor observes that Colonel Pughe perseveres in his opinion that the reduction of these guards, with a view to the substitution of warders, is a mistake. The measure has never been regarded by Government as more than a make-shift. Warders are undoubtedly required for the internal management of the prisons—a matter in which police interference is inadmissible. Financial reasons only have hitherto stood in the way of a larger staff of men being allowed, and it was as a compromise only that finally this was granted on the understanding that there would be a corresponding reduction in the police. At the same time there has hitherto been a want of co-ordination between the powers without the jail and those within the jail. Escapes have been frequent, and charges and counter-charges of inefficiency and neglect result. A measure, then, which was calculated to place more and more of the responsibility on the department whose interests were chiefly at stake seems not inadvisable, especially when carried out, as directed, with the concurrence of the local authorities. It has occurred to the Lieutenant-Governor, therefore, that were Superintendents of Jails vested with the powers of an Assistant Superintendent of Police, and put in charge of the police guards attached to these several jails, it might be unnecessary to push the reductions in these guards quite so far as has hitherto been done. The responsibility of maintaining discipline and securing watchfulness on the part of the guard would then fall greatly to the share of the jail officer, but would not be greater than what he now incurs when entertaining separate guards of his own under the name of warders; a diminished number of whom would then be sufficient, owing to the increased efficiency he would be able to secure on the part of the police on duty at the jail.

There has been little change in the strength of the regular police force entertained in these provinces during the year under report. On the 31st December 1873 it included 95 superior officers and 22,449 inferior officers and men. Of the latter, 1,617 were employed in Assam and 621 on the Chittagong frontier. The number of men serving in the Garo Hills was slightly increased, and the reserve in the 24-Pergunnahs was strengthened with a view to meet the heavy demands for escorts. Some slight reductions made were due to the warder system having been introduced at several lock-ups. The distribution of the rank and file of the force as regards the nature of its employment was as follows:—

Jail guards	2,133
Magazine guards	255
Treasury, salt, and opium guards	1,623
Frontier guard	1,444

The total expenditure on police during the year was Rs. 43,69,296, representing a net saving on the estimates of Rs. 1,25,312. The cost of the force employed on purely police duties Rs. 37,43,819, or 11-2 pie per head of population. The proportion of police to area was one man to 11·6 square miles, containing, on an average, a population of 3,694.

The strength of the municipal police, excluding Calcutta and its suburbs, was 6,497 officers and men, who were entertained at a cost of Rs. 5,35,690, or slightly more than in the previous year. From one cause or another 24 per cent. left the force, against nearly 25 per cent. in 1872; many cases were doubtless due to transfers to the district police force. The Lieutenant-Governor is not desirous that men should be tempted to leave the service of municipalities without the consent of the municipal commissioners. While he is aware that it may in certain cases be an advantage to a municipality to have recruits taken from among its police to fill the ranks of the district police, a better class of men being thereby induced to accept service, still there are countervailing disadvantages which may render the practice inexpedient, and he trusts that every care will be taken to see that it is not adopted in any town without the consent of the municipal commissioners.

The enquiries recently made whether, with a view to lighten the burden of police expenditure on the inhabitants of municipalities, it might not be advisable to reduce the status of the police employed to that of village chowkeedars, has elicited a considerable variety of opinion from different local officers. Sir Richard Temple entirely accepts the view that in a metropolitan city like Howrah, or among a large and excitable population such as that at Patna, such a step would be a great mistake, nor does he think that it was ever intended. In other important towns, where section-houses have been built, the cost of maintaining them is but small, and the Lieutenant-Governor would not insist on their abandonment. Still the returns received continue to show considerable inequality in the strength and cost of the police employed in the several larger municipalities, and the Lieutenant-Governor will be prepared to entertain favorably any proposals which may be made with the concurrence of the municipal commissioners for the purpose of introducing economy where the charges may appear to be excessive. In several instances lately he has sanctioned, in the case of rural towns, a scale of charge sufficient only for the maintenance of chowkeedars whom it was proposed to employ, and he will consider the cases of other similar towns individually as definite proposals regarding them are submitted. He begs the local authorities to remember that whatever monies can be saved (consistently with efficiency being maintained) from the police service in towns can be devoted to sanitation and other improvements.

Throughout the country the rural police has continued in the same state as heretofore—a state which all local authorities seem to regard as incomplete. Act VI (B.C.) of 1870, though passed after much consideration, has been little used, and the suggestions of various Commissioners for the introduction of some alternative method of realizing the chowkeydaree dues, without any violent change in their present status, are not so easy of attainment as they appear on paper. The subject is under the Lieutenant-Governor's immediate consideration.

The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to find that although the landholding classes are gradually doing more and more to assist the police in detection of crime, yet in some places complaints are still made of shortcomings on their part in this respect. Whenever such shortcoming is apparent, the magistrate should earnestly address the landholder concerned. It is to be hoped that on receiving such remonstrance the landholder will perceive the strength of the obligation for the due discharge of which he is by law liable.

The result of the steps which were taken to remodel the railway police have hitherto been satisfactory; there was no change made in their strength during the year. The total monthly cost of the force employed was Rs. 8,683, of which Government paid Rs. 2,552 only.

The question of constituting a body of police separate from the ordinary civil police, for the protection of the Eastern frontier of Bengal has been considerably advanced by the experience of the year. Colonel Baker has, however, been recently employed in arranging details so far as regards the remaining districts, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the questions involved will be submitted at an early date for his final decision. A considerable amount of attention was during the year bestowed on the Chittagong frontier police; enquiry being particularly directed to the question of its cost, present and prospective. Colonel Raban, who inspected the force, was generally satisfied with its condition, but made some recommendations with regard to commissariat arrangements which have been accepted. The Lieutenant-Governor has for the present been compelled to withhold his consent from any large expenditure on buildings, but has sanctioned a moderate provision for what appears to be absolutely necessary. He was well satisfied with the appearance of the portion of this force which came under inspection during his recent visit to Chittagong.

The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find that the practice of quartering police upon villages as a punitive measure has been but little resorted to. He hopes that in every instance great carefulness and consideration may be shewn before this extreme remedy is adopted. If indeed the measure were to be inconsiderately adopted, much hardship to the people would result. The amendment of Act V of 1861, which was pressed for with a view to a more equitable adjustment of charges incurred on such occasions, has been deferred with a view to the consideration of other points in the law which experience in other places may show to require correction. Meanwhile the Lieutenant-Governor is ready to consider proposals for the enforcement of the law as it stands in cases where real necessity may exist. The question deserves the particular attention of the Commissioners of Chota Nagpore and Patna in connection with the mail robberies which have been so frequent there of late, and of the Commissioner of Chittagong in connection with the epidemic of incendiarism in that district which has recently attracted attention.

The number of officers and men of the regular police dismissed during the year was 916, against 873 in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that in most cases misconduct was judicially established before the extreme step of removal from the force was adopted, so that there can be little room for any charge of harshness against the department. The number of departmental punishments otherwise inflicted shew little diminution, the number of men suspended, fined, and degraded in 1873 having been 4,542, against 4,596 in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor must insist upon the exercise of more moderation in regard to the practice of fining, and hopes that the matter will continue to have the attention of the Inspector-General. How little advantage is gained by punishments which merely worry the men and indirectly foster currupt practices is shewn by the fact that in consecutive years the same districts head the list where recourse is had to such a system of punishment.

The comparative infrequency with which cases of torture or extortion on the part of the police now occur is so far matter for satisfaction In 1873 but three cases of the former class and eight of the latter were established, and in none were the circumstances very aggravated. But the Lieutenant-Governor must remind all persons concerned that the occurrence even of a single case of this grievous and shocking nature causes concern and regret to the Government, and he must insist on efforts being persevered in unremittingly until this dreadful practice shall be finally rooted out.

At the same time, the frequency with which false complaints continue to be brought against officers engaged in the conscientious discharge of their duties is a serious evil, and one which deserves the careful attention of district officers. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that, while those officials who are disposed to do ill may be deterred by the fear of just complaints being promptly listened to, those who do well may not be deterred by fear of false complaints, and may place reliance on the discrimination of superior authority.

The number of men whose conduct was found to justify their advancement, or the grant of pecuniary rewards or honorary distinctions, was considerably greater than in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor thinks that a greater amount of discretion might well be observed as regards the distribution of good conduct stripes. Cases have come under his notice of very indiscriminate action in this respect. He would be glad to have in future reports some information as regards the extent to which occasion has arisen for rewarding village chowkeedars, to whose aid, as a rule, the police in their investigations owe so much.

The decrease in the mortality in both the regular and the municipal police during the year amounted to 2 per thousand of the total strength. The varying rates at which the deaths take place in the different districts is very remarkable. It amounted to 53 per thousand in the past year in Hooghly, while in the contiguous district of Howrah, which is similar in climate and in almost every other respect, it was only 7 per thousand. Dinagepore and Rungpore, both notoriously unhealthy in the case of foreigners, come out, as was to be expected, very badly. On the other hand, Dacca, which has never been a choice district, appears as one of the healthiest of all.

From the decrease in the number of resignations and the increase in the number of educated men who come forward as recruits, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to infer that service in the force is becoming more popular and attractive. He trusts that the efforts of District Superintendents to raise the standard of intelligence of men in the force, by encouraging them to attend school, will not be relaxed owing to any temporary discouragement connected with the falling off in the strength of the reserves.

The total number of summonses and warrants served by the police during 1873 was 4,29,651. The effect of the rules which have recently been sanctioned under the Court Fees Act, for the entertainment of special establishments of peons for the service of process in non-cognizable cases, should greatly reduce the excessive burthen which has hitherto been imposed on the police unaided. Magistrates are no doubt alive to the undesirability of entertaining, as cases of hurt, petty assaults, and the like, and should insist on the exercise of a like discretion on the part of the police, who should not as a rule interfere at all in cases of hurt, unless serious, but should merely report the matter for orders. If it be thought desirable, a circular to this effect may be prepared by the Inspector-General and submitted for the approval of Government.

In 1871 and 1872 the operations in connection with the census threw on the police a vast amount of extra labour. The extent to which their services were utilized was nowhere more apparent than in the return of the number of "other orders" served by them. In 1873 there was little decline in the enormous number of these, which amounted to 2,32,588. In the case of some districts, as Tirhoot and Sarun, this is probably due to the famine, then impending; and in these cases the returns may be accepted as a proof of the assistance which has been afforded by the police in the carrying out of measures for the alleviation of distress. In other districts, however, such as Backergunge and Noakholly, it is not apparent what the occasion has been for throwing on the police, who are already overworked, so much extra labour, and the Lieutenant-Governor requests that the Inspector-General will look into the matter and submit, for the orders of Government, any question which his enquiry may show to require its decision.

The Inspector-General and his deputies have shown much industry in the inspection of the various stations in these provinces during the year. Of Bengal Proper, Tipperah is the only district of importance left unvisited; an early opportunity should be taken of inspecting the police there and also in Noakholly. It is satisfactory to find that in most of the more important districts the inspection of police stations by local officers has been constant. Failure in this important duty is most prominent in light districts like Pooree and Balasore. It is observable that in Moorshedabad, Purneah, and Shahabad, where there has also been neglect in this respect, there is much reason to fear that the police are inefficient, crime being frequent and unsuccessfully dealt with. The Inspector-General must insist on the Superintendents moving freely about their districts..

Crime.—In the closing months of 1873, when the general failure of the crops in many districts gave too much reason to expect that distress would be widely prevalent, and that the poor would be driven by distress to evil courses, the local officers were naturally apprehensive that there would be a large increase of crime. Arrangements were made for the temporary increase of jail accommodation, and grain was stored in anticipation of the wants of a large prospective increase in the number of inmates of various prisons. Happily these fears were not realized. As the Lieutenant-Governor has already said in reviewing the Jail Report, there was no epidemic of crime in 1873, when the effects of the famine had not yet been fully felt; nor does he believe that there was any epidemic in 1874. These inferences are fully borne out by the present report. On a comparison of the results of the past with those of the previous year, the number of cognizable offences reported, together with the results of arrests made, were as follows:—

Cases reported	112,883	119,046
Number of persons arrested	88,821	87,478
Finally convicted	48,139	50,540
Acquitted	32,563	32,493

Deducting cases expunged as false, the whole number of true cases cognizable by the police in 1873 was 90,886, against 85,645 in 1872. The net increase of 5,241 cases, small as it is, is not entirely the direct result of the scarcity. Colonel Pughe has presented a careful analysis of the figures, and shows that there was a satisfactory decrease of crime apparent in Bankoora, Dinagepore, Rajshahye, Monghyr, and Bhagulpore, all districts where scarcity prevailed to a greater or less extent; while, on the other hand, Backergunge, Mymensingh, Tipperah, Balasore, Dacca, and Fureedpore, which were not within the famine tracts, show a large increase.

An increase in the crime returns of a district may indicate either greater efficiency of administration by which offences, which otherwise would have been undetected, have been brought to light; by which the landholders and chowkeydars have acted up to their duty of reporting crime; or by which people are encouraged to come forward with complaints who otherwise would have failed to seek redress. To all these causes may be attributed in some measure the results noticed in the returns of 1873. The duties of landholders and of the rural police have been more clearly defined and explained to them; more free use has been made of the sub-divisional system; a large addition has been made to the staff of judicial officers by the investment of selected sub-deputies with magisterial powers; honorary magistrates have been appointed, and benches have been constituted for the speedy disposal of complaints. Still in some districts there has been a real increase of crime, which has not in all cases been successfully dealt with. In all the districts of the Patna division, except Sarun, Chumparun, and Patna, there has been, the Commissioner points out, a real increase in offences against property. In Rungpore there was a marked increase, especially in the more serious offences against property. In Bogra, crime in 1873 was nearly double that in 1872. In Moorshedabad the police are deteriorating, and the effect is visible in the crime returns. In the Dacca division there has been a large increase, chiefly in minor offences against person and property.

Comparing true cases to area, the results observable are very much the same as those remarked in 1872. In Assam the proportion is much increased owing to the large proportion of the population who live subject to special penal laws. Burdwan now comes before the Presidency division, where, in 1873, crime considerably decreased.

The number of cases struck off as false were, His Honor observes, slightly more in 1873 than in the previous year. Compared with 1871, a much greater increase is observable, amounting to 8,384 cases in all. Of a total of 119,046 cases reported in 1873, 28,160 were expunged, or 23·7 per cent. In 1872 the percentage was 24·1, 27,238 cases having been declared false out of 112,883 reported. The ratios differ so widely even in adjoining districts, that it is not possible to avoid attributing the results in some measure to peculiarities in the procedure of various officers. Making every allowance for this however, it is abundantly clear that in every district in Bengal we have still to contend with the evil of persistent and malicious attempts made to pervert the machinery of justice, and to involve innocent persons in ruin. In the quarterly reports on crime and otherwise, the Lieutenant-Governor has had frequent occasion to notice the bad faith with which charges of the most serious character were instituted; and he apprehends that the extent to which the courts of justice allow such cases to pass unchecked tends in no small measure to encourage the practice. Magistrates have already more than once had impressed upon them the necessity of adequately dealing with offences of the kind, and the Lieutenant-Governor must insist upon active steps being taken to bring to justice those who groundlessly and maliciously imperil their neighbours' liberty, or even their lives, by the fabrication of false cases. On the other hand, the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that every care will be taken to avoid anything like wholesale imputation of perjury. He is not without apprehension that the enormous percentages of cases annually declared to be false in the districts of the Chittagong, Dacca, and Assam divisions are indicative of haste on the part of the magistrate, and of some inattention to the directions issued by Sir George Campbell, insisting on the exercise by them of an independent judgment in the matter. On any other supposition it is incredible that one-half and more of the cases reported in Chittagong, Backergunge, and Mymensingh should be returned as false. The miserable failure which has attended the prosecution of persons for giving false evidence and making false complaints supports this view. Nothing can be further from the Lieutenant-Governor's wish than that indiscriminate prosecutions on such charges should be instituted, one failure undoing the benefit to be anticipated from many convictions; but he would wish to see cases for prosecution selected with judgment, and then prosecuted effectively. Touching the general question which has been raised regarding the expunging of cases as false, he would wish it to be understood that no case must be expunged unless, after sufficient enquiry to ascertain the fact, there are, in the magistrate's opinion, good grounds for considering it false. These, if called upon, he should be able to assign with sufficient distinctness. With reference to the remarks of the Commissioner of Cooch Behar, quoted in paragraph 117, the Lieutenant-Governor regrets that he should have distinctly to repeat, what is already a standing rule, that no police officer is on any account to be permitted to take the initiative in declaring a case to be false. It is the simple duty of the police, when on enquiry they find no sufficient evidence to substantiate a charge, to state, for the information of the magistrate, the nature of the enquiry they have made, the nature of the evidence forthcoming, and any facts discovered which may be material to form a judgment on it. It is for the magistrate then to come to a conclusion, which must be final, for the purposes of the returns, as to its truth or falsity

Of the 119,046 cases reported, 13,417, or 11·2 per cent. were not enquired into by the police. The percentage in the previous year was somewhat less. The inconsistencies observable between the procedure of various districts, to which prominent attention is invited by the Inspector-General, are certainly very noteworthy. The question how far a police enquiry should be pressed in every case reported, still seems to the Lieutenant-Governor to be one which should be determined very much according to local circumstances, and with regard to which much discretion should be left to district officers. Where the amount of work to be got through, compared to the staff of officers available, is very great, or when many important cases are pending, it may be inadvisable to divert the energies of the police in directions where little success is to be anticipated. On the other hand, while it is futile to pursue cases where little harm has been done, and the injured party does not wish an enquiry, there is always the danger of such a rule, if adhered to, being abused by complainants concealing the true nature of their losses. An enquiry then, even though made at an interval of some months and unexpectedly, would have its advantages, and should be made whenever an opportunity offers. An opposite course, if persevered in, may end in failure of justice. In Sarun only 38·9 per cent. of cases reported were enquired into. Some reform is necessary here, and the Lieutenant-Governor must direct the personal attention of the Commissioner to the circumstances of a district the police of which are characterized as being below the general average of efficiency.

Excluding cases not enquired into, and cases declared by the judicial authorities to be false, and including 1,754 cases which occurred in previous years, the total number of cases brought before the courts was 79,223, against 74,954 of the previous year. In 30,018, or 38 per cent. of these, convictions were obtained. This is slightly inferior to the result obtained in the previous year. The percentage of persons convicted to persons arrested was, on the contrary, slightly better than in 1872, the figures being 57·8 per cent. against 54·2 per cent. The number of persons actually put on trial during the year amounted to 83,538, of whom 50,045, or 59·9 per cent., were convicted, and 32,493, or 41·1 per cent., were acquitted. These ratios, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, are very similar to those of the previous year. There has been a considerable improvement in the percentage of acquittals to men brought to trial, which were mentioned by the Lieutenant-Governor last year as showing very badly. The results are still far from satisfactory in Purneah; and they are quite as bad in Bogra, Noakholly, Goalpara, and Sylhet.

There has again been, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find, an improvement in the percentage of acquittals to persons tried at the sessions. In 1872 this amounted to 49·4 per cent., and in 1873 to 43·6 per cent. The results, however, continue to be very bad in certain districts, as Maldah, Dinagepore, and Chittagong.

The value of the property stolen during the year was Rs. 11,09,028, of which Rs. 2,78,904 were recovered. The percentage of recovery was 25·1 per cent, against 28 4 in 1872 and 38·8 in 1871. The Lieutenant-Governor does not attach much importance to any inferences which can be drawn from this with regard to the working of the police. In the district of Gya, property of the value of Rs. 1,04,197 was stolen, to which no clue was obtained, and this alone disturbs the ratio of recoveries for the whole province.

Turning now to the various classes of crime under which offences are arranged in the returns, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that while there has been a diminution in offences against the State, and in miscellaneous offences (Classes I and VI), there has been an increase in the other classes, and especially in Class III, offences against the person and property, and Class V, minor offences against property. As regards Class I, the only offence calling for special notice is that of rioting. This, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find, has decreased, while there is considerable improvement observable in the percentage of cases detected, 6,186 persons having been convicted against 5,957 in the previous year. The crime is of the most frequent occurrence in the districts of the Dacca division, in Pubna, Jessore, and Tipperah. It is, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks, a matter of just congratulation to the authorities of the Presidency Division, where the crime was once so rife, that it is now unfrequent, except in Jessore, where cases, though numerous, are now of a comparatively mild character. The agrarian disputes which had for some time existed in Pubna culminated in the month of June in a series of outrages in which the ryots chiefly took an aggressive part. A large number of rioters were arrested. Of 422 persons brought to trial, 266 were convicted and 156 acquitted. All the investigations were concluded in the month of July. The excitement spread to parts of Bogra and Rajshahye, but did not result in acts of open violence there, the prompt measure taken in Pubna having had the desired effect. In Midnapore one serious case of riot, attended with murder, occurred owing to a collision between rival processions during the Churruck poojah. A still more unfortunate case occurred in Tirhoot during the Mohurrum, in which 16 lives were lost. On such occasions, where there is risk of a disturbance, the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to see the power given by law to magistrates of appointing special constables freely made use of, in case the district police is found to be insufficiently strong for the purpose of maintaining order.

The number of murders of all kinds shown by the quarterly returns to have been committed during the year was 484. The returns appended to the present report show an excess of three cases, which is not explained. Adding 19 cases shown to have been committed in previous years, but brought under enquiry in 1873, the total number to be dealt with was 506. Of these, 105 are now shown to have been declared to be false, against 98 such entered in the quarterly returns. Accepting this figure, the number of true cases to be accounted for was 401, or 7 more than in the previous year. Convictions were obtained in 145 cases, or 30·6 per cent. of the whole. This is a result slightly worse than in the previous year, when 40·5 per cent. of the cases were detected. The number of persons shown to have been arrested in murder cases in the quarterly reports was 797. This figure the Lieutenant-Governor now finds to have been most misleading, representing, as it appears to do, only those persons arrested by the police of their own motion. By adding 105 persons who are now shown to have been arrested by order of the magistrate, and by excluding altogether from the calculation 149 persons whose cases were pending at the close of the previous year, and one person whose case was transferred, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that 902, the figure adopted by the Inspector-General as representing the total number of arrests, is obtained. The percentage borne to these by the convictions, which amounted to 304, was 33·9 per cent., against 29·8 per cent. in 1872. This shows some improvement; but a slightly more favourable ratio of 35·8 per cent. is obtained by comparing the convictions with 849, the balance remaining after deducting from the total number of persons to be accounted for, those who died, were transferred, or were under trial at the close of the year. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, agrees with those officers who point out that in murder cases general inferences are not to be drawn as to the efficiency of the police from figures of this kind, as there is much difference in the degree of difficulty attendant on the investigation of cases of the kind. Of the 382 true cases reported to have occurred in 1873, 11 were cases of murder by dacoits, 19 by robbers, 28 by poisoners, while the rest were ordinary cases. The want of success which has attended the inquiry into the dacoity cases attended with murder is very marked in Backergunge, and in less degree in Dinagepore, Rungpore, Bogra, and Purneah. It is equally a matter for regret, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, that only four cases of murder by robbers out of 19 should have been detected. In Moorshedabad and Dacca the results obtained were eminently unsatisfactory. On the other hand, the skill and perseverance with which inquiries were pressed in the 24-Pergunnahs were rewarded with considerable success. The practice of adorning children with ornaments of value is still the cause of a large proportion of the cases which occur. The amount of success with which poisoning cases have been dealt with is far from encouraging, but one out of four having been detected. The old story is repeated of wives murdered by their husbands and husbands by their wives; of women and their paramours falling victims to the fury of parties dishonored by their intrigues; and of disputes about land eventuating in riots and murder. The districts where the best results have been obtained are Chittagong, Backergunge, Sylhet, Nuddea, and Monghyr. In Beerbhoom, Bankoora, Midnapore, Jessore, Dacca, Mymensingh, and Tipperah there has been, on the contrary, a lamentable want of success. Culpable homicide, committed under the influence of passion, or upon sudden impulse, is not, as a rule, so difficult to deal with as murder, which is perpetrated generally after every precaution to ensure secrecy. In the past year convictions were obtained in 97 cases out of 229 true cases, or in 42·4 per cent. of the whole. 154 persons were convicted out of 540 who were under trial.

Under grievous hurt there were 734 true cases against 760 in the previous year. The agrarian disturbances in the Rajshahye division are said to have led to an increase of the crime there. The number of convictions obtained continues to be good with regard to this offence as well as hurt by dangerous weapons, of which there were 745 true cases, against 684 in the previous year.

It is a matter for congratulation that no such thing as professional kidnapping now exists in the Lower Provinces. Complaints of kidnapping and abduction are, however, common, and result chiefly from the very low esteem in which the marriage tie is held by many classes of the community.

Omitting consideration for the present of house-breaking and house-trespass, the number of serious offences against property (Class III) was 1,358, against 1,379 in the previous year. The number of cases detected shows a falling off, having been 319 against 383 in 1872. While under other heads of the class there was a decrease of crime in 1873, under that of dacoity there was an increase.

As regards dacoity and gang robbery, increase was marked in all the districts of the Rajshahye division, except in Rajshahye itself; while there was a decrease in all the districts of the Burdwan division, except in Beerbhoom. On the whole, there was a great improvement in the number of cases detected and of convictions obtained. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that in Behar, although there was a decrease in the number of cases, the number of convictions nearly doubled. In Bengal the results were fair. In Chota Nagpore there was room for improvement. The Inspector-General has carefully analysed the increase and decrease in this crime and the success with which it has been dealt district by district. Beerbhoom, Moorshedabad, and Rungpore had together 86 cases, in 26 only of which were convictions obtained. In Rungpore much has been done to break up the gangs of dacoits, but the result of the action taken in Moorshedabad have been far from satisfactory. It seems almost incredible that in Mymensingh 18 cases should have been reported, of which 17 were false. Cowardice on the part of the villagers themselves is one great cause of failure in many districts. In the tracts north of the Ganges, in Sarun, Tirhoot, and Chumparun, where the people are ready to defend themselves, dacoity is almost unknown. In Purneah and Hazareebagh difficulty has been found in dealing with the crime, and, as a special measure, the police of both districts has been temporarily strengthened. As some criterion of the success which has attended the administration of late years, the Inspector-General points to the returns of the Presidency division, where twenty years ago dacoity was practised openly and most frequently with impunity. In Jessore and Nuddea there were but two cases. In the 24-Pergunnahs but seven, out of which the police may be said to have got at the bottom of four. The decrease in river dacoity is very satisfactory; there having been but 15 true cases against 28 in 1872.

Cases of arson are said to arise chiefly from feelings of personal ill-will and revenge. In Chittagong there has been quite an epidemic of the crime, and the ordinary means at the disposal of the magistrate have been found quite inadequate to enable him to cope with it. An attempt was made to burn down one of the chief bazars of the town, and there has been no little apprehension among the merchants for the safety of their goods in the godowns on the riverside.

An increase, similar to that noticed in the previous year, is again observable under Class IV (minor offences against the person). The number of cases reported was 7,043, of which 2,917 were declared to be false. The number of true cases was thus 4,126, against 3,994 in 1872. The mass of the complaints made consisted of charges of wrongful restraint and confinement in connection chiefly with disputes between ryots and their landlords. A very large proportion of these were declared to be false. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the conclusion of the local magistracy in this matter. It appears that the practice of imprisoning and kidnapping recusant ryots, so prevalent even in recent times, has nearly disappeared in almost all districts.

Adding to Class V (minor offences against property) the more serious cases of house-breaking and house-trespass omitted in considering Class III, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that the total number of offences reported to have been committed during 1873 was 83,757, of which 20,297 were declared to be false. The comparative results as regards the manner in which the balance of true cases was dealt with during the past three years were as follows :—

	True cases reported.	Not enquired into.	Cases detected.	Number of persons convicted.
1871	48,763	9,864	10,141	15,310
1872	57,632	6,149	12,508	19,812
1873	63,460	13,301	13,862	21,760

These figures would show some improvement in the number of cases detected and in convictions obtained beyond what was due to the mere increase of crime, which has occurred chiefly under the heads of thefts and burglaries. The total number of these offences shown by the quarterly returns to have been reported was 69,514, of which 16,207 were false. The gradual increase was very marked in each quarter of the year, but especially in the last, when the true cases had risen—

In Rajshahye division to	2,648	against 1,841	in 1st quarter.
,, Cooch Behar ,,	254	,, 126	,, ,,
,, Patna ,,	5,186	,, 3,150	,, ,,
,, Chota Nagpore ,,	825	,, 534	,, ,,

These figures may to some extent be taken as representing the effects of the scarcity which had begun to be felt at the close of 1873 on the criminal classes. In the Chittagong division, where there was no distress, there was a remarkable decrease of crime, the number of cases of the description under notice having been 423 only in the last quarter of the year, against 1,335 in the first. In the Bhagulpore division there was a sudden decrease from 1,093 cases in the third quarter of the year to 689 in the last, but this was fully met by the increase to 1,304 in the first quarter of 1874. It is not explained how exactly the figures given in the quarterly returns come to differ from those in paragraph 230 of the present report. The latter show, however, that, excluding cattle thefts, the number of true cases of lurking house-trespass and of theft in 1873 was 50,450, or 4,456 more than in the previous year. In the Rajshahye and the Patna divisions the increase in the number of true cases was 1,818 and 1,281 respectively. In the Dacca and Bhagulpore divisions a slight decrease in the number of true cases is explained by an increase (in the former division a very large one) in the number of those rejected as false which, together with those not inquired into, formed no less than 55 per cent. of the whole number reported in the former division and 50 per cent. in the latter. In the Dacca division the rates of convictions to cases reported was only 11 per cent., and this would seem to the Lieutenant-Governor to indicate that there had been a want of discretion exercised in the rejection of cases and some want of energy in following up those accepted. In the Cooch Behar and Orissa divisions the percentage of conviction was the highest, yet even there it is clear the police fail to cope adequately with what forms a most important branch of crime. The practical measures which the Inspector-General advocates, and which are generally admitted to be required, are the careful watching of bad characters, the breaking up of disreputable gangs, and the close surveillance of receivers of stolen property. To the success of these measures nothing is so essential as that the honest co-operation of the village police should be secured. To effect this it is indispensable that their position should be improved, and this the Lieutenant-Governor will endeavour to secure. Meanwhile, he is glad to observe that in some districts efforts are made to obtain a punctual realization of their wages, and that they have been engaged actively in the suppression of crime. As regards the system pursued by Major Gordon in Bhagulpore, however, the Lieutenant-Governor must express his dissent from that part of it (as explained at paragraph 112 of the report) which seems to him to mean that the chowkeedars, merely because they fail to detect cases, are subjected to harassment. The Commissioner is alive to the danger that such a system may directly encourage the concealment of crime. In the conclusion that it has not done so in Bhagulpore, the Lieutenant-Governor is unable to agree. In His Honor's opinion the result is inevitable, and in the case of this district plainly manifest in the fact that there the number of burglaries reported suddenly fell from an average of 1,139 in the previous year to 343 in the year under report, while the season was favourable to an increase of this crime, and while in the neighbouring districts of the Patna division, which were similarly situated, it actually occurred. Considering the class of men of whom the village police is composed, any pressure which might tempt them to press charges against innocent men cannot be too carefully avoided; and on this ground also he thinks Major Gordon's scheme objectionable.

The whole number of cases of theft of cattle reported was 3,223, against 2,702 in 1872. In 1,094 cases only were convictions obtained, the number of persons punished being 1,709. These figures, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks, but faintly represent the extent to which this crime is prevalent in these provinces. In 1872 a large number of cases which had occurred in Monghyr and Bhagulpore were brought to light by the Tirhoot Police. In the past year similar discoveries were made in Moorshedabad and Gya. There, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to think, something has been done to break up an organized system of crime. In Julpigoree it is admitted that but a small proportion of cases are reported, and this detracts from the value of the large percentage of convictions recorded in the Cooch Behar division.

The miscellaneous offences (under Class VI) reported in 1873 were 13,765, against 14,498 in the previous year. In each case on an average one person was convicted. This result is due chiefly to the inclusion of nuisance cases, in which, of 8,742 persons put on trial, 7,956 were punished. The number of persons imprisoned for vagrancy or bad character in default of giving security was 1,976, against 1,821 in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the change in the law allowing the imprisonment to be rigorous has produced a good effect. He trusts that, after all that has been said on the subject, district magistrates will realize the necessity for a strict supervision over the bad characters of their districts, and will cause frequent inquiries to be made as to their means of livelihood. The plan of having these made by the magistrates while on tour and of holding the trials in the neighbourhood of the defendant's dwelling especially commends itself to His Honor as likely best to secure the ends of justice, and he trusts that it will be found possible to adopt it freely.

The increase in the number of offences reported against the excise and opium laws is attributed to the greater activity of the authorities. In Bhagulpore and Purneah, however, the Commissioner thinks that the police have not been as vigilant as they ought. Salt cases have decreased: this is in part ascribed to the instructions the police have received to abstain from interference in petty cases. It rests with the magistrate-collectors to exercise a discretion as to the class of cases which should be prosecuted. Whilst the number of persons convicted of breaches of the salt law was only 894, against 2,059 in the previous year, the amount of fines realized was Rs. 19,316, against Rs. 13,854. This the Lieutenant-Governor considers satisfactory, as it is, he thinks, better to inflict a few sharp penalties than many almost nominal ones. The quantity of salt attached also exceeded that of the previous year by 1,721 maunds; and the proportion of it finally confiscated shows that the police generally refrained from unnecessary seizures.

Considerable success has attended the prosecution of offences committed on railways, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find that convictions have been obtained in some of the 15 cases of theft of spikes and railway fencing which occurred during the year. These crimes are very serious as endangering the safety of persons travelling by rail; and the Lieutenant-Governor has, by separate orders, called the attention of magistrates to the necessity of dealing with them severely when proved.

The number of non-cognizable cases instituted during the year, whether on complaint or on the mere motion of the magistrate, was 118,766 against 107,676. The issue of process was granted in 85,673 cases, against 79,573 in 1872. Of 87,795 defendants who actually appeared in court, 12,329 were discharged, 28,663 were acquitted, and 45,255 were convicted. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with those officers who think that a very large proportion of the cases, which though process issues, never come to trial owing to the absence of the plaintiff, are true cases, the defendant preferring a compromise out of court to the risk of conviction. This fact to some extent accounts for the small proportion borne by defendants who are finally convicted to those who actually appear. The whole number of cases where this was refused was 33,093, against 28,103 in the previous year. The analysis, however, which has been submitted by the Inspector-General shows that the proportion of cases thus rejected to the whole number instituted varies very much in different districts, and the matter is one which deserves the attention of district officers with a view to checking the issue of process unnecessarily, and especially in cases brought, not on account of any injury sustained, but with a view to obtain a decision in the criminal courts bearing indirectly on matters in dispute properly cognizable by the civil courts. The instructions which have been issued in this matter to the magistrate of Nuddea by the Commissioner of the Presidency division are worthy of the attention of other district officers. The Commissioner of Patna has very appropriately pointed out to the magistrate of that district that it is not sufficient for him to complain that the magistrates subordinate to him have issued process indiscriminately. It is for him to supervise their action and to check at once anything in which error is apparent.

The increased extent to which, during the year under review, the police were employed to investigate crime not properly cognizable by them is not, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks, entirely satisfactory. The whole number of cases was 6,944, against 4,934 in 1872. Under the head of offences against public justice, forgery, and the use of false weights and measures, where a considerable increase is observable, some good may have been secured by the intervention of the police; but it can hardly have been necessary to employ them to investigate 1,216 cases of assault, 695 cases of simple mischief, and 161 cases under the Pound Act. As the matter is one in which inexperienced magistrates are the most likely to err, it behoves district officers to exercise a strict supervision over their work in regard to it.

The Inspector-General has little to add to the account of the criminal tribes contained in his report on the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to learn that the stringent supervision which has been exercised over the Bedyas of Jessore has been effective in reducing the number of burglaries in their neighbourhood. The question of the expediency of extending the provisions of the Criminal Tribes' Act to these and to the Muglya Domes of Behar was postponed pending the famine, but will have the early consideration of Government. The latter tribe, it is stated, have been driven for the most part to seek refuge in Nepal, and little crime has accordingly been traced to them of late. Early notice should be given to Government in case their depredations commence again.

The tables which Colonel Pughe has prepared to show the relative criminality of the various districts in these provinces are interesting, and deserve the careful study of the officers to whose charge they are entrusted.

The Lieutenant-Governor observes with satisfaction the numerous extracts from the reports of district officers and commissioners which the Inspector-General has submitted, showing that the general conduct of the police has been satisfactory.

The Lieutenant-Governor thanks Colonel Pughe for his careful administration of the Department, and would ask him to convey to the officers mentioned in the 97th and 98th paragraphs of his report an expression of the approbation of Government.

As Colonel Pughe is about to relinquish, for a considerable time, the office he has held so long, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to congratulate him on the degree of organization which the police in the Lower Provinces has reached, and the considerable improvement which has of late years been effected in dealing with and suppressing crimes.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

RIVERS THOMPSON,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE COOCH BEHAR ANNUAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT FOR 1873-74.

RESOLUTION.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 27TH FEBRUARY 1875.

READ—

A letter, No. 2951, dated the 21st November 1874, from the Commissioner of Cooch Behar, submitting his Annual Administration Report on the Cooch Behar State for the year 1873-74.

Read again—

The Administration Report for 1872-73.

WHILE the Lieutenant-Governor has to thank Sir William Herschel for a full report on the administration of the Cooch Behar State during the year 1873-74, he observes that it is received at a very late period. At the same time the Lieutenant-Governor is aware that Sir William Herschel did not join his appointment till towards the close of the year under report, and that almost immediately after he had joined his time was much occupied with the arrangements necessary to meet the impending scarcity.

2. The weather and the crops.—In Cooch Behar, as elsewhere in Bengal, the chief characteristic of the year under report was the early cessation of the autumnal rains, and the consequent absence of the usual inundations. In this State three-fourths of the food supply of the people depend on the outturn of the aous and amun crops of rice, and these were seriously affected by the drought. The north and west parts of the State escaped, but not so Dinhatta and part of Matabhanga, where the bitai crop, reaped in August, failed and the amun was ruined. There the prices of grain in ordinary use among the people, which throughout the district ruled higher than for ten years past, rose rapidly, till in the early months of 1874 they reached famine rates; and in Dinhatta less than eight seers of rice could only be had for the rupee. The Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Smith, was early alive to the impending danger, and under the orders of the Commissioner prompt measures were taken by him to avert the threatened distress. Rice was purchased in the northern part of the State, and stored where required without any interference with private trade; loans were granted to the tenantry to enable them to tide over their difficulties; new roads were laid out; tanks were dug; a system of relief was organized for those who were able to work, and the indigent infirm were cared for. Success attended all these operations: and though among the old and feeble a few deaths may have been accelerated by the scarcity, there was no death from starvation even among the poorest classes of society. The abundance of the crops gathered in April and May, and the luxuriant promise of the ensuing early rice crop, put a speedy term to the anxieties of the season, and the Deputy Commissioner was able to close the relief works with the satisfaction of knowing that his people had been saved from any special hardships by the stores of food which were exported from those parts of his district which had escaped the misfortunes of the scarcity.

3. The services of Baboo Kasi Kant Mookerjee, the Superintendent of education in the State of Cooch Behar, and of Baboo Rama Kant Mazoomdar, a pensioner of the State, during this trying period, are deservedly eulogised by the Commissioner. It was due to their energy and influence, under the active Deputy Commissioner, Mr. T. Smith, that the effects of the famine were so successfully averted, and it is gratifying to find that many of the public works of utility planned and carried out under their auspices during the pressure are likely to be very serviceable to the State.

4. Finance.—In reviewing the report for 1872-73, the Lieutenant-Governor observed that against an ordinary income of Rs. 10,02,132, the ordinary expenditure of the State had been Rs. 11,45,136. Against this excess of expenditure of Rs. 1,43,004, the Commissioner now reports that the deficit in the past year was only Rs. 21,008, the income having increased by Rs. 68,581, and the expenditure decreased by Rs. 52,435. The entire outlay on relief operations in the Cooch Behar State is said to have been about one and a quarter lakh, and the net cost chargeable to charitable relief Rs. 60,547. It was unavoidable that the accounts should have been to some extent deranged by the arrangements necessary to meet this unforeseen contingency, but the Lieutenant-Governor observes that the Commissioner considers the estimates, though nearly a lakh wrong on each side of the account, to have been a satisfactory forecast of the final results. His Honor concurs in the opinion expressed by the Commissioner that more of the attention of the Deputy Commissioner should be given to the finances as a whole, and requests that instructions may be issued accordingly. He observes that the Commissioner, while stating that he has gone into the subject in some detail at Cooch Behar itself, regrets that he has not had time to examine the items of miscellaneous receipts and expenditure (amounting to upwards of 16 lakhs on each side of the books) which are not brought under the head of ordinary income and expenditure. Sir Richard Temple thinks it important that an early opportunity should be taken to do so, and he would wish to receive from the Commissioner, in his next report, a statement of the results of his enquiry, more especially as regards the manner in which they affect the assets and liabilities of the State. This question is somewhat complicated by the fact that the Cooch Behar treasury has to deal with funds belonging to Government as well as with those belonging to the State. His Honor observes that of an invested balance of Rs. 15,75,900 standing in the name of the Rajah, 1⅓ lakhs will have to be realized at once owing to a call by the Accountant-General for an adjustment of accounts: and he considers it of importance that future reports should shew distinctly what part of the entire accumulations at the credit of the State really belongs to it, and how much is liable to refund on demand. It almost seems, from the present state of the Account Department, that a special officer might be deputed to the duty with advantage; and if the Commissioner concurs in his proposal, arrangements will be made to give effect to it.

5. Land Revenue.—The current demand for the year on account of mal and debuttar lands, excluding the Rungpore zemindaries, was Rs. 4,84,205, or more by Rs. 48,835 than in the previous year. The collections, including arrears, amounted to Rs. 4,82,317, against Rs. 4,48,293 in the previous year. The success which attended the realization of the demand of the year, notwithstanding the failure of the crops, is very satisfactory. Without any undue pressure, payments in full were obtained from the great mass of the tenants on the rent-roll, who now number over 12,000. It is gratifying to the Lieutenant-Governor to observe the testimony borne by the Commissioner to the continued success of the system of khas tehsil which was introduced under the orders of Sir G. Campbell in 1871-72. The fact that in not a single instance has it been found necessary under this system to sell up a tenure for arrears of current revenue, attests the moderation of the demands made upon the people. It is an unfavorable feature in the present returns that for the past four years there has been a gradual accumulation of arrears due on account of previous years. These now amount to Rs. 1,06,562, against Rs. 1,00,631 outstanding at the close of 1872-73. It was not to be desired that in a year of scarcity any extraordinary pressure should be brought to bear on the people to make them liquidate old demands; but their failure to pay may in no small degree be due to their being kept in uncertainty as to the amount due from them. The arrangements for keeping the collecting department advised of the operations of the settlement department would certainly seem to be defective, when it is shown that out of 12,532 jotes on the rent-roll the jummas of only 3,117 have been corrected as yet according to the settlements concluded. If necessary, the strength of the establishment at the Dewan's disposal should be temporarily strengthened for the purpose of enabling him to bring the rent-roll into accordance with the pottahs issued by the settlement officers; and where this has been done, no time should be lost in clearing up the ryots' accounts, taking from them what is due and can be realised, and expunging irrecoverable balances. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that the Commissioner's next report will show that considerable progress has been made in this matter.

6. Settlement.—Sir Richard Temple learns with satisfaction that the field operations in connection with the settlement of Cooch Behar, which have now extended over several years, are approaching a termination. The total area of the State is about 25,00,000 beeghas, while the measurements already executed show slightly over 26,00,000, and some small patches of land still remain to be dealt with; this discrepancy is not considered excessive. Of the 7,56,835 beeghas measured in the year under report, Messrs. Moran and Renny overtook more than half, and the Lieutenant-Governor notices the favorable mention made of their work. No less than 4,53,674 beeghas were assessed during the year, with the result of an addition to the revenue of the State of eventually Rs. 1,15,000. The final result of the settlement operations, which have cost up to date Rs. 5,92,805, will, if present anticipations are realised, double the land revenue. In the year under review the Lieutenant-Governor observes that they are credited with causing an increase of only Rs. 58,173. He desires that early arrangements may be made to utilise the results of the measurements which have now been nearly completed, and he will await with interest the submission of Mr. Beckett's final report on the settlement proceedings. Proper attention has been given to a very useful measure in the rules framed for the maintenance of boundary marks of talooks. The rules should be strictly enforced.

7. Zemindary.—The Lieutenant-Governor would have wished for a more detailed account of the administration of the Rungpore zemindaries. Sir George Campbell, in reviewing the last report, had characterised this as inefficient in the last degree; and the Lieutenant-Governor would have wished to have had some information as to the extent to which improvements had been effected, and in which his predecessor's instructions have been carried out. The receipts under this head, amounting to Rs. 2,37,237, were better by Rs. 10,626 than in the previous year, but they are still much below what was usual in former years. There was a diminution in expenditure of Rs. 3,056, notwithstanding the famine, which occasioned an unforeseen demand on the funds at the manager's disposal. The Government revenue payable on account of the estates amounts to Rs. 1,17,150, and the net profit to the Rajah in the past year's term amounted only to Rs. 54,279. The next report must enter more fully into the question of the management of these zemindaries and of the reasons for its past want of success.

8. Excise.—The excise receipts for the year were Rs. 36,727, against Rs. 34,619 in the previous year. It is satisfactory to learn that the progressive income derived from this source is due not to the increased consumption of intoxicating liquor, but to the introduction of more stringent excise rules. The duty on country spirits was increased by no less than 33 per cent. during the year, with the result of a large diminution in the amount of liquor consumed, concurrently with an increase in the amount of duty realised. Dealings in opium, ganja, and madad, appear to be under proper restrictions, and call for no special remark. Drunkenness is said to be very prevalent in the town of Cooch Behar, especially among the relatives of the young Rajah. The Lieutenant-Governor accordingly approves of the measures taken by the Commissioner to check the sale of inferior imported spirits there.

9. Education.—The total number of schools in the State on 31st March last is said to have been 199, of which 117 were in the receipt of State grants. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 133 and 73 respectively. The number of pupils similarly shews an increase of from 3,164 to 4,605. Considering the circumstances of the year, the Lieutenant-Governor accepts these results as satisfactory. He trusts that the educational authorities will give their attention to securing an improved attendance on the part of the boys, 26 per cent. of whom are said to be in the habit of absenting themselves. The department is under the very efficient direction of Baboo Kasi Kant Mookerjee, and has shown during the year a very steady and healthy progress under depressing circumstances. It is clear, however, that very much still remains to be done, when it is seen that out of a population of 5,33,000 there are only 4,605 pupils. The increase of private contributions to the cause of education, and success of two students, one of whom is a native of Cooch Behar, in the Calcutta University Entrance Examination, are prominent features of the year's report.

10. Criminal Justice.—The total number of cognizable and non-cognizable cases reported during the year was 2,433, against 2,204 in the previous year. In cases of the latter class there has been a slight decrease, and some increase in those of the former. The inclusion of false cases and cases of a trivial character, in which no clue was obtained, has tended to swell the returns somewhat; but the scarcity also would seem to have had some influence in increasing the number of petty thefts. Convictions were obtained in three only out of nine cases of dacoity, and in two out of eleven cases of robbery. The latter were, however, of a very petty description. Out of 1,791 persons brought to trial, 1,134 were convicted—a result creditable on the whole to the police, whose attention is said to have been much distracted from their ordinary duties. The result of the 110 appeals was creditable to the officers whose orders were appealed against, these having been reversed in nine cases only. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that the Deputy Commissioner himself tried but few Magistrate's cases.

11. Civil Justice.—There was a slight increase of 42 in the number of suits instituted during the year, which amounted to 1,997; including pending cases, the number disposed of was 2,048, and the number pending at the close of the year was 192. There was a large increase of Rs. 1,02,148 in the value of the suits instituted, which, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, is attributed to the accident of several suits on bonds for large sums coming up for trial. The increase shewn in the number and amount of decrees executed is satisfactory. The result of the numerous appeals preferred from the decisions of the dewany ahilkar is very creditable to him. The Lieutenant-Governor, while accepting the explanation that the time of the sub-divisional officer at Matabhanga was much occupied with famine duties, desires that the Deputy Commissioner will impress upon him the necessity for expedition in the decision of suits which come before him for trial. In the courts of the other officers the duration of suits has not been excessive, but is, perhaps, capable of reduction.

12 Rent Suits.—The total number of rent suits to be disposed of during the year was 1,734, of which 1,614 were decided and 120 remained pending at the close of the year A slight decrease in the number of fresh suits instituted during the year is attributed to the scarcity. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the increase in litigation, which is anticipated from the issue by the Settlement Department of pottahs with retrospective effect, may be averted. The matter should have the attention of the Deputy Commissioner. Of 80 appeals from the decision of subordinate officers which came up for disposal during the year, 22 were decreed by the Dewan and 5 only by the Deputy Commissioner. The result of the cases, especially before the latter officer, is not unsatisfactory.

13. Public Works.—In reviewing the expenditure during the year 1872-73, the Lieutenant-Governor requested that prominent notice should in future be given to that incurred on public works, and ordered that the two chief roads passing through Cooch Behar should be fully completed. The Commissioner now reports that the total length of roads maintained from the revenues of the State is 112½ miles. It is more than ever important that the road from Cooch Behar towards Julpigoree should be put in order, forming, as it does, an important link in the chain of communication which it is an object to open up for emigration purposes from the western confines of Behar to Dhoobree. The account given by the Commissioner of its present condition is far from satisfactory. Money appears to be spent on bamboo bridges, which the first flood must wash away, and which under no circumstances can last for more than a very short time. The Lieutenant-Governor would wish to see the matter taken in hand in earnest, and efforts made to supply the necessary funds by retrenchment in other departments. The Dhoobree road is in a slightly better state, but here, too, much evidently remains to be done. The Rungpore and Buxa roads are also capable of much improvement. The other roads mentioned are comparatively unimportant. The total expenditure on public works during the year amounted to Rs. 83,000, or half a lakh less than was intended, the famine having caused expenditure to be restricted. Of the whole sum, Rs. 35,730 were spent on original works, including boundary pillars, an enlargement of the Deputy Commissioner's court-house, a library, and a dâk-bungalow. No less than Rs. 14,841 were spent on town improvements, including a large tank in the bazar, the earth from which has been used to fill up holes and prepare a site for a town market. All these works are indicative of useful progress, and the Lieutenant-Governor will await with interest the next report of the completion of these measures.

14. Medical.—The health of the district is reported to have been good, but there was an increase of attendance at the dispensary, where 4,988 patients were treated. As regards the jail, the conclusion which has been arrived at, that the previous high rate of mortality may have been partly due to insufficiency of food, reflects very seriously on the management of the district officer, who should have been alive to the necessity of careful enquiry on the subject at an earlier period. During the past year the death-rate was only 30 per thousand, against 94 in the previous year. Notwithstanding the grant of a more liberal diet, there was a considerable diminution in the cost of maintaining the prisoners, due to more careful administration.

15. Conduct of Officers.—In conclusion, the Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure the favorable mention of Mr. Smith and of his subordinate officers made by the Commissioner, to whom the acknowledgments of Government are due for the care with which he has supervised their administration.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of Cooch Behar for information and guidance; also that a copy, together with that of the report, be sent to the Revenue Department of this Office for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

RIVERS THOMPSON,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

EXACTION OF ILLEGAL CESSES BY ZEMINDARS FROM THEIR RYOTS.

No. 351, dated Calcutta, the 12th February 1875.

From—H. J. REYNOLDS, ESQ., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,

To—The Secy. to the Govt. of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce.

I AM directed to reply to your letter No. 326, dated the 21th April 1874, the answer to which has been unavoidably delayed until the Lieutenant-Governor could by travelling see and learn something of the country for himself. This delay is not altogether to be regretted, as the occurrences of 1874 can hardly fail to have contributed towards the settlement of the question upon which the expression of his opinion is called for.

2. Complaints of the excessive levy of illegal cesses by zemindars from their ryots were first made in the district of Orissa, and the inquiries which were instituted in those districts were afterwards extended to the other districts of the Lower Provinces. It was the conclusion of Sir George Campbell, after full consideration of the evidence adduced upon the subject, that in Orissa some special measures were necessary for the protection of the ryots, and for the punishment of those zemindars who were shown to have most flagrantly violated the law. These proposals were submitted to the Government of India in Mr. Bernard's letter, No. 821, dated the 5th March 1873. The policy which Sir George Campbell desired to pursue in the remaining districts of the Lower Provinces was set forth in a Resolution recorded on the 30th May 1873, and communicated to the Government of India by Mr. Bernard's letter, No. 1483 of that date.

3. The Governor-General in Council, while approving the policy indicated in the Resolution of the 30th May 1873, declined to sanction the special measures recommended by the late Lieutenant-Governor for the protection of the Orissa ryots. Your letter under reply conveys an expression of the concurrence of the Secretary of State in the decision of the Government of India regarding the action proposed to be taken in Orissa, and draws attention to the 6th paragraph of the despatch, in which it is intimated that a further communication from the Governor-General in Council is awaited on the subject of the measures which may be ultimately deemed necessary for dealing with cases of gross oppression and illegal exactions by zemindars.

4. I am directed to say that in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, the evidence leaves no room for doubt that cesses unauthorized by law have been very generally levied; that in many—perhaps in the majority of cases—they have been levied with the assent of those concerned; but that in some cases, and in some parts of the country, they have been exacted in an oppressive manner.

5. At the same time, Sir Richard Temple recognizes the fact that in many districts of Bengal cesses not authorized by the law have been demanded and paid by a kind of tacit composition between landlord and tenant in lieu of any enhancement of rent. This is specially the case in the Eastern and East Central districts, where rents are in general extremely low; and though on some estates they have been raised during the last few years, they have nowhere been enhanced in a degree corresponding with the rise of general prices and the increased value of agricultural produce. In these districts, 8 annas and 12 annas per beegha are still common rates of rent for lands, of good quality, producing valuable crops. The agricultural classes in Eastern Bengal are in a very prosperous condition, and the zemindars might reasonably claim some share of the increased returns from the land. Rents, however, in these districts, are regulated rather by custom than by competition; enhancements are rare, and ejectments are almost unknown. The increased payments by the tenantry consequently took the form of cesses,—a form not recognized by the law, but in harmony with native ideas; and the amount of them was seldom more than the landlords might equitably have claimed in the shape of enhanced rent.

6. Under such circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that any active and general interference on the part of the officers of Government to prevent the payment of these cesses, would not only bear harshly upon the landholding class, but might lead to consequences greatly to be deprecated. There would be a general rise of rents; and in the end the law would perhaps make the ryot liable for as much as he is now paying, while large sums would have been spent in litigation; and the embittered feelings which the contest would have produced would tend to make a lasting breach between landlords and tenants.

7. It is not contended that the social condition described in the two foregoing paragraphs obtains generally throughout the districts of the Lower Provinces. The evidence before the Lieutenant-Governor tends to show that in particular places in the Presidency and Burdwan divisions exorbitant cesses have been levied from ryots who were already paying the full value of their land as rent, and similar cases have been brought to light in some parts of the province of Behar If there were reason to fear that these evils would be permanent; if it were likely that the power and influence of the landlords would be greater than at present, and that the ryots would remain ignorant of their rights and helpless to enforce them, it would be necessary that Government should be prepared to interfere in certain classes of cases. But the tendency of affairs is in the opposite direction to this. Education is spreading among the ryot class, and there is much of legal protection for probably the majority of ryots; while tenant-right is being more widely recognized, apparently with the tacit acquiescence of the zemindars. Many circumstances have helped to disseminate among the ryots a knowledge of the distinction between the legal dues which they are required to pay, and the illegal cesses which no one has a right to exact from them. In these districts, the Lieutenant-Governor does not think that any action on the part of Government is required beyond such as is indicated in the Resolution of the 30th May 1873. In that Resolution Sir George Campbell expressed a doubt whether any general or very stringent interference by the officers of Government was desirable. District officers were directed to interfere in the case of any extreme oppression, where inordinate cesses were levied, or where violence was used to enforce the collection of them; but beyond this matters were to be left to adjust themselves, as the people should get better protected, better educated, and better able to understand and maintain their own rights and position. Sir Richard Temple concurs in these opinions, and desires to carry out this policy. He hopes, however, that the cases which call for interference under the above rule will gradually decrease till they almost cease to appear.

8. The circumstances of the province of Orissa are in some respects exceptional. The ryots there are in general poorer and more ignorant than those of Bengal or Behar; and the inquiries made by local officers in 1871, brought to notice numerous instances of high-handed oppression and excessive exactions on the part of the zemindars. These considerations induced Sir George Campbell to recommend the adoption, in Orissa, of special measures for the effectual protection of the people. It has been already remarked that these proposals were not approved by the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

9. It appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that if interference is not to be exercised in Orissa, in the direction and to the extent which Sir George Campbell desired, no other action need be taken than such as is indicated in the Resolution of the 30th May 1873. An action of this kind, Sir Richard Temple is inclined to think, will now supply all that is necessary. I am to point out that the conditions of the questions have somewhat altered since the inquiries on the subject were held in 1871. The peasantry of Orissa are probably still in a more backward state than the ryots of other districts in the Lower Provinces; they are imperfectly acquainted with their rights, and are but little disposed to claim the protection of the law. But from recent reports from the local authorities, and from what the Lieutenant-Governor himself saw of the condition of the province during his recent visit, it appears certain that the ignorance, obstructiveness, and timidity which formerly characterized the people, are steadily, though it may be slowly, giving place to a spirit of intelligence and independence. The last administration report of the Commissioner of Orissa contains some striking remarks upon the advance which the province is making, not only in material wealth, but in social and intellectual progress; while there is a noteworthy absence of the complaints which were formerly rife, of oppression on the part of the zemindars towards their tenantry. On the whole, the Lieutenant-Governor finds reason to believe that in Orissa the question of zemindary cesses is tending towards a natural and peaceful solution, and consequently he does not think it necessary to recommend that any special measures should be adopted in that province.

10. Finally, I am to represent that the events of 1874 have exhibited the zemindars in a very favourable light. Throughout the distressed districts the great majority of the zemindars have not merely exhibited the passive charity of forbearing to press their ryots for rent, but they have displayed an active benevolence, a readiness to assist and to contribute, which the Lieutenant-Governor has already publicly acknowledged, and without which he feels that the utmost efforts of Government might have failed to wholly avert the impending calamity. Sir Richard Temple hopes and believes that the occurrences of the past year will not be without their permanent fruits; that the zemindars will persevere in moderate courses towards their ryots; and that the questions still unsettled between them will be approached by both parties in a spirit of mutual kindliness and forbearance.

11. I am therefore to say, with reference to your letter under reply, that the Lieutenant-Governor has no further suggestions to offer than those which have been already submitted to the Government of India in the Resolution of this Government, dated the 30th May 1873. He concurs with his predecessor in thinking that while cases of the extortion of illegal cesses by violence should not be suffered to go unpunished, and while District Officers may properly interfere in instances of clear oppression (if such instances should unhappily occur), the question may in general be left to adjust itself in the manner which will naturally result from the gradual spread of education, intelligence, and independence among the classes from whom these cesses have hitherto been levied.

12. Although, as seen above, the Lieutenant-Governor is hopeful that both parties concerned, landlord and tenant, will see that their true interest lies in respecting each other's rights, still he is prepared to watch for and note any indications of a contrary tendency, to collect and compare from time to time the best informed opinion in the interior of the country, and to adopt any protective or preventive measures which may appear necessary, and which may be within the competency of executive authority. If in any case or cases the zemindars were to really oppress the ryots, or if the ryots were to combine to resist the lawful requirements of the zemindars, the Governor-General in Council may depend upon prompt action being taken by the Government of Bengal.

No. 169, dated Calcutta, the 20th February 1875.

From—C. J. LYALL, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

IN reply to your letter No. 351 of the 12th instant, I am directed to say that the Governor-General in Council concurs in the views of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor as to the manner in which cases of oppression and illegal exactions by zemindars in the Lower Provinces of Bengal should be dealt with.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

On the 30th November 1874, ship Java, on her passage from London to Akyab, when in Lat. 26-22 S., Long. 26-11 W., sighted a wreck, which evidently had been rigged as a ship or barque. At 0·30 P.M. sent a boat alongside, and found that the vessel had been destroyed by fire and the cargo burnt out; masts and gear hanging alongside. On the stern they read "The Foundling, Liv." The remainder of the word destroyed supposed to be Liverpool. The bowsprit was still standing; but whether iron or wood, cannot say. Her rail is about 24 feet above the water, and her deck line about 20 feet. Nothing of the hull appeared to be injured except a little of the bulwork injured in the wake of the foremast. The vessel is in the track for outward bounders round Cape of Good Hope, and homeward bounders round Cape Horn.

The above has been communicated to the Master Attendant at Akyab by Captain W. D. R. Bergstrom, of the Java, who is of opinion that the wreck is not likely to sink for a long time, consequently very dangerous. She was evidently a coal-laden vessel.

Master-Attendant, Akyab.

The following Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 440, dated the 16th November 1874, is forwarded herewith to all judicial authorities subordinate to the High Court for information and guidance.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department (Port Blair), No 440—S, under date, Fort William, the 16th November 1874.

READ—

Circular of the Home Department, Nos. 2911-18, dated 6th May 1863, drawing attention to the ample accommodation available for convicts at Port Blair, and suggesting the desirability of freer use being made by the Sessions Courts of the power vested in them under Section 59 of the Indian Penal Code, by which sentences of transportation for not less than seven years may be substituted for sentences of imprisonment.

Circular of the Home Department, Nos. 2085-86, dated the 18th August 1861, directing that transportation may be carried into effect only in cases of convicts sentenced to fourteen years and upwards.

Resolution of the Home Department, No. 2028, dated 28th December 1868, and orders cited therein, restricting transportation to life-sentences.

Resolution of the Home Department, dated 19th May 1874, regarding the deputation of the Hon'ble Sir H. Norman, K.C.B., to inspect the Penal Settlement at the Andamans.

Report by the Hon'ble Sir H. Norman, K.C.B., dated the 13th June 1874.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor-General in Council has had under consideration the question of rescinding the Resolution of 1868, by which only life-convicts were to be transported to the Andamans. This Resolution has been maintained from that date, and the proportion of term to life-convicts has, in consequence, been very largely reduced. The Superintendent of the Settlement now very strongly urges the necessity of a proportion of term-convicts being kept up, on the ground that such convicts form an important element of safety to the Settlement. In this recommendation Sir H. Norman concurs. Upon this view thus supported, His Excellency in Council has decided to waive the considerations of general policy which restricted transportation to life-convicts and to permit term-convicts to be sent to the Settlement. The maximum proportion which term convicts should bear to life-convicts will be precisely fixed hereafter, the admitted objects being to provide petty officers and to keep a certain number of term-men among the working gangs. With these objects, General Stewart has been desired to report what number of term-convicts he needs at once, and to detail the instalments by which they should subsequently arrive. He has also been requested to mention any particular class or caste of convicts whose transportation may be desirable or useful to the Settlement, as also those, if any, who should not be sent.

2. The Superintendent has replied to this reference, and has urged that steps be at once taken to send term-convicts to Port Blair as soon as the transport season opens, because a larger amount of skilled labor than the Settlement can now supply is urgently required by him.

He states that there is immediate work for the classes specified in the margin, and if a large proportion of them can be obtained from the Madras jails, it will be a gain, as convicts from that Presidency stand the climate of the Andamans better, and are more tractable than natives of other provinces.

3. As it is not, however, expedient, in the interests of discipline, to permit educated men to work as clerks until they have by good conduct in imprisonment become entitled to such light employment, General

Stewart recommends that convicts who have been for some years at hard labor in India should alone be selected for employment as clerks at Port Blair. This recommendation is approved by the Government of India.

4. He also requires a considerable number of sweepers for conservancy purposes; and in view to secure an ample supply of this class, he suggests that the rules regarding age and physique need not be strictly enforced, provided that those selected for transportation are fit for sweeper's work. For the rest, he considers that if it be possible to supply the requirements of the Settlement without having recourse to dacoits and habitual thieves, it would be desirable, as convicts of these classes rarely settle down to work or give up the practices of their early training in crime; moreover, dacoits are the most persistent concocters of schemes for escape, and thus help to unsettle the minds of their comrades. With these exceptions, the Superintendent does not think it would be expedient to place any restriction on the transportation of term-prisoners who fulfil the usual conditions required of trans-marine convicts. These recommendations are also approved.

5. It has been already observed that the deportation of term-convicts is now sanctioned in deference to authoritative opinions affirming the necessity for it. In sanctioning this important change of system, His Excellency in Council observes that the substantial reasons which have hitherto caused a different policy to be affirmed must be well known; they concern mainly the difficulty of adjusting the penal system to the two different classes of convicts for a term and convicts for life; so that it shall neither be too indulgent for the former class nor too rigorously severe for the latter. There are also other difficulties touching the status and general treatment of the convict population, which are greatly enhanced by mixing together those who are to return to civil society and those who are not to return. General Stewart believes, however, that all these difficulties can be surmounted; and His Excellency in Council agrees to the experiment, on the understanding that one essential condition of success is, that a sentence of transportation for a term must be carried out with due rigour. There has hitherto been a general impression that the deterrent effects of transportation have been considerably diminished by reports of time-expired convicts on their return to the mainland; and if this impression be well founded, it indicates the necessity of guarding against a serious drawback to the advantages of the mixed system which has now been again admitted.

6. Local Governments and Administrations are therefore requested to inform the judicial authorities of the purport of this Resolution, and to report how many convicts of the required description can be contributed from each province. The men selected should have a minimum term of seven years to serve. As one month of the transportation season has already elapsed, this information should be supplied as early as possible.

7. In future, whenever practicable, term convicts of not less than ten years' sentence should be sent to Port Blair in the proportion of one to every three life-convicts.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance, and to the Superintendent of the Andamans.

Circular Order No. 1.

Dated Calcutta, the 30th January 1875.

HIGH COURT.
ENGLISH DEPARTMENT.
(Civil.)

The Court are pleased to prescribe the following rules for the guidance of civil court ameens in carrying out local inquiries involving the survey and measurement of lands by order of a civil court.

2. District Judges are requested to see that these instructions are exactly obeyed.

RULES.

1. All measurement must be made with chain and compass. The chain to be 30 feet in length.

2. The work must be plotted to scale, and the scale to be used by civil court ameens is the brass thakbust scale, 330 feet to the inch, or 16 inches to the mile.

3. This scale is made by dividing 4 inches into 11 equal parts, each of which will therefore be equal to a russee or beegah-side of 120 feet. Each of these parts sub divided into four represents the measuring chain of 30 feet or 5 cottahs

4. If the area of the land to be measured is too large to be conveniently shown on the 16-inch scale, the scale may be reduced to one-half. If the plot of land be very small, the scale can be increased to double, i.e., 32 inches to the mile. For practical purposes the scale of 8 inches to the mile is the smallest scale civil court ameens can safely use with such instruments as they have to employ. The scales enumerated bear due proportion to the professional survey scale and facilitate comparison with the professional survey maps *

* In working from professional survey maps, it will be borne in mind that 20 Gunter's chains or 1,320 feet are generally, if not universally, represented by 1 inch. Each inch of a survey village map, therefore, is equal to 11 russees, and each Gunter's chain to 11 cottahs

5. The starting point and every bearing and measurement taken must be recorded, as the measurement proceeds, in the field book. This field book must invariably be submitted with the map prepared, and in it any prominent land-marks adjacent to or on the line of measurement should be noticed.

6. In order to secure greater clearness and uniformity, it is further directed that all water, whether running or standing, is to be indicated in blue, the land in dispute to be shaded yellow, and all writing on the maps to be so made as to be read when the map is held with the north side uppermost.

By order of the High Court,

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country —Extract from Preface

PART III.

8. The Collector may require any occupant of land to erect temporary boundary marks of such materials, and in such numbers and manner as he may direct, on any lands to be surveyed under this Act, and to maintain and keep in repair such marks or any boundary marks, until any survey operations shall be concluded and a final award given as to any disputed boundary, or until permanent boundary marks may be erected in lieu thereof as hereinafter provided.

Collector may require occupants to erect permanent boundary marks after completion of survey.

9. After the completion of the survey of any land, the Collector may require any occupant of land to erect permanent boundary marks of such materials, and in such number and manner, as he may determine to be sufficient to distinguish the limit of the estate, tenure, mouzah, or field for which the same are to be erected.

All zamindars are bound to maintain and keep in repair the permanent boundary marks lawfully erected on their respective estates, or on the boundary between their own and any other estate; and in default the Collector may at any time require them to do so.

Procedure when occupant fails to maintain boundary mark.

10. If any occupant fails to erect any boundary mark, or to maintain or keep in repair any temporary or other boundary mark when required to do so under sections eight and nine, or if any zamindar fails to maintain or keep in repair any permanent boundary mark, when required so to do under the last preceding section, the Collector may erect boundary marks of such materials, and in such numbers and manner, as with the sanction of the Board he may think fit; or maintain or keep in repair any boundary mark hereinbefore directed to be maintained and kept in repair by the zamindar or occupant (as the case may be);

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be recovered as an arrear of Government revenue from the person failing to erect, maintain, or keep in repair any such boundary mark after being required to do so.

11. If the Collector does not think fit to require any occupant to erect any boundary marks, which under this Act he may require an occupant to erect, he may erect boundary marks of such materials, and in such numbers and manner, as, with the sanction of the Board, he may think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be apportioned among, and levied from, the owners in manner hereinafter provided.

PART IV.

ASCERTAINMENT OF EXPENSES AND APPORTIONMENT AND RECOVERY OF THE EXPENSES.

Person erecting boundary marks to present account of expenses incurred.

12. After the erection of any boundary marks under this Act, the person erecting the same shall present to the Collector an account of the expenses thereby incurred by him.

The Collector shall accordingly examine the same; and if it appear to him that the account is correct and that the sum therein alleged to be due is reasonable, he shall certify to that effect.

13. As soon as possible after the completion of the erection of boundary marks on any tract of land of which the survey may have been ordered, or on any convenient portion thereof, the Collector shall prepare a statement of all expenses incurred in respect of such boundary marks, whether by himself or any other person, as hereinbefore mentioned.

Collector to prepare statement of all expenses incurred in respect of boundary marks.

The statement shall show the names of the estates, tenures, and mouzahs within which any lands have been distinguished by such marks. It shall, when prepared, be kept in the office of the Collector, and notice shall be served for every estate and tenure of which the owner may, in the opinion of the Collector, be liable to contribute to the payment of the amount, to the effect that such statement is open to inspection by any person interested.

If within thirty days from the service of such notice any interested person shall object to the statement on the ground either that the work charged for has not been performed, or that the whole sum charged has not been expended, or that the rates of charge are unreasonably high, the Collector shall inquire into such objection, and may pass any order thereon, subject in any case to an appeal by the objector to the Commissioner of the Division, whose decision shall be final.

14. As soon as the total sum payable has been ascertained as provided in the last preceding section, the Collector shall pay to each occupant the expenses he has incurred, and shall proceed to apportion the total sum expended as hereinafter provided.

Occupant to receive expenses incurred.

15. As soon as the total sum mentioned in the last preceding section, including any sum which may have been paid as compensation under section six for work done, or for damage in clearing lines, has been ascertained, the Collector shall cause a notice to be served for every estate or tenure, of which he may consider the owner to be liable to contribute to the payment of the same.

On ascertainment of total sum of expenses, Collector to serve notice of inquiry.

Every such notice shall specify the estate and tenure aforesaid, and that an enquiry will be held at a day and place therein named for the purpose of apportioning amongst the owners thereof the said total sum with interest and the cost of apportionment.

16. On the day fixed in the notice, which shall not be less than thirty days later than the date of service of the same, the Collector shall proceed to make the enquiry.

On date fixed in the notice enquiry to be made.

In making the enquiry he shall receive such evidence as may be tendered by or on behalf of the said owners, and by or on behalf of any other persons who may claim to be interested in the matter.

17. In making the enquiry, the Collector shall take down in writing the names of all persons who may claim, or who may be alleged by any party interested to be owners of any estate or tenure mentioned in the notice.

What to be done in making the enquiry.

In default of the appearance in person or by agent of any person whom the Collector may have reason to believe to be any such owner, the Collector shall issue and serve a further notice calling on him to appear at a date and place therein mentioned, and to show cause against being included in the order of apportionment to be made therein, and shall adjourn the enquiry until such date.

18. At such or any subsequently adjourned enquiry, the Collector, if there be only one estate liable, shall charge the zamindar thereof with the total sum payable; and if two or more estates be liable, he shall apportion the same amongst the zamindars thereof rateably in proportion to the cost of the boundary marks erected for the purpose of demarcating the lands of each estate, and shall make an order declaring the sum apportioned on each estate to be due to the Government.

Collector to apportion in respect of estates the sum due to Government.

19. As soon as the Collector shall have made an order under section eighteen, he shall proceed in like manner to apportion the sum declared to be payable to the Government in respect of each estate amongst all the tenures therein, rateably in the proportion to the cost of the boundary marks erected for the purpose of demarcating the boundaries of lands included in each tenure, first deducting therefrom such sum as on the like principle of proportion is payable in respect of such portion of the estate as is not included within any tenure, and also such sum as the Collector may deem to be finally payable by the zamindar in respect of his interest in such portion of the estate as is included within any tenures.

Provided that the right or interest of any person holding from the proprietor of such tenure shall not be affected by any sale held in pursuance of this section.

PART V.

BOUNDARY DISPUTES.

When in course of survey dispute appears to exist, Collector may decide as under Regulation VII of 1822.

26. If it shall come to the notice of the Collector in the course of a survey under this Act that a dispute exists within the tract of which the survey has been ordered relative to any boundary, the Collector may enquire into and decide the same with all and the like powers as are vested in a Collector by Bengal Regulation VII of 1822, or any other law for the time being in force with reference to the decision of such disputes for the possession of lands as the Collector is authorized by section thirty-four of the said Regulation to investigate and decide without complaint being brought before him by one of the parties.

When any dispute as to boundary is brought to notice of the Collector, he may decide as in the last section.

27. If any dispute or doubt concerning any boundary is brought to the notice of the Collector in any manner whatever with regard to any land on which any boundary mark may have been erected, the Collector may enquire into and decide the same in the same manner as he may enquire into and decide a dispute under the last preceding section.

In certain cases, Collector may require occupant of conterminous lands to erect marks.

28. Whenever the Collector shall have decided a boundary and the order shall have become final, and whenever a boundary which has been supplied by the survey officers, or has been determined under this Act, has been altered by a decree of the Civil Court, and whenever it shall come to the notice of the Collector that any boundary has been determined by a competent Court or authority, he may require any occupant of the conterminous lands to erect such marks as he may think fit in order to secure the boundary permanently, and the provisions of Parts III and IV shall, as far as possible, be applicable to boundary marks which are required to be erected under this section, and to the cost thereof.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Joint zamindars to be subject to every liability imposed on single zamindars.

29. Whenever any estate or tenure is held jointly by two or more zamindars or tenure-holders, every such zamindar and tenure-holder shall be jointly and severally liable in respect of every liability imposed on zamindars or tenure-holders respectively by this Act.

Power to Collector to enforce attendance of witnesses.

30. For the purpose of any enquiry under this Act, the Collector shall have power to summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of documents by the same means (as far as may be) and in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Appeal.

31. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections twenty-six and twenty-seven of this Act, or in any other Regulation or Act, except as hereinafter provided, an appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division from the order of the Collector deciding any boundary dispute, if the same be presented within thirty days from the date of the passing of such order.

Limitation.

32. Every suit brought to set aside an order of a Collector, or of a Commissioner of Division made on appeal under this Act, shall be brought within six months from the date of such order, and every suit instituted for such purpose after the expiration of the said period shall be dismissed although limitation has not been set up as a defence.

Appeals and suits to be subject to certain provisions of Act IX of 1871.

33. The appeals and suits mentioned in the two last preceding sections shall, as far as possible, be subject to the provisions of sections five to twenty six (inclusive) of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871.

Penalty for removing boundary marks.

34. Any person convicted before a Collector of wilfully erasing, removing, or damaging any boundary mark (not being a landmark fixed by the authority of a public servant within the meaning of section four hundred and thirty-four of the Indian Penal Code) which has been lawfully erected, may be ordered by the convicting officer to pay such sum, not exceeding twenty rupees, for each mark so erased, removed, or damaged, in addition to such sum as may be necessary to defray the expense of restoring the boundary marks so erased, removed, or damaged, and of rewarding the informer through whom the conviction was obtained.

A fine under this section may be levied as far as possible in the manner provided in sections three hundred and seven and three hundred and eight of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

When person removing boundary mark cannot be found, Collector may repair.

35. Whenever the person erasing, removing, or damaging any such mark cannot be discovered, or if for any other reason it is found impracticable to recover from him the sum which he has been so ordered to pay, the mark shall be re-erected or repaired by the Collector, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the occupants of such of the conterminous lands as to the Collector seems fit.

The expenses so incurred may be recovered as an arrear of Government revenue.

Recovery of sums expended by Government since 1st November 1874.

36. All sums expended by the Government since the first day of November one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four in erecting boundary marks, shall be recoverable from the zamindars and tenure-holders respectively, as provided in Part IV of this Act.

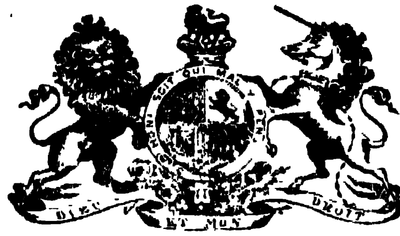
Proceedings under Act to be subject to the control of the Board.

37. All proceedings and orders of revenue officers under this Act, excepting decisions in boundary disputes, shall be subject to the control and supervision of the Board.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

MUCH of the value of the survey operations which have been carried on in Bengal has been lost owing to the boundaries of mouzahs and estates, as ascertained and settled at the time of survey, not having been secured by permanent marks. In every other province such marks are erected at the cost of the landholders, who are bound to maintain them when erected. There is no reason that these provinces should form an exception to this general rule, and should remain longer without the benefits which its enforcement will secure. The Bill therefore provides for the erection of marks to secure the boundaries which may be ascertained by future surveys, and for the apportionment of the cost thereof on landholders.

2. Provision is also made for the recovery of certain sums which have been expended during the last field season by Government in erecting such marks, on the understanding that they should be recovered from the landholders.



3. The opportunity has been taken to remove the doubts which have hitherto existed as to the legal power of the Government to authorise its servants to enter upon any land in order to make a survey, otherwise than for the purposes of a settlement. The Bill also provides that the Lieutenant-Governor may order a survey of any land to be made for any purpose.

INSPECTION OF STEAM BOILERS.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Bengal Act No. VI of 1864, and moved that it be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG also moved that the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG then moved that the Bill be passed; and in doing so said that the Bill consisted of but one section, which gave power to the Lieutenant-Governor to revoke a boiler certificate already granted, or to be granted, on the ground of the incompetency of the person who had charge of the boiler to carry on his duties as such. The Select Committee, in order to provide against the too arbitrary exercise of the power by such officer as the Lieutenant-Governor might delegate in that behalf, provided that an appeal might be made to some officer appointed by the Government; and if he thought the man was competent, he was authorized to issue a certificate, and then it would be competent to the officer who had charge of the working of the Act either to grant a certificate or to allow a former certificate to remain in force.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill passed.

SURVEYS AND BOUNDARY MARKS.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said he had the honor to move that the Bill to provide for the survey of land and for the establishment and maintenance of boundary-marks, which had been for some days in the hands of the members, be read in Council. In asking leave to introduce the Bill, he had mentioned to the Council that much of the value of the survey operations in Bengal had been lost owing to the boundaries not being secured by marks on the ground after they had been ascertained and laid down by the survey officers; and sometimes after, in the process of the survey, they had been settled after much dispute. For many years the Supreme Government had pointed out to the Government of Bengal that the provinces under its administration stood alone in that respect; that in all other provinces boundaries were secured by boundary-marks; and that the charge for erecting and maintaining them fell upon the land. The survey officers had long insisted upon the erection of boundary-marks as a necessary measure for the benefit of the landed classes, and the Government of Bengal was entirely in accord with the Supreme Government in the opinion which had been expressed: first, that it was a great waste of power making these surveys and letting the results of them be lost by not securing the boundaries by marks; and, secondly, that the expense of erecting and maintaining the boundary-marks should fall on the holders of land.

It having been decided to introduce a Bill to supply the want, the opportunity had been taken, in the second Part of the Bill, of declaring the power of the Government to order a survey to be made—either a general survey, as of a district, or a special survey, as of a tract of country, such as that now being carried on in the dearahs south of Goalundo for the identification of property, or such as was required in different parts of the country for irrigation purposes. Clauses empowering the Government to order such surveys had been introduced, because there had been a doubt whether the law, as it now stood, did expressly authorize the Government to undertake such surveys for any purposes except those of a revenue settlement. The clauses now proposed would do away with any doubt on this point.

The third Part of the Bill provided for the erection of boundary-marks. It had always, in making a survey, been necessary to have temporary boundary-marks. The civil revenue officer first ascertained the boundaries, which the professional surveyor following him was to survey, and it was necessary, until they had been surveyed, to secure the recognition of them by the erection of petty mounds of earth,—works not of an expensive nature, but in regard to which the co-operation of the villagers and the people about the land was required. Sometimes, where the survey was unpopular, in consequence of its object not being understood, much difficulty had been caused by the removal of the temporary boundary-marks, the people destroying at night what had been set up in the day. That difficulty had been felt in Behar in the survey operations now going on there in connection with the irrigation works. Such mischievous proceedings could not be tolerated, and the Bill contained provisions which would check obstructions of that sort being put in the way of survey officers. Boundary-marks were, under the Bill, divided into temporary marks, which were required to be kept up until the survey was completed, or until permanent marks were erected, and permanent boundary-marks. The provisions of Part III had for their object to enable the Collector to get the temporary marks erected as easily and as promptly as possible with the assistance or by the agency of the local holders of land They were to the effect that the Collector might call upon any occupant to erect such marks as were necessary, and to maintain and keep them in repair until the completion of the survey, or until the erection of permanent boundary-marks. Practically, in any particular length of boundary the Collector would call upon them an who had the greatest influence in the locality and the greatest command of the necessary labour and materials. The use of the term "occupant" was in order to enable the Collector to call upon even a well-to-do ryot to put up temporary boundary-marks. If the ryot happened to be locally the most influential person as regards any particular length of boundary, then the Collector would call upon him rather than upon the absent zemindar, who was perhaps only an annuitant upon the land.

Then, again, on the survey being finished, the Collector might call upon the occupant to put up permanent boundary-marks. As the Bill stood, it provided that the expense neither of the temporary nor of the permanent boundary-marks should rest eventually on the person who had been required to erect them. It was to be refunded to him ; and the Select Committee, to whom the Bill would be referred, might perhaps think it proper to go further and to provide for an advance being given to the occupant, so that even in the first instance the expense might not fall upon him.

The Bill, as it stood, provided that, as soon as the occupant had put up either temporary or permanent boundary-marks, he was to give to the Collector the amount of expenses incurred, and the Collector, after satisfying himself that the charges were reasonable, was to pay the amount. As soon as the Collector had ascertained the whole cost of the boundary-marks put up by the occupant in any convenient tract of country, or the amount he had himself disbursed in that behalf, if he had himself erected the boundary-marks, he would proceed to assess the cost upon the different estates, including the lakhiraj tenures, within which any lands had been distinguished by marks, proportionately to the interest which each had in the boundary-marks put up. In making this assessment, much must of course be left to the discretion of the Collector; everything would depend upon the circumstances of each case.

Having assessed the sum which each estate was bound to pay to refund the Government the cost of erecting the boundary-marks, the Collector would proceed to allot the sum so assessed on each estate amongst those who held permanent tenures therein superior to those of occupancy ryots, and the zemindar, who was bound to pay that lump sum to the Government, would have the same powers given to him for recovering the quota due to him by the different tenure-holders as he had in respect to the recovery of rent from them.

The exact mode of assessment upon the tenure-holders was a difficult question; so difficult, that it seemed to MR. DAMPIER impossible to lay down any general rule upon the subject. It appeared to him that the Collector who knew the locality would be the best judge as to what would be a fair proportion for the tenure-holders to pay according to the situation of the tenures themselves. In some cases it would be simple enough: for instance, where a zemindar had let his whole estate in putnee, and the putneedar again let in durputnee, the latter was obviously the man upon whom the chief expense should fall, and not the zemindar or the putneedar, who would probably, however, have to pay a trifling amount, as representing the contingent benefit they derived in virtue of their position as annuitants upon the estate. But other cases would not be so simple: for instance, the adjustment of the proportions payable respectively by the holder, on the one hand, of a small tenure, of which the boundary marched for some length with that of the mouzah or estate, which boundary was therefore actually demarcated by the boundary-marks of the mouzah, and on the other hand by the holder of a tenure which was situated in the centre of the mouzah, and which, therefore, received a less direct benefit from the erection of the boundary-marks.

The fifth Part of the Bill provided that the Collector, if he came across boundary disputes in the course of his survey, should have the same power of deciding such disputes as he had in cases of settlement; and not only would he have such powers if he came across a case of disputed boundary in the course of a survey, but also if, where the boundaries had once been marked, a dispute arose in consequence of the marks having become obliterated, the Collector might, of his own motion, call upon the parties concerned and say—"We have once decided this boundary and secured it by marks, but you have allowed those marks to be obliterated; we shall again identify the boundary and you must again erect marks."

He would next notice the provision contained in section 32. Under the general law of limitation, when an award was made by the revenue authorities in the course of a settlement (survey officers professed to act under setttlement powers), the parties aggrieved need not bring their civil suit to reverse the award of the revenue officer until three years after the date of the award. The result was frequent alterations in survey maps and records of property after they had been completed, and was productive of much inconvenience, which was brought prominently to the notice of the Government by the Board of Revenue. After consideration and discussion, the Lieutenant-Governor for the time being decided that six months would be a sufficient time to allow for the institution of a civil suit to reverse the award of a revenue officer. It might be objected that this Council had not that power in regard to the law of limitation; but Mr. Dampier thought that if hon'ble members who felt a doubt upon the subject would look into the Limitation Act, they would find that there was specially reserved the power to make special limitations in special cases.

The last point that remained to be noticed was in section 36. The Supreme Government was very decided that the operations now being carried on in Midnapore should be made permanently useful by the erection of boundary-marks, and they agreed to advance the money necessary to erect boundary-marks, pari passu with the survey in the field season just past, on the distinct understanding that provision should be made in the Bill which was to be introduced for the recovery of the amount so advanced in accordance with the practice of other provinces.

Mr. Dampier would repeat what he had said in his previous speech, that there was no idea of going over the old ground which had been already surveyed for the purpose of putting up boundary-marks. It was a great pity that boundary-marks had not been put up; but to go over the old ground again for this one purpose would do more harm than good. Therefore this Bill would only at present come into practical effect in Midnapore, in the survey of which there were about two seasons' work left, and in the dearahs below Goalundo now being surveyed, and probably it would be used for the irrigation surveys which were being carried on in Behar; and also when the Government had a resettlement of their own estates to make, as in Khoorda or in Orissa, it would certainly cause the boundaries, when once ascertained and settled, to be secured by marks. He was not aware that any other operations were now immediately contemplated to which the Bill would apply.

The Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal said there were three or four important points involved in this Bill: firstly, the erection of boundary-pillars; secondly, the cost of erection and its apportionment; thirdly, the recovery of the cost; and fourthly, the question of appeals. As regards the erection of boundary-pillars, the hon'ble mover of the Bill, both when he asked for leave to introduce the Bill and on the present occasion, had clearly elucidated the necessity of doing so: in fact the survey was incomplete without proper demarcation of plots of ground by boundary-pillars, and it was to be regretted that this idea was not carried into effect whilst the survey was going on throughout the country. Practically, as had been pointed out by his hon'ble friend, the benefit to be derived from this Bill would be limited to one district only, or rather to one-half of it, namely Midnapore. The survey had been completed for the rest of the province, and it would entail enormous cost if the work were to be done over again. The survey operations, as the Council were well aware, had been very expensive, not only to the Government, but to all classes of the people interested in the land, and the re-survey of the country could not therefore be carried out without calling into being the many evils which flowed from the first undertaking. But where the survey must be made, it was certainly desirable that demarcations should be effected by the erection of boundary pillars: in fact, the erection of such pillars formed part and parcel, as it were, of the survey system. At the same time he should observe that the benefit expected from this Bill could not be realized in all cases: for the minute and frequent sub-division of property in this country was a great obstacle to the permanency of land-marks. What might be considered permanent marks to-day, might in five years have to be changed in consequence of change of ownership in the same property by the natural operation of the Indian law of inheritance. This was particularly the case with small holdings which were not hampered by a cumbrous partition law. As regards large estates, partitions were not so frequent, simply because the butwarrah law was an almost insuperable obstacle in the way; but this obstacle would to a great extent be removed by the proposed simplification of the butwarrah law. Nevertheless the object of the Bill was good; demarcation of lands by boundary-pillars would be beneficial, and, he hoped, would prevent the frequency of boundary disputes, which at one time use to flood our Courts.

The next point was as to the cost of the erection of boundary-pillars. He confessed that opinions differed on that point. It was urged on one side that the survey was an imperial work; and as the demarcation of lands by the erection of boundary-pillars formed a part and parcel of that work, the State ought to bear the cost of such demarcation and erection. On the other side it was argued that the landholders benefited by the demarcation, and therefore it was but right and proper that they should pay the cost. He submitted that much might be said on both sides of the question. It was true that in all other provinces save Bengal the cost of demarcation was paid by the landholders; but because the Government followed a different principle in other parts of the country, it did not necessarily imply that that principle was right. It should be borne in mind that the State as landlord was interested in knowing how the lands were distributed, and that therefore it ought to bear the cost of demarcation. In private estates in Bengal the zemindar had no power under the law to levy the cost of a survey from the ryots, and the reason was obvious—it was the interest of the zemindar to see how the lands were distributed and parcelled out. Private landholders were undoubtedly interested in the demarcation of the land by boundary-pillars, but the Government was also similarly interested. When estates were sold for default of payment of revenue, if there was not this demarcation of land by boundary-pillars, the new purchaser was put to great difficulty, and the Government was bound to point out to him the land which it had sold. If the Government failed to identify the estate, the sale would become void. He believed there had been some cases of small estates in which the Government could not identify the land, and that consequently the sale became null and void. Then, again, in the case of the dearah lands or alluvial lands, the Government was equally interested as the private landholder. In cases of the formation of chur land, the Government had a right to make a fresh assessment; the zemindar also could claim an abatement of revenue where the land was washed away. It not unfrequently became a matter of dispute between the Government and the private landlord in identifying lands so washed away or so newly formed. It was consequently the interest of both in this wise to see proper boundary-marks put up and maintained for the purpose of future identification of the lands, and it was therefore equitable that the cost should be distributed between the private landlord and the Government.

Then the Bill provided that tenure-holders and other ryots having beneficial interests in the land ought to be made to contribute to the cost of the erection of boundary-pillars. The provisions of this Part of the Bill had been taken from the Embankment Act. Now in the case of embankments, the benefit from such works to parties beneficially interested in the land could be distinctly defined, but he did not think that in cases coming under this Bill the benefit could in all cases be so distinctly traced and described. He admitted that where an entire estate had been let out by the zemindar in putnee, and by the putneedar in durputnee, and by the durputneedar in seputnee, and so on, the under-tenure-holders ought to be made to contribute, because the zemindar and the sub-tenure-holders (except the representative in the last degree) were in such cases mere annuitants; but it was a question for consideration whether all persons, having a beneficial interest in land, however their holdings might be situate, should be made to contribute, though they might not derive any direct benefit from the erection of the boundary-pillars, or though the benefit might be infinitesimal—perhaps more imaginary than real. As hon'ble members were aware, the survey had been made estate by estate, or mouzahwarry. Now there might be numerous tenures or holdings comprised within the estate or mouzah; it might be necessary to erect boundary-pillars at the junctions or borders or parting lines, or where the lands of one estate might be dovetailed into those of another; the only tenures or holdings which might be benefited by the erection of the boundary-pillars would be those which would lie near the boundary line. Would it, under such circumstances, be fair and just to tax all holdings of a permanent nature alike when the benefit derived was not alike? Those whose lands abutted upon the boundary line were directly interested in the establishment and maintenance of boundary-marks, whilst those whose lands were far away from the boundary-towards the centre of the estate or any other part would have little or no interest in the erection of the boundary-marks. It was therefore worthy of consideration whether all persons having a beneficial interest in lands in the estate so demarcated should be made to contribute. Moreover the rule of proportion laid down in the Bill did not seem to be clear. The hon'ble member said that it was a difficult subject, and he therefore proposed to throw the task upon the Collector That officer being upon the spot, would be in a better position to adjust the proportion of interest of the persons benefited by the erection of boundary-pillars. He did not deny the truth of this; but he thought the Council ought to consider whether all persons should be taxed for a work the benefit of which they did not share alike, and whether it would be right in principle to leave it to executive officers to vary the rule of proportion according to their varying judgment.

With regard to the recovery of the cost, he observed that it was proposed to recover it as an arrear of revenue, and to authorize the sale of the estate for default in payment. He submitted that it was not proper or reasonable to proceed at once against the land in case of default of payment of such demands as these. If the moveable property of the debtor was not sufficient to satisfy the claim, it would then be right to proceed against the land. His Honor the President was aware how tenderly the land was dealt with in northern India, but here, Baboo Kristodas Pal regretted to say, an opposite feeling prevailed. Almost every demand of Government was converted into a revenue demand, and the land was sold outright for default. He would therefore suggest, for the consideration of the Select Committee, whether it would not be better to treat this as a State demand and recover it under the certificate procedure, in the same manner as the Council had lately enacted for the recovery of famine advances. It might be easily imagined that the moveable property in cases coming under the Bill would generally be sufficient to satisfy the demand; but if it was not sufficient, then the land might be sold; but he held that it was a questionable policy to sell the land primarily to satisfy a demand which was not, strictly speaking, a revenue demand.

With regard to the question of appeal, he confessed he was not in favour of a multiplicity of appeals, and he entirely went with the hon'ble mover of the Bill in reducing the number of appeals in respect of boundary disputes. At present two appeals were allowed, but under this Bill only one appeal would be allowed from the Collector to the Commissioner; but he was sorry to observe that the Board of Revenue, to whom a second appeal lay, had been deprived of the general power of superintendence and control in proceedings connected with decisions upon boundary disputes. He was of opinion that this general power of control and supervision should not be taken away from the Board. He would not certainly allow parties to appeal to the Board as a matter of right, but leave it optional with the Board to exercise the power in those cases in which they might think fit. There might be cases of peculiar hardship in which the Board might think fit to interfere; but under section 36 the Board would be precluded from exercising such a power.

As for the limitation of time, he observed that the Board of Revenue were divided in opinion. Mr. Money held that it would be amply sufficient to give parties dissatisfied with the decisions of revenue officers in boundary disputes six months' time within which to institute a suit in the civil court; whereas Mr. Campbell, the other Member of the Board, thought that one year ought to be allowed. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL was inclined to support the view taken by Mr. Campbell. He thought six months too short a time, and that it would be quite sufficient to reduce the present period of three years for the institution of a civil suit in a boundary case to one year, as suggested by Mr. Campbell.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said the first point he should notice of those which had been brought forward was the argument that the demarcation as well as the survey was a matter of imperial interest, and therefore the expense should fall upon the Government; or, to substitute another word, upon the general tax-payer rather than upon the landholders. Now, he thought there was a distinction in this respect between the general survey and record of the allotment of the land to the different estates to which it appertained on the one hand, and on the other the demarcation by boundary-marks on the ground of those estates and other local divisions of land which came under such survey. The former process was certainly a matter of general interest and of general statistical utility, which gave it an imperial character. For instance, the record of the distribution of the land in Tirhoot among estates and proprietors would be a matter of interest to the statistician, not only in Tirhoot, but in Chittagong; whereas the securing the boundaries between the different estates and tenures on the ground was a question of purely local interest: it concerned only the local landholders. And so it seemed to him that there was a distinction between the character of the survey operations and that of the operations for securing boundaries on the ground, which fully justified the cost of the former being treated as an imperial charge while the expenses of the latter were localized.

The hon'ble member who spoke last had next said that tenures within an estate might be very differently affected and interested in the demarcation of the particular portion of the boundary of the estate; that one tenure might be situated at the heart of the estate at a distance from the boundary, another might abut on the boundary, and therefore in the demarcation of that portion of the estate, the boundary would be pro tanto a demarcation of the tenure itself. MR. DAMPIER was not quite certain that he understood his hon'ble friend, but he seemed to say that for these reasons the holders of tenures should not be made to contribute to the expense of erecting boundary-marks. If the hon'ble member's meaning was so, MR. DAMPIER could not follow the argument at all. All that had been said seemed to him to point to the conclusion that the greatest latitude must be given to the authority who was in the best position to make a fair assessment with reference to all the local circumstances. If one tenure might be situated on the boundary of an estate, and another at some distance from it, towards the centre of the estate, the officer making the allotment would find that the holder of the tenure situated on the boundary of the estate was much more benefited and interested in the erection of the marks, and ought therefore to bear a higher proportion of the expense than the owner of the tenure situated in the centre of the estate. But it seemed to MR. DAMPIER that no central authority could possibly lay down rules for these matters. If the Select Committee could devise any lines to guide the Collector in the apportionment of the expense, he should not oppose such lines being introduced in the Bill; but he thought it would be found practically impossible to do so.

The suggestion made that the recovery of these expenses should be dealt with, not as arrears of land revenue, but as demands due to the State, MR. DAMPIER thought was worthy of consideration by the Select Committee, and he should be fully prepared to consider it there.

Then the hon'ble member did not approve of the Board's right of supervision being withdrawn in cases of boundary disputes. The principle upon which the Board acted generally, where a discretional power of supervision was given, was this. Where the order of the revenue authorities was final, as in cases of butwarrah, the Board always went carefully into objections and looked into the cases with a view to correcting any defects which they might discover; but where the award of the revenue authorities was only provisional, and where the law provided a remedy in the Civil Court to upset that award, the Board were less willing to interfere. Whatever the Board might do, or might not do, a dissatisfied party would still be sure to go to the Civil Court ultimately, and therefore in cases of that description the Board generally refused to interfere with the quasi-judicial award of the Collector and Commissioner. The Bill followed the same principle.

As to six months being too short a period to allow for the institution of a civil suit to contest the award of a revenue authority, he had in this matter followed the recorded decision of the Lieutenant-Governor for the time being, who passed an order that when a Bill was brought in on this subject, the period of six months should be adopted as the limitation of time for the institution of a civil suit. Personally MR. DAMPIER was inclined to agree with the hon'ble gentleman that one year would be a more proper time to fix. The Select Committee would probably consider the point, and would come to a proper finding.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Schalch, the Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal, and the mover.

REGISTRATION OF JUTE WAREHOUSES.

THE HON'BLE MR. HOGG presented the further report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872, and moved that it be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG also moved that the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

Section 1 was agreed to.

Section 2 having been read—

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved that in clause (7) of section 2, below the figures "250," the figures "200" be inserted. This point, he said, was considered in Select Committee, when some of the members were of opinion that the present minimum rate of fee was quite low enough. But there was a difference of opinion, and he therefore thought fit to give notice of the amendment. He submitted that the present minimum was too high. It was not needed for purposes of revenue, because the working of the Fire-brigade Act for the last two years had left a surplus of nearly Rs. 60,000: on the other hand, it pressed very severely and unnecessarily on the proprietors of small warehouses. It was urged that the lowering of the minimum rate of fee might encourage the establishment of small jute warehouses, which would be a source of danger to property in their vicinity; but he believed that the rules for the grant of licenses contained in section 7 would prove sufficiently discouraging to the establishment of small warehouses, and the Justices would have sufficient discretion in licensing places for the storage of jute. So, all things considered, he thought that the minimum rate of fee was too high, and would therefore propose to reduce it to Rs 200.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he was decidedly opposed to the amendment proposed by his hon'ble friend. The objection to the present minimum rate was that it pressed too severely on small warehouses. He submitted that it was not desirable, especially now, when we were relaxing many of the restrictions which had hitherto hampered the jute trade, to allow small warehouses to exist in the Native part of the town. If a jute warehouse was not sufficiently large to enable it to afford to pay the minimum fee of Rs. 250, he thought it ought not to be allowed to be used for the purpose. We wished to restrict the trade to large warehouses and properly constructed buildings,, and on that ground it appeared to him that a fee of Rs. 250 was by no means too large.

The HON'BLE MR. SCHALCH said he fully agreed with the hon'be mover of the Bill. He considered that all warehouses of the class which would apply for a license of Rs 200 would be a source of great danger to the town, and he would certainly wish to see houses of that kind excluded from the town. There was ample space in the vicinity of the town for the establishment of warehouses of this description, where they were not so much a source of danger, and where the minimum fee at present was Rs. 150, and where also he saw a further amendment, to be proposed by the hon'ble mover, would enable the Municipal Commissioners to reduce it to Rs. 100. It was better that houses of that class should be driven from the town and confined to the suburbs, where the risk to valuable property was not so great.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS said he did not think it was a matter of great importance whether the minimum fee were fixed at Rs. 250 or at Rs. 200; but on the whole he thought it better to adhere to the present rate of Rs. 250. It appeared to him that the tendency of the diminution of the minimum amount would be to lower the character of the buildings used as warehouses. It might be said that the Justices were at liberty to refuse a license to a building not constructed on the conditions specified in the Act; but he would appeal to the hon'ble mover of the amendment whether the exercise of that discretion did not place the Justices in an invidious position, by calling upon them to refuse a license to a building the construction of which the action of the legislature had encouraged by the reduction of the minimum amount of fee.

There was one other matter as to the minimum fee on which he thought the Bill was liable to misconstruction. By the 7th clause of section 2 provision was made for the imposition of four specific rates of fee for the grant of licenses, and in a subsequent part of the section it was provided that the Justices might alter the amount of fee to be paid—

[The Hon'ble Mr. Hogg explained that that provision would be modified by an amendment which he intended to propose.]

The HON'BLE MR. Reynolds expressed himself satisfied with the explanation.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he was going to suggest that in the concluding clause of this section, after the words "amount of the fee," should be inserted the words "in accordance with the rates hereinbefore mentioned." As it now stood, the Justices might think that they were at liberty to alter the rates to other rates not in accordance with the rates fixed by the section; and although he was advised that the clause as it stood was hardly open to that construction, it was wise to remove all possible misapprehension by introducing the words which he had suggested. That, he thought, would meet the objection of the hon'ble member who had last spoken.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said the objection taken to his amendment was simply this, that the lowering of the fee would encourage the establishment of small jute warehouses—an objection which he had anticipated in his opening remarks. He begged to point to clause 3 of the section under consideration, which sufficiently provided against the establishment of warehouses of the class to which they were referring. That clause provided that space should be reserved on land appertaining to the jute warehouse for the loading and unloading of carts. That provision could not be complied with by the proprietors of small jute warehouses; it would be incumbent on the Justices to see that warehouses were provided with sufficient space for loading and unloading, and the amendment could not therefore be said to have a tendency to encourage the establishment of small warehouses. Strictly speaking, if the lowering of the fee were carried, it would only apply to the small warehouses which now existed; and as it was not the object to suppress these, he did not see on what principle of justice the benefit was denied to them, if it was admitted that these small warehouses were not sufficiently remunerative to enable the owners to pay a fee of Rs. 250. It was true that they did pay the fee at present, but it pressed severely upon them; and he thought that in justice to the proprietors of small warehouses the fee ought to be reduced.

The Council then divided:

AYES—4.	NOES—6.
The Hon'ble Nawab Syud Asghar Ali.	The Hon'ble Mr. Brooks.
The Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal.	" " Baboo Juggadanund Mookerjee.
" " Mr. Dampier.	" " Mr. Reynolds.
" " The Advocate-General.	" " Mr. Hogg.
	" " Mr. Schalch.
	" " The President.

The motion was therefore negatived, and the section was passed with the amendment referred to by the HON'BLE MR. HOGG.

Section 3 having been read—

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL proposed to withdraw the next two amendments in his notice.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he thought it would be desirable for the hon'ble member to proceed with the next amendment of which he had given notice, and which was—

"That in section 3 the following words be added:—

"The Justices may from time to time, as they may think fit, at a special meeting, alter the amount of annual fee, to be paid in respect of any jute warehouse for which a license has been heretofore granted."

The Justices, according to the present Act, would have that power with regard to licenses hereafter granted; but as that section would not, he was advised, have retrospective effect, it was necessary in section 3 to add words to the same effect as in section 6, as that would enable the Justices to revise the rate of fee when imposed on existing warehouses. He would therefore adopt the amendment of his hon'ble friend, adding to it the words "in accordance with the rates heretofore specified" after the words "amount of annual fee."

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL then moved his amendment with the addition suggested by the HON'BLE MR. HOGG.

The motion was agreed to.

Sections 4 and 5 were agreed to.

Section 6 having been read—

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said if the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill was willing to reduce the fee in the suburbs, he would move the next amendment standing in his name, namely that in the second paragraph of section 6, the words "and fifty," wherever they occurred, be omitted.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he saw no objection to this amendment, as the objection which applied to small warehouses in the town could not be urged with the same force as regards the suburbs, more especially as the Municipal Commissioners of the suburbs had asked to be allowed a latitude in granting licenses at fixed fees.

The HON'BLE BABOO JUGGADANUND MOOKERJEE thought a discretion should be given to the Municipal Commissioners of the suburbs, and if the amendment was carried, it would be in accordance with their wishes.

The motion was agreed to.

Sections 7 and 8 were agreed to.

Section 9 having been read—

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL moved that the following words be added to the section:—

"Provided that there shall be no double conviction in respect of the same matter both under this and the last preceding section."

His object in moving this amendment was that no two persons should be punished for the same offence. He thought it would be quite sufficient for the purposes of this law if one person were fined for the offence committed, whether he were the occupier of a warehouse, the owner, or any person who infringed the conditions under which the license was granted. This provision was rendered the more necessary by the section of the Bill which declared that where a warehouse was let out in portions, the owner should, for the purposes of the Act, be considered to be the occupier. In such cases the occupier might infringe the law, and the owner might have no control whatever over the occupier's actions. If, however, the Justices could fix the responsibility on the occupier of the particular portion of the premises in which the offence was committed, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not think it would be consistent with justice to proceed against the owner. But if the occupier could not be got at, it would be reasonable to prosecute the owner and punish him. Take another case; a coolie smoked, and he ought to be punished for the offence he committed. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not see why the owner of the warehouse should be punished for the commission of acts which were not strictly under his control. If there was any neglect on the part of the occupier or the owner, there was provision for the cancellation of his license. He believed the object of the Bill would be sufficiently attained if one person, either the owner or the occupier, or any other person convicted of infringement of the law, were punished; but to say that two persons should be punished for the same offence, was not a provision that could be considered sound and equitable.

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said he was not prepared to accept the amendment. He thought the hon'ble member had in a measure misapprehended the bearing of the section. It was not intended by either section 8 or section 9 to punish the owner. By section 8 the person punishable was distinctly stated to be the occupier, and the object was to guard the owner from the vexatious prosecutions to which he had hitherto been subject. According to the sections as they stood, the occupier was rendered liable to punishment and also the person who actually infringed the law. MR. HOGG did not see that it was at all inconsistent that the occupier, who had the management of the property, should be held responsible for the primary control of the establishment under his charge, and that the person who had actually infringed the law in consequence of the lax management of the occupier, or in opposition to his direct orders, should also be liable to punishment. In that we followed the principle of the Penal Code, where the person actually committing an offence and the abettor were both liable to be punished. A similar provision was to be found in the law for the prevention of gambling. Under that law the owner of the gaming-house was held liable for allowing gambling to go on in his house, and the persons engaged in the gambling were also liable to punishment. MR. HOGG therefore trusted the Council would not relieve the occupier from the very proper responsibility imposed upon him by this section. It was the responsibility of controlling his establishment in accordance with the law passed by this Council; nor should they relieve the person actually infringing the law from being liable to punishment for the offence committed by him. He thought that if his hon'ble friend had examined the sections carefully, he would have seen that it was not intended to impose a penalty on both the owner and the occupier, and he would then, in all probability, not have brought forward this amendment.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said that, in reply to what had fallen from his hon'ble friend (Mr. Hogg), he would point to the concluding words of section 4 of the Bill, which were as follows:—

"If any jute warehouse is let out in portions, the person so letting it out and entitled to the rent shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the occupier."

He had referred to cases coming under that provision. Here the owner was deemed to be the occupier; and as his hon'ble friend had observed that the owner had very little control over the occupier, the responsibility should not be fixed upon him; but where the occupier could not be got at, the owner ought certainly to be held liable. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would not relax the provisions of the Bill in the slightest degree, but would only ask the Council to consider whether it was equitable to provide that more than one person should be punished for the same offence.

The motion was negatived, and the section agreed to as it stood.

Section 10 was agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. HOGG the following words were added to section 11, in order to guard against acts already done being interfered with by that section:—

"Except as in this Act expressly provided, nothing in this Act contained shall affect anything done under the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act, 1872."

The rest of the sections, the schedule, and the preamble and title, were agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. HOGG the following words were added to section 6:—

"For which a license has been heretofore, or for which a license may hereafter, be granted."

The HON'BLE MR. HOGG said that as this Bill had been some time before the Council and also before the public, he would, with His Honor the President's permission, move that the Bill be passed as it had been settled in Council that day.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said that as this Bill had been twice before the Select Committee, and as its terms had been very carefully considered by the Council, he thought there could be no objection to the Bill being passed that day, if it were the pleasure of the Council to do so.

The motion was carried and the Bill passed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 13th instant.

THE HASTINGS BRIDGE.

Extract (paragraphs 1 to 6 and 8) from a Resolution, No. 1172, dated the 8th March 1875, of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in the Public Works Department (Local,—Communications).

REMARKS.—The submission of the proposals for restoring the Hastings Bridge over Tolly's Nullah has been very much delayed, and the Superintending Engineer ascribes this to the great pressure of work that has existed in his Office and in that of the Executive Engineer, which prevented the consideration of projects for a new bridge until the arrival of an additional Executive Engineer at the beginning of December last.

2. The exigencies of carrying on Relief Works in the distressed districts rendered it necessary to take from the remaining districts and divisions every man that could possibly be spared, and these districts have for the last year been left with very insufficient establishments. On all sides much that was required has been necessarily left undone, and the Lieutenant-Governor accepts the explanation which has been afforded regarding the delay.

3. The question of keeping up the communication across the mouth of Tolly's Nullah by means of a bridge has been under discussion with the Superintending Engineer.

4. One project contemplated a temporary timber bridge between the abutments of the Hasting's Bridge, but this would have to be closed when the operations for putting up the permanent bridge were commenced, and the convenience to the public arising therefrom could only last for a short time.

5. A floating bridge could be easily put up, but the approaches to it would be very steep, and it would be necessary to open it frequently, at least once a day, at such time as would suit for the passage of boats, with reference to the tide. Heavy traffic could not use such a bridge, and the foot traffic is sufficiently provided for at present.

6. The projects for a permanent bridge having now been received, it is expected that, including arrangements with the contractors, the bridge may be completed within a year, and the Lieutenant-Governor has determined on not constructing a temporary bridge. The Superintending Engineer will be directed to push on the arrangements for the new bridge with reference to the instructions in the following paragraphs.

8. The Executive Engineer may at once collect bricks and put the masonry of approaches in hand agreeably to the design which has been submitted, and no time should be lost in arranging with the contractors.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. E. T. NICOLLS, Colonel, R.E.,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. D.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

PART VI.

Bill of the Legislative Council of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th March 1875 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill for consolidating and amending the Laws relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature in British India was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the appendix and received since April 1865, the date of the presentation of the last report.

1. This Bill has now been before the Council for nearly eleven years. Without having been formally introduced, it was published in 1864. It was introduced and referred to a Committee in the following November. An amended draft was published in April 1865, sent home to the Secretary of State in Council, and by him referred to the Indian Law Commissioners. They were of opinion that the project of consolidation should be deferred, and that it would be better to amend the Code by successive enactments as occasion might demand. The Secretary of State in Council, in his despatch of the 25th February 1867, expressed his concurrence in that opinion.

2. In consequence, the work was broken off. But since the correspondence above referred to, there have been more changes in the law, each tending to make some portion of the existing Code inapplicable to present circumstances. Besides the modifications effected by local Acts, the General Clauses Act of 1868, the Prisoners' Testimony Act of 1869, the General Stamp Act of the same year, the Court Fees' Act of 1870, the Limitation Act of 1871, the Evidence Act of 1872, the Criminal Procedure Code of 1872, the Oaths Act of 1873, have all had this effect to a greater or less extent. And every portion of the Code which becomes useless has, unless it is struck away, the effect of distracting, if not of misleading, those who resort to it.

3. Again, there has now been a much larger number of decisions, which show either some inconvenience in the rules of the Code, or some ambiguity of expression or absence of direction which has given rise to disputes that it is convenient to settle. To a certain extent these matters are settled by judicial decisions. But the decisions, however well they may interpret the language of the Code, do not always lay down the rule which is most beneficial to suitors. And even in the more frequent instances where the decision lays down the best rule, it is often convenient to embody it in the written law.

4. The Government of India has recently decided to make some amendments in the law relating to the execution of decrees. We have embodied the provisions necessary to give effect to this decision; and we have also endeavoured to render more efficient the provisions of the Code which relate to execution-debtors unable to pay their debts.

5. Still the great bulk of the Code remains intact, and so, except by re-arrangement, we propose to leave it. What we have done is to attempt a clearer and more methodical arrangement of the different parts and clauses of the Code than is now the case; to embody in it a number of judicial decisions, some incorporated in the substance of the enactments, some by way of explanation, and some by way of illustration; in one or two instances to lay down rules more generally convenient than those which have been decided to result from the present wording of the Code; to supply some forms of proceeding which may be useful to suitors; and to add a few provisions, some of which are borrowed from the Rules of the High Court of Calcutta, and others from the New York Civil Procedure Code.

6. In re-arranging the Code we have first followed the course of an ordinary suit from the moment that the plaintiff determines to sue, until he obtains execution of his decree. Incidental proceedings (as, for example, when either party dies), suits in particular cases, provisional remedies (such as interlocutory injunctions) and special proceedings are dealt with in subsequent and separate Parts. If an unsuccessful litigant wishes to present an appeal, or to have a judgment reviewed, he will find the law on these subjects in Parts dealing respectively with appeals and reviews. References to the High Courts are also separately dealt with, and the special Rules relating to the Courts established under 24 & 25 Vic., c. 104, are placed in a Part by themselves. The new Code is thus divided into ten Parts, relating respectively to—

I.—Suits in general.
II.—Incidental Proceedings.
III.—Suits in particular cases.
IV.—Provisional Remedies.
V.—Special Proceedings.
VI.—Appeals.
VII.—Review of Judgment.
VIII.—References to the High Court.
IX.—Special Rules relating to the Charter High Courts, and X.—Certain miscellaneous matters.

7. The substantial changes and additions which we have made in and to the Draft of 1865 will be conveniently specified under the Part to which each belongs. But first we have to notice the preliminary sections.

PRELIMINARY.

Section 1.—The local extent of the Bill is declared to be the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts as defined in Act XIV of 1874.

Section 2, Interpretation-clause.—Here are omitted several definitions, some of which have been rendered unnecessary by the General Clauses Act, I of 1868, and others appear to us to be useless. On the other hand, we have inserted definitions of 'Pleader,' 'Foreign Court,' 'Foreign Judgment.' We have also defined 'cause of action' and 'material part of the cause of action,' in accordance with the judgment of Sir A. Bittleston in DeSouza v. Coles, 3 Mad. 384.

Section 3, and Schedule I.—We have omitted from the repealing schedule all the Regulations relating to Civil Procedure which, since 1865, have been repealed, and we have added several Acts relating to the same subject. It will be seen that Sections 15 and 192 of Act VIII of 1859 are for the present to be left untouched. The former section relates to declaratory suits: the latter to specific performance. Both subjects will properly be dealt with by a Bill relating to specific and preventive relief, and the sections in question will then be repealed.

Section 4.—This applies to the new Code the references in previous Acts to Act VIII of 1859 or 'the Code of Civil Procedure,' and saves the Oudh Civil Courts Act of 1871, the Panjáb Appeals Act of 1873, and the Burma Courts Act of 1875.

PART I.—OF SUITS IN GENERAL.

This Part is intended to deal with litigation in the simplest case, from the time that the plaintiff decides on suing and has to select his forum to the time when, having obtained a decree, he proceeds to execute it. It is divided into eighteen chapters relating to the following subjects:—

I.—The jurisdiction of the Courts and res judicata.
II.—The place of suing.
III.—Parties, their appearances, applications and acts.
IV.—The frame of the suit and the form of the plaint.
V.—The institution of suits.
VI.—Service of summons on the defendant.
VII.—The appearance of the parties and the consequence of non-appearance.
VIII.—Written statements.
IX.—The examination of the parties at the first hearing.
X.—The admission, inspection, production and impounding of documents.
XI.—The settlement of issues.
XII.—The disposal of the suit at the first hearing.
XIII.—Adjournments.
XIV.—Summoning witnesses.
XV.—Examination of parties and witnesses.
XVI.—Judgment and decree.
XVII.—Costs.
XVIII.—Execution of decrees.

CHAPTER I.—OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND Res Judicata.

Section 10.—This lays down the law as to Lis Pendens, and contains an explanation declaring that the pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts of British India from entertaining a suit founded on the same cause of action.

Section 13.—This deals with res judicata, and incidentally with foreign judgments. Like section 6 of the Bill of 1865, it is, to a large extent, founded on the definition in Livingston's Code of Evidence. We have thought it desirable to add a number of illustrations, likely, we hope, to facilitate the comprehension of this most difficult head of law. As res judicata is not a plea to the jurisdiction, but a plea in bar, the place of this section may be objected to. But the circumstance that the corresponding section (2) of Act VIII of 1859 stands in the forefront of the present Code, and the convenience of having so important a clause in a prominent position, seem to us in this instance to outweigh considerations of logical arrangement.

CHAPTER II.—OF THE PLACE OF SUING.

Section 15 specifies the suits whose forum is fixed with reference to the situation of the subject-matter. Such are suits relating to immoveable property and suits for moveables which have been distrained or attached. An exception is made in the case of suits to obtain relief respecting land where (as in the case of specific performance of a contract of sale) the relief sought can be obtained through the personal obedience of the defendant. Such suits may be brought either in the Court which has jurisdiction over the land or in the Court which has jurisdiction over the person of the defendant.

Section 16 (the latter part of section 10 of the Bill of 1865 and section 61) deals with the suits to be instituted where the defendant resides, or where the cause of action arose. The principal changes which we have made are these:—Where there are several defendants, only some of whom reside, &c., within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction, we think that the suit should not be instituted in the Court unless either (a) the leave of the Court is given, or (b) the non-residents acquiesce.

We have framed two sections (17, 18) to provide for the case of a suit being instituted in a Court within whose jurisdiction only part of the cause of action arose, and where all the defendants do not reside. In such a case we think that any defendant should be allowed to move the Court to stay proceedings; and that if the Court thinks that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted in another Court, it may stay proceedings either finally or till further orders. In such case of course the plaintiff should not pay a second Court-fee, and the interval between the institution of the suit and the date of staying proceedings should be excluded in computing the period of limitation applicable thereto. For this, section 19 provides.

Section 20.—This declares that suits for actionable wrongs may be brought either where the wrong is committed or where the defendant resides.

CHAPTER III.—OF PARTIES AND THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS AND ACTS.

Sections 27—31 are new, and contain rules as to parties, their joinder, non-joinder, misjoinder, founded to some extent on the New York Code, sections 117, 118, 119, 120.

Section 34.—Here we have settled a moot point by declaring that a partner is not, as such, a 'recognized agent.'

Sections 40 and 41 —Here we have authorised the Court (a) to make one of several plaintiffs a defendant; (b) to strike out of the plaint the name of a person improperly made a party; (c) to stay proceedings against such a person.

CHAPTER IV.—OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT AND THE FORM OF THE PLAINT.

Section 42 declares that every plaint shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a single decision upon the whole subject in dispute.

Sections 44 and 45 deal with the subject of multifariousness.

Section 49, as to the particulars to be contained in the plaint. Here we have added some Explanations to indicate that the plaint must shew (a) that where the plaintiff sues in a representative character, he has taken the steps necessary to enable him to sue; (b) that the defendant is, or claims to be, interested in the subject-matter, and that he is liable to be called on to answer the plaintiff's demand. We have also provided that in money-suits the plaint should, as far as practicable, state the amount sued for.

Section 52.—Here we have explained that a plaint cannot be altered so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character.

Section 54.—We have provided for rejecting the plaint when it appears therefrom that the suit is barred by any positive rule of law.

Section 55 provides (in accordance with a Circular Order of the High Court, Fort William) a procedure (a) on rejecting, (b) on returning, a plaint.

Section 57 provides, in accordance with another Circular of the same High Court, for endorsing a memorandum of documents filed by the plaintiff along with the plaint.

Section 59 (=Act V of 1866, section 14,) deals with suits on lost negotiable instruments.

Section 67 (=section 79 of the Bill of 1865, section 43 of Act VIII,) provides that the summons to appear and answer shall order the defendant to produce 'documents containing evidence relating to the merits of the plaintiff's case,' and not 'documents of which the plaintiff demands inspection.'

CHAPTER VI.—SERVICE OF SUMMONS ON THE DEFENDANT.

Section 81.—In the Presidency Towns we have provided that the Courts to which Mofussil summonses are sent for service shall be the Courts of Small Causes.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

Our changes in this matter are merely verbal.

CHAPTER VIII.—OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS.

Section 103.—We have added words to shew that the Court shall deal with recorded statements as if given in evidence.

Section 105, as to set-off.—We have amended and illustrated this section, which represents section 121 of Act VIII of 1859. As now altered, it applies to any suit for the recovery of money; provides that in the claim of the defendant against the plaintiff, the parties must fill the same character as they fill in the plaintiff's suit, and declares that the sum claimed to be set-off must be ascertained and legally recoverable, and that the set-off must be claimed at the first hearing and not afterwards, except with the permission of the Court.

Section 106.—We have provided that a party wilfully disobeying the Court's requisition of a written statement, shall be liable to the penalties provided by section 176 of the Penal Code.

Section 108.—Here we have added a clause declaring that persons exempted from attendance in Court are not exempted thereby from subscribing and verifying written statements.

CHAPTER IX.—OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES AT THE FIRST HEARING.

We have left this subject untouched.

CHAPTER X.—OF THE ADMISSION, INSPECTION, PRODUCTION, IMPOUNDING AND RETURN OF DOCUMENTS.

Section 113.—This provides that either party may exhibit to the other any document material to the suit, and request an admission in writing of its genuineness. The party refusing to give the admission is chargeable with the expense of proving its genuineness, unless the Court thinks there were good reasons for the refusal. A similar clause is contained in the Common Law Procedure Act, 15 & 16 Vic., cap. 76, sections 117, 118. Doubts have been expressed as to the policy of enacting such a clause in India, and we hope to receive the opinions of competent authorities on the matter.

Section 114 relates to inspection (which implies production) of documents. It represents sections 71 and 157 of the Bill of 1865; sections 40 & 107 of Act VIII. But it provides for obtaining inspection and copies of documents only when they contain evidence relating to the merits of the suit or the defence therein.

Section 115, as to sending for official records and papers.—We have provided, in accordance with a ruling by Phear, J., (1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 283) that applications under this section must be supported by an affidavit showing how the record or paper is material.

CHAPTER XI.—OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

Section 127.—We have here explained the term 'issues,' and provided that, when issues both of fact and of law arise in the same suit, and the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, those issues may be tried first.

Section 128.—To the materials from which issues may be framed, we have added the contents of documents produced by either party.

Section 130.—We have here expressly empowered the Court, at any time before passing a decree, to strike out any issue appearing to be wrongly framed or introduced. This is in accordance with a ruling of the High Court at Fort William (3 Suth. W. R. 147, 150).

CHAPTER XII.—DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING.

Section 135.—We think that where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only, the judgment should not be pronounced unless all the parties are present and none of them object. The introduction of a clause to this effect is the only change that we have made in reference to this subject.

CHAPTER XIII.—OF ADJOURNMENTS.

Section 138.—We have here slightly enlarged the discretion of the Court as to costs occasioned by adjournments.

CHAPTER XIV.—OF SUMMONING WITNESSES.

Section 150.—We have here revived the provisions of the repealed Act XIX of 1853, section 28, as to fines on witnesses failing to appear.

Section 154.—We have added an explanation to shew that, before ordering the apprehension of a person summoned to give evidence as a witness, there must be reason to believe that he has no lawful excuse for failing to comply with the summons; and we have explained (section 155) that 'lawful excuse' is such an excuse as, under the Evidence Act, justifies a refusal to give the evidence.

CHAPTER XV.—OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES AND WITNESSES.

Section 163.—We have provided that nothing in this section (which empowers the Court to pass a decree against a party who improperly refuses to attend to give evidence) shall enable the Court to decree a claim which, on the face of the record, is not warranted by law.

Section 165.—This expressly provides that the rules as to witnesses shall apply to a party summoned as a witness.

CHAPTER XVI.—OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

Section 186.—We have here declared that the decree shall agree with the judgment, and empowered the Court to amend the former, if found to be at variance with the latter.

Section 191, as to decrees in suits for land. We have here defined 'mesne profits' in accordance with a decision of Hobhouse, J., reported in 8 Suth. C. R. 104, and with a view to ensure the speedy execution of such decrees, we have precluded the Courts from giving mesne profits for more than one year from the date of the decree.

Section 193 deals with administration-suits, a subject wholly untouched by the Bill of 1865 or the present Code. The Court, before making its final decree, will order such accounts and enquiries to be taken and made and give such order and directions as it thinks fit. Forms of the preliminary order and the final decree will be found in Schedule IV.

Section 194 authorises the Court, in suits for dissolution of partnership, to make preliminary orders fixing a day for the dissolution, appointing a Receiver of the partnership-assets and directing accounts to be taken. This subject is also untouched by Act VIII of 1859 or the Bill of 1865. Forms of the preliminary order and the final decree will be found in Schedule IV.

CHAPTER XVII.—OF COSTS.

Section 198.—We have here provided that the want of jurisdiction to try the case is no bar to the exercise of the power to give costs.

Costs will as a rule follow the event. But when the Court otherwise directs, we think that it should state its reasons in writing.

We have been in doubt whether it is well to attempt here to lay down any rules about costs. There is no question that, in the vast majority of contested cases, costs should follow the event, but there are cases in which litigation is resorted to without cause, and the blame of it rests with the party who gets the decree. In such cases the winning party may fairly be left to bear his own costs, or even, where he is much to blame, to pay the costs of the loser. In most of these cases, however, the suit is immediately met by proper concessions on the part of the defendant, as, e. g., by payment into Court, in which case we have tried to lay down some rule about costs. See below sections 367 and 368.

The practical question is, whether it is likely to be useful to the Courts if the Code contains something applicable to contested cases; and the point is one on which we should be glad of opinions from those who have had occasion to study it.

Section 201.—This provides that there shall be no appeal or re-hearing on a question of costs, except when it distinctly appears on the face of the proceedings, either that the costs are payable out of or chargeable on some property, or that the mode in which they have been given is inconsistent with some enactment.

CHAPTER XVIII.—EXECUTION OF DECREES.

On this portion of the Code more questions have been raised and more cases decided than on any other. Our amendments have accordingly been rather numerous. But, with two exceptions—the clauses in section 218, as to applications to execute decrees for the payment of money or delivery of property, and the sections (314-328) relating to insolvency—they will be found not to make any great change in substance. We proceed to specify these amendments, omitting mere changes in wording and arrangement.

Section 202.—We have here touched on the mode of executing decrees for the delivery of a share of the dwelling-house of an undivided Hindú family (2 Wym. Rep. 217).

Section 203.—Here we have embodied a ruling of the High Court, Fort William (1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 307), that in a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights a decree for the plaintiff shall be declaratory only, and shall be enforced in case of disobedience only by attachment.

Section 215.—We have here made it clear that property liable to attachment must be saleable, and, in accordance with decided cases, we have expressly exempted (a) necessary wearing apparel, (b) books of account, (c) mere rights to sue, (d) the right to perform the service of an idol, (e) stipends allowed to pensioners of Government, (f) salaries of servants of Government, (g) an expectancy of succession by survivorship, and (h) a right to future maintenance.

Section 219.—We have given the Court a discretionary power to refuse execution at the same time against the person and the property of the judgment debtor. Sir Barnes Peacock (8 Suth. C. R., 282, 284) held that the Court had the power, but it is well to give it expressly.

We here propose to make the following important change in the law as to applications to execute decrees for the payment of money or the delivery of other property :—

Where an application to execute such a decree has been made and granted, no subsequent application to execute the same decree shall be granted unless the Court is satisfied that, on the former application, due diligence was used to procure complete execution; and no such subsequent application shall be made after the expiration of twelve years from any of the following dates :—

(a) the date of the decree sought to be enforced : or,

(b) where the decree directs payment or delivery by instalments, the date of the default in paying or delivering the instalment in respect of which the applicant seeks to enforce the decree : or

(c) where the decree is for money and the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor have entered into an agreement in writing that the amount decreed, with interest, shall be discharged by such instalments as, if duly paid, will discharge the said amount and interest at some time within thirty years from the date of the decree, the date of the default in paying the required instalment :

Provided that a decree-holder may apply for execution of his decree after the expiration of the term of twelve years where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented execution at some time within twelve years immediately before the date of the application.

Section 220.—Here, in accordance with another ruling of Sir B. Peacock's (9 Suth. W. R. 232), we have declared that when a decree against several persons has been transferred to one of them, he shall not be entitled to have it executed against the others. His remedy is a suit for contribution.

In section 221.—We have here provided that every transferree of a decree shall hold it subject to the equities (if any) which the judgment-debtor might have enforced against the transferor.

Section 222 deals with cross-decrees. We have provided for the casus omissus of the two sums decreed being equal, and we have added explanations in accordance with the rulings reported in 6 Suth. F. B. 72, and 7 Suth. 535. In section 223 we have dealt with the subject of cross-claims under the same decree.

Section 225 treats of applications for execution against the representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor We have expressly provided that such representative shall be liable to the extent of the property of the deceased which has come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of.

In section 251, as to applications by a person, other than the defendant, who is dispossessed of property in execution of a decree, we have declared that, in hearing such applications, the Court shall confine itself to the grounds specified in the section, and that no such application shall be made by a person to whom the defendant has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree is made (6 Suth. 148).

Section 253.—To this section (as to attachment of property in execution of a decree for money) we have added an explanation showing that a decree for mesne profits or any other matter the amount of which in money is to be subsequently determined, is a 'decree for money' within the meaning of this section.

In section 254 we have removed a doubt as to the powers of a person executing a general attachment of moveables who has gained access to a house.

To section 258 we have added a clause shewing how a prohibitory order is to be notified where the debt to be attached is due by a public company to one of its servants.

In section 264 we have provided that private alienations of attached property during the continuance of the attachment shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment, and not merely as against the party on whose application the attachment was made.

Section 268.—We have here provided that, when the Court grants a certificate authorizing the judgment-debtor to sell, mortgage or lease land attached, the year mentioned in section 233 (after which he may be called on to shew cause why the decree should not be executed) shall be computed from the date of the expiry of the certificate.

Section 270.—We have here specified with more particularity than is done by the Bill of 1865, section 391, the liabilities of managers of attached property.

Section 272.—Here we have given power to the Local Governments, with the sanction of the Government of India, to make special rules for any territory, imposing conditions in respect to the sale of land in execution of decrees for money.

Section 274.—We have added a clause prohibiting execution-sales on holidays or any other day on which the Court is closed (3 Suth. Misc. 24.)

Section 276.—It has been held that the Collector is a mere ministerial officer under the corresponding section of the present Code, and that he has no discretion as to postponing sales, fixing an upset price, or any other matter affecting the substance of the sale. And it is suggested that the Collector ought to have discretion in such matters, or even some larger power to make arrangements for payment of the debt by some means short of an absolute sale of the land. The point is one on which we should be glad of opinions from those who have been led to study it. It will be remembered that, in section 272, we propose to give power to the Executive to make special rules on the subject of sales of land.

Section 277.—Connected with this section is a point of considerable difficulty. The corresponding section of the Code, namely, section 249, directs that nothing is to be sold but the right, title and interest of the defendant in the property described as put up for sale. It would seem that the seller could not, if he wished, sell anything more specific. And it has been decided with reference to section 258 of the Code that if the judgment-creditor makes a mistake and puts up for sale the property of an entire stranger, and the purchaser concludes the purchase under that mistake, he cannot, when ousted by the true owner, recover his purchase-money, but that the judgment-creditor who has sold him nothing is entitled to keep the money. The combination of these two rules seems calculated to introduce a speculative character into execution-sales, which must be very damaging to the property sold. We understand that in fact it is very common for land to be sold at an undervalue at such sales. To avoid this mischief we have proposed two alterations. In this section, 277 of the present draft, we say that the best practicable description shall be given of the property to be sold. And in section 293, corresponding with section 258 of the Code, we say that the purchaser may recover his purchase-money if the property put up for sale is that of a stranger and he is ousted from it. We shall be glad to know of those who are familiar with the subject whether the fact really is that property is apt to be sold at an undervalue in execution-sales, and if so, to what cause they impute it, what they think of the alterations now proposed, and whether any remedy has occurred to them by which more security can be given to purchasers with the view of obtaining better prices for land.

In section 283, as to the confirmation of an execution-sale, for 'absolute,' we have substituted 'absolutely binding on the vendor.'

Section 287.—Where the purchaser fails to make the requisite deposit or to pay the balance of the purchase-money, we have provided that the deficiency of price (if any) on the re-sale, and the expenses of such re-sale, shall be certified to the Court, and shall, at the instance of either the judgment-creditor or the judgment-debtor, be re overable from the defaulter under the rules for the execution of money-decrees.

Section 288.—We have here provided (in accordance with the practice of the Court of Chancery) that the decree-holder shall not, except with the express permission of the Court, purchase the property sold in execution of his decree.

Sections 290, 291.—In case of irregular sales of moveables, we have provided that the person injured thereby may not only sue the person injuring him, but may also sue for the recovery of the specific property and for compensation in default of recovery. And in case of such sales of immoveable property, we have declared that the purchaser may apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground that the person whose interest in the property purported to be sold had no such interest (see 5 Bomb. O. C. J. 83).

Section 294.—We have re-drawn this section so as to make it clear that a certificate of sale of land is, for the purpose of the stamp-law, to be regarded as a conveyance.

Section 305.—We have here made some additions to the law as to payment out of assets in execution of a decree. We have declared that out of such assets—whether realised by sale or otherwise—the decree-holder on whose application the property was first attached is entitled to be first paid, provided that the attachment was in execution of a money-decree then capable of being completely executed (21 Suth. 66). We have expressly saved the rights of the Crown, and we have declared that if any of such assets be paid to a person not entitled to receive them, the rightful owner may compel a refund (9 Suth. 514). Where the judgment-debtor is declared an insolvent, the provisions as to priority contained in this and the following section will be overridden by the rules as to distribution prescribed by section 325.

Section 307.—When the Court finds, upon the application of the holder of a decree, that any other decree under which property has been attached was improperly obtained, we have, in addition to the powers given by section 432 of the Bill of 1865 (= section 272 of Act VIII), authorised the Court to stay the proceedings and refer the parties to a regular suit.

As to discharge from imprisonment under a decree, we have provided that a defendant once discharged shall not be re-arrested under that decree.

The most important alterations in this part of the Bill will be found in sections 314 to 328, corresponding with sections 433 to 436, and 444 to 450 of the Bill of 1865, and sections 273, 280, 281 of Act VIII and section 8 of Act XXIII of 1861. They provide an insolvent law for persons arrested or imprisoned in execution of money-decrees. The chief changes which we have made are these: (a) the Court (i. e., the District Court or such other Court as the Local Government may invest with the powers of a District Court under these sections) may cause a copy of the would-be insolvent's application to be served, not merely on the decree-holder, but also on any other of his creditors; (b) the Court may also grant leave to any of the creditors to bring forward evidence to shew that the applicant is not entitled to be declared an insolvent; (c) the Court may declare the applicant an insolvent and appoint a Receiver in whom all the insolvent's property will vest (section 321); (d) the Receiver will then collect the assets, and on his certifying that the insolvent has done all in his power for that purpose, the Court may discharge the latter. The Court will then frame a schedule of creditors and their respective debts (section 324). Creditors not mentioned in the schedule may apply to have their names inserted, and creditors mentioned therein may apply to have the schedule altered; and the Receiver will, under the direction of the Court, convert the assets, discharge any debts or fines due by the insolvent to the Crown, distribute the balance rateably among the scheduled creditors without any preference, and pay the surplus (if any) to the insolvent.

As to the effect of the discharge, we have made no substantial change, except that the insolvent will not be liable to be arrested or imprisoned on account of any of the scheduled debts, not merely (as provided by section 449 of the Bill of 1865) on account of the decree under which he was imprisoned, and that his property shall be liable to attachment until the decrees against him held by the scheduled creditors either are fully satisfied or become by lapse of time incapable of being executed.

We have considered whether it would be desirable to extend the law so as to enable a person not arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree to apply to be declared an insolvent. But, on the whole, we think that this change would be too great for the machinery at present available in many parts of India.

Section 331.—We have here provided for the execution of Mofussil decrees within the Presidency Towns.

PART II.—OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

The second Part of our draft deals with the incidental proceedings which take place (a) on the death, marriage or insolvency of parties to a suit; (b) on the withdrawal and adjustment of suits; (c) on payment into Court; (d) on requiring security for costs; (e) on setting aside decrees by default and ex parte, and (f) on the issue of commissions.

CHAPTER XIX.—OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

Section 358.—We have here inserted an explanation to shew that a certificate of heirship, or a certificate to collect debts, does not of itself constitute the holder the legal representative of the deceased.

CHAPTER XX.—OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Section 364.—We have limited the power of the Court to permit withdrawal with liberty to sue again, to cases when the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect; and we have declared that nothing in this section shall authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

CHAPTER XXI.—OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Section 368.—We have here altered the Bill of 1865 in accordance with the following views:—If the plaintiff accept the amount paid-in only as satisfaction in part of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; but if the Court decides that the payment has been a full satisfaction, the plaintiff should pay the costs of the suit. If, however, the plaintiff accepts the amount as satisfaction in full, the Court should pass judgment accordingly; and in awarding costs it should consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation.

CHAPTER XXII.—OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

We have made no change in this chapter, which corresponds with sections 63 and 64 of the Bill of 1865, sections 34 and 35 of Act VIII of 1859.

CHAPTER XXIII.—OF SETTING ASIDE DECREES BY DEFAULT AND EX PARTE.

This chapter corresponds with sections 172 to 175 of the Bill of 1865, section 119 of Act VIII of 1859. Here, too, we have made no change.

CHAPTER XXIV.—OF COMMISSIONS.

This chapter deals with (a) commissions to examine witnesses; (b) commissions for local investigations; (c) commissions to investigate accounts, and (d) general provisions applicable to all such commissions. Under (a) we have inserted a section (385) to provide for the case of the witness being in jail, and under (d) we have declared that the commissioner shall take down all questions and answers and make a note of the objections (if any) to the admissibility of evidence. We have made no other substantial change.

PART III.—OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

Part III deals with suits in particular cases, and herein with (a) suits by paupers; (b) suits by or against Government or Government servants; (c) suits by or against Native or foreign rulers; (d) suits by or against corporations and companies; (e) suits by and against trustees, executors and administrators; (f) suits by or against minors and persons of unsound mind; (g) suits by infirm persons and women; (h) suits by or against military men; (i) suits by stakeholders, otherwise called interpleader-suits.

CHAPTER XXV.—SUITS BY PAUPERS.

The principal additions which we have here made are as follows:—We have provided that the Court shall hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the petition and the evidence, the petitioner is or is not disqualified from suing as a pauper. We have declared that the pauper shall not be exempt from paying (a) the expense of serving process, (b) the expenses of witnesses, (c) the duty and penalty payable on unstamped or insufficiently stamped instruments which he produces; and we think that, if he resides out of British India, he should not be exempt from giving security for costs. We have provided that if he succeeds he shall have such costs as the Court thinks fit, and that if he fails the Court may order him to pay costs to the defendant, and further, if the suit is frivolous or vexatious, punish him with a small fine and a month's imprisonment. Lastly, we have introduced a section (411) as to dispaupering, a subject ignored both by the Bill of 1865 and by Act VIII of 1859.

CHAPTER XXVI.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST GOVERNMENT OR GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

The only change that we have here made is in section 427 (= section 334 of the Bill of 1865). We think that, where the officer against whom execution of a decree against Government is applied for neglects to satisfy the decree, the Court, whether it be the High Court or subordinate thereto, should report directly to the Local Government: and we think that the period after which execution may issue on such unsatisfied decree should be computed from the date on which the report reaches Government.

CHAPTER XXVII.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST NATIVE AND FOREIGN RULERS.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES.

In neither of these chapters have we made any change calling for notice.

CHAPTER XXIX.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

Section 431.—We have here somewhat modified the provisions as to executors, administrators and trustees, found in section 9 of the Bill of 1865. We have provided that, in all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, &c., he shall represent the beneficiaries, and that, unless the Court otherwise direct, they need not be made parties.

Where there are several executors or administrators, we have provided, in accordance with the practice of the Court of Chancery, that (except in the case of executors who have not proved as executors, and administrators who are beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction) they must all be made parties to a suit against one or more of them.

We have also provided that, unless the Court directs otherwise, the husband of a married administratrix or executrix shall not be a party to a suit by or against her.

CHAPTER XXX.—SUITS BY OR AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

We have substituted this chapter (which is substantially taken from the rules of the High Court at Fort William, dated 10th June 1871) for the somewhat meagre section (40) of the Bill of 1865, relating to suits by or against infants. The persons of unsound mind to whom it applies (section 462) do not include those who have been found so by inquisition.

CHAPTER XXXI.—SUITS BY INFIRM PERSONS AND WOMEN.

We have made no change here.

CHAPTER XXXII.—SUITS BY AND AGAINST MILITARY MEN.

The only addition here made is an explanation of the term 'commanding officer' used in section 464 (= section 37 of the Bill of 1865, section 19 of Act VIII of 1859). In this we have followed the Indian Articles of War, Act V of 1869.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—INTERPLEADER.

This chapter is altogether new. It shews, section 469, when an interpleader suit may be instituted; section 470, what the plaint should state; section 471, when the thing claimed should be paid into Court; section 472, the procedure at the first hearing; section 473, when tenants or agents may compel their landlords or principals to interplead; section 474, how the plaintiff's costs may be secured, and lastly, section 475, the procedure where a defendant in an interpleader suit is actually suing the stakeholder in another suit. We trust that this chapter will prove an efficient substitute for Act VIII of 1841, which, accordingly, we propose to repeal.

PART IV.—PROVISIONAL REMEDIES.

By these we mean (a) arrest before judgment; (b) attachment before judgment; (c) temporary injunctions; (d) appointment of Receivers and Managers.

CHAPTER XXXIV.—OF ARREST BEFORE JUDGMENT.

CHAPTER XXXV.—OF ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

We have left these provisions substantially untouched.

CHAPTER XXXVI.—OF TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS.

This chapter deals only with temporary, or, as they are sometimes called, provisional, injunctions. The subject of perpetual injunctions will more fitly be dealt with by a Bill relating to specific and preventive relief.

We have here inserted a section (495) to authorise the issue of temporary injunctions to restrain fraudulent removals of property pending a suit. We have provided (section 497) that, in all cases except those of great urgency, the Court shall, before granting an injunction, direct notice of the application for the same to be given to the opposite party. And we have declared (section 498) that an injunction directed to a corporation shall be binding on all its members and officers whose personal action it seeks to restrain.

CHAPTER XXXVII.—APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS AND MANAGERS.

To this chapter we have added a section providing that, when the subject-matter of a suit is capable of delivery, and any party admits that he holds it as a trustee for another party, or that it belongs to another party, the Court may order it to be deposited in Court, or delivered to the latter.

PART V.—SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

Part V treats of the following special proceedings, namely, (a) reference to arbitration; (b) proceedings on agreement of parties; (c) summary proceedings on negotiable instruments.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.—REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

The only substantial changes which we have made are in section 507, where we have provided that, when once a matter is referred, the Court shall not deal with it in the same suit unless the reference be fruitless, in which case the Court may supersede the arbitration and restore the suit to the file; in section 508, where we have struck out the reference to an uneven number of arbitrators, and in section 520, where we have declared that an award remitted for reconsideration becomes void on the arbitrators' refusal to reconsider it, and that no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court. In section 527 we have provided that the Court to which the application therein mentioned must be made shall be the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the whole matter to which the award relates.

CHAPTER XXXIX.—OF PROCEEDINGS ON AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

In section 531 we have provided that every such agreement shall be filed in the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction in the matter to which it relates. We have made no other change.

CHAPTER XL.—OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

This corresponds with Act V of 1866, ss. 2—8. We have made only a few formal changes therein.

PART VI.—OF APPEALS.

Part VI treats of Appeals. We first declare (s. 541) that, except as provided by the Code or by some other law for the time being in force, no appeal shall lie, and we then deal (chapter XLII) with appeals from original decrees; (chapter XLIII) with appeals from appellate decrees; (chapter XLIV) with appeals from orders; (chapter XLV) with pauper appeals, and lastly (chapter XLVI) with appeals to the Queen in Council. It will have been observed that we have discarded the misleading terms 'regular appeals' and 'special appeals.'

CHAPTER XLI.—BAR OF APPEALS NOT EXPRESSLY PERMITTED.

We have already mentioned this chapter, which corresponds with section 622 of the Bill of 1865.

CHAPTER XLII.—OF APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

Section 547.—We think that the Court should not rest its decision on any ground not set forth by the appellant, unless the respondent has had sufficient opportunity of meeting the appellant's case on that ground.

Section 557.—We have here provided that the Appellate Court shall not stay execution of a decree which has been appealed against, unless irreparable injury may result to the appellant, if execution is not stayed, and unless the application is made without unreasonable delay. We have further empowered the Court, if it grant the application, to impose terms on the appellant.

Section 571.—Where an appeal is heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent, and judgment is given against him, we have here provided for his obtaining a re-hearing in case of his having been prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on.

When the respondent gives notice of any objection to the decree which he might have taken by way of appeal, we have restricted him to raising questions between himself and the appellant. He should not, we think, be allowed to raise questions between himself and any other respondent or defendant.

In the section (573) relating to remand by an Appellate Court, we have provided that the Court of first instance may be directed, not only to investigate the suit on the whole merits, but also to try a particular issue, or to take certain specified evidence. When a case is remanded for the purpose of taking certain specified evidence, we think that the Court to which the case is remanded should take no other evidence in the case.

Section 575.—We have here provided for the re-settlement by the Appellate Court of defective issues.

Section 578.—When the Appellate Court frames issues and refers them for trial to the Court of first instance, we think that it should also have power to prescribe the manner in which the additional evidence should be taken and the points to which it should be confined.

Section 587.—When the decree appealed against is reversed, we have declared (in accordance with Sir B. Peacock's ruling in 1 Beng. A. C. 50) that the judgment of the Appellate Court shall state the relief to which the appellant is entitled.

Section 589.—Where the appeal is heard by two Judges, who differ in opinion on a point of law, we think that they should confer together, and that the case should be re-argued upon that point before one or more of the other Judges, and determined according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges before whom the point is argued, including the Judges who first heard the appeal. We have altered to this effect the corresponding section (533) of the Bill of 1865 (=Act XXIII of 1861, section 23). Where the appeal is heard by more Judges than two, if their opinions are equally divided, we think (section 590) that the decree appealed from should be taken as affirmed, and that there should be no reference to the opinion of the senior Judge.

CHAPTER XLIII.—OF APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

In view of the discussion which is pending on this subject, we have not thought it prudent to introduce any changes of principle here. But we wish to express our opinion that the effects of the present law are by no means satisfactory, because frivolous cases are thereby admitted to second appeal, important ones are excluded from it, and the High Courts are fettered by rigid rules in dealing with the cases which come up to them. We think it would be desirable to classify the suits which are admitted to second appeal rather by their importance than by the accident of their involving some question of law or practice. This would be in accordance with the proposals made in the pending Civil Appeals Bill for Bengal. The point is one on which we should be glad to receive opinions from the local authorities.

The only change which we have here made is the introduction of a clause (608) providing for the case of a change of the pleader who has signed the certificate that the grounds of appeal are reasonable.

CHAPTER XLIV.—OF APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

We have added to the list of appealable orders those made under section 17 for staying proceedings in a suit, orders made under section 111 or 112 where a party refuses to answer a question put by the Court or fails to appear, orders in insolvency-matters, orders as to paupers under section 409, and orders as to interpleader-suits.

CHAPTER XLV.—OF PAUPER APPEALS.

Here our changes have been merely formal.

CHAPTER XLVI.—OF APPEALS TO THE QUEEN IN COUNCIL.

This chapter reproduces the provisions of the recently passed Act VI of 1874, which the Bill proposes to repeal.

PART VII.—OF REVIEWS OF JUDGMENT.

Part VII deals with reviews of judgment. We think that the evidence on the discovery of which a review is obtainable should be, not only 'new,' but 'important' (7 Suth., 166); and strict proof should be given that such evidence was not within the applicant's knowledge (9 Beng. 187). We have made provisions to this effect in sections 644 and 648. We have declared (a) that a party who is not appealing may apply for a review notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party, (b) that a person who has preferred an appeal may abandon it and apply for a review, and (c) that, except on the discovery of such new evidence as aforesaid, application for a review of a judgment (other than that of a High Court) should be made to the Judge who delivered it.

PART VIII.—OF REFERENCE TO THE HIGH COURT.

No change requiring notice has been made in this part of the Bill.

PART IX.—SPECIAL RULES AS TO HIGH COURTS.

Part IX contains some special rules relating to the High Courts established under 24 & 25 Vic., cap. 104.

In section 664 we have introduced words to shew that such a Court may try suits in which any material part of the cause of action has arisen or any of the defendants dwells, &c., within the local limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction. We have also made it clear that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain suits for land whether the land is situate wholly, or only in part, within the local limits. This is in accordance with the decision of the late Mr. Justice Norman in 3 Bengal O. C. 85, and with that of Mr. Justice Phear in 6 Bengal 686. The language of the charter of 1865, section 12, had given rise to some doubts on the subject.

In sections 682, 683 and 684 we have embodied the existing Rules of the High Courts at Fort William as to procedure in Admiralty, Testamentary and Intestate cases.

PART X.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Part X contains various miscellaneous provisions. In the sections (692—695) relating to exemption from personal appearances in Court, we have declared that parda-nashins shall not be exempted from arrest in execution of civil process, and that when any person exempted from personal appearance claims his privilege, and it is consequently necessary to examine him by commission, he must pay the costs of that commission.

Of the four schedules, the first specifies the enactments proposed for repeal; the second, the sections of the proposed Code which will be applicable (a) to Mofussil Courts of Small Causes, (b) to Revenue Courts; the third mentions certain Bombay enactments which it is desirable not to affect; the fourth contains 173 forms, (a) plaints for breach of contract, (b) plaints for damages upon wrongs, (c) plaints in suits for special relief, (d) forms of summonses, (e) forms of registers of suits, memoranda, decrees, orders, notices, warrants, and certificates. Some of these we have ourselves framed: others are taken (with some changes) from the Schedule to the County Court Orders in Equity, framed under the 28th & 29th Vic., c. 99, and from the volume of forms published by the Commissioners appointed to frame the revised New York Code; others from Act VIII of 1859, and the rest were framed by Mr. Broughton, late Recorder of Rangoon, and have stood the test of practice.

Having thus mentioned all the substantial additions which we have made to the Bill of 1865, we have now to specify the clauses of that Bill which we have struck out, with the reasons for each omission.

Clauses 11 and 12 provide that suits against Government (other than suits for land) shall be brought at the seat of Government. We think that such a provision would often cause great hardship to plaintiffs: and we have accordingly struck it out.

Eight clauses of the Bill of 1865, namely, 24 and 25, 133 and 134, 314, 315, 316 and 318, deal with the subject of specific performance of contracts. These relate to substantive law, and, if ultimately adopted, will come more fitly into the above-mentioned Bill relating to specific and preventive relief.

Clause 26.—This relates to declaratory suits, and is reserved for the same Bill.

Clause 61.—Procedure where there are several defendants, some of whom dwell without the jurisdiction. This is substantially provided for by sections 16, 17 and 18 of our draft, and it is unnecessary to make a separate provision.

Clause 65.—Procedure in a suit for immoveable property situate in different jurisdictions. This appears to be sufficiently provided for by sections 23, 24 and 25 of our draft (= sections 20, 21, 22 of the Bill of 1865).

Clause 120.—Procedure when defendant is about to leave India. This too seems to us fully provided for by our sections 476, 477, 478 (= sections 113, 114, 115 of the Bill of 1865).

Clause 146.—This relates to refunding half the stamp-duty on the plaint if the suit is compromised. The matter was considered and dealt with when the Court Fees Act, VII of 1870, was passed.

Clauses 193—196.—These also relate to stamp-duty, and the subject is sufficiently provided for by the Stamp Act, XVIII of 1869.

Clauses 243—254, and clause 594 relate to questions respecting religion or custom. We do not think it necessary or expedient to legislate specially regarding this matter. The Evidence Act, I of 1872, sections 13, 48 and 49, provides sufficiently for the solution of all such questions.

Clause 280 provides for the issue of a commission to examine witnesses who are neither within British India nor within an allied Native State. We think that this is sufficiently met by our section 382, which is equal to clause 279 of the Bill of 1865, and section 177 of Act VIII of 1859.

Clauses 281, 282, 283 provide for commissions to examine persons in jail. This is provided for by the Prisoners' Testimony Act, XV of 1869.

Clause 299 authorises the Court in certain cases to decide a suit on a sworn statement. Without giving any opinion on the policy of this provision, we would observe that the matter is sufficiently provided for by the Oaths Act, X of 1873, sections 8—12.

Clause 312 provides that a copy of every decree for the recovery of a portion of immoveable property with specified boundaries shall be sent to the District Registrar. The expediency of requiring the sending and registering of such copies was considered when the present Registration Act (VIII of 1871) was passed, and was decided against.

Clauses 468—482 relate to the summary enforcement of claims on registered bonds. The expediency of having any such provisions in the law was decided against by the legislature when the present Registration Act (VIII of 1871) was settled and passed, and nothing has since occurred to suggest that this decision should be reversed.

Clause 535 declares that if an appeal lies to a Court consisting of a single Judge, the appeal shall be heard and determined by such Judge. We have omitted this, as the matter is sufficiently provided for by our section 686 (= section 670 of the Bill of 1865).

Clause 536.—We have omitted the greater part of this clause as being provided for by the Limitation Act, IX of 1871.

Clause 597 prescribes the time within which special appeals shall be presented. We have omitted this clause also, as the matter is provided for by the Limitation Act.

Clause 608 relates to the stamp on a pauper's appeal and the time within which it must be presented. Both matters are already provided for—the one by the Stamp Act, the other by the Limitation Act.

Clause 624 limits the time within which applications for review must be made. This also is provided for by the Limitation Act.

Clause 636 relates to the extraordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Courts. It seems inexpedient to insert this in the Bill, for as to the High Courts established under 24 & 25 Vic., Cap. 104, the matter is provided for by the Letters Patent; and as to the other highest Civil Courts of Appeal (see Act I of 1868, section 1, clause 11), the matter is, or ought to be, provided for by the local Acts under which they are established.

Clauses 638 and 639 refer to the stamps to be used in the High Courts. The matter is provided for by the Stamp Act and the Court Fees Act.

Clauses 664—667 relate to contempt in Court. This matter is sufficiently dealt with by Act X of 1872, sections 435, 436 and 437, as regards all High Courts not established under 24 & 25 Vic., Cap. 104. For Courts established under that Statute no such provisions are needed.

Clause 680 is omitted, as the two Acts which it saves have been repealed.

We have thus described the changes which we have made in the Bill of 1865. We recommend that the Code, as now revised, should be published in the Gazette, and circulated to the Local Governments.

We have to request that gentlemen sending in suggestions will be kind enough to identify the draft Bill to which their suggestions relate by the Roman numeral printed on the outer sheet.

PART I.

OF SUITS IN GENERAL.

CHAPTER I.

OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND Res Judicata.

No person exempt from jurisdiction by reason of descent or place of birth.

10. No person shall, by reason of his descent or place of birth, be in any civil proceeding exempted from the jurisdiction of any of the Courts.

Courts to try all civil suits unless specially barred.

11. The Courts shall try all suits of a civil nature excepting suits of which their cognizance is barred by law.

Pending suits.

12. Except where a suit has been stayed under section 17, the Court shall not try any suit in which the matter in issue is also in issue in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, pending in the same or any other Court, whether superior or inferior, in British India, or in any Court beyond the limits of British India established by the authority of the Governor General in Council.

Explanation.—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action.

Res judicata.

13. The Courts shall dismiss any suit in which the matter substantially in issue has been heard and finally decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction proceeding according to the forms of law, by a valid sentence, in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title and in the same quality.

Explanation I.—The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or confessed, expressly or impliedly, by the other.

Explanation II.—Where a foreign judgment is relied on, the production of the judgment duly authenticated is presumptive evidence that the Court which made it had competent jurisdiction, unless the contrary appear on the record; but such presumption may be removed by shewing the want of jurisdiction by such evidence as is allowed by law:

No foreign judgment shall operate as a bar to a suit in British India—

(a) if it has not been given on the merits of the case:

(b) if it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international law or of any law in force in British India:

(c) if it is in the opinion of the Court before which it is produced contrary to natural justice:

(d) if it has been obtained by fraud:

(e) if it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.

Explanation III.—A decision is final within the meaning of this section when it is such as the Court making it could not alter on the application of either party or reconsider of its own motion. A decision liable to appeal may be final within the meaning of this section until the appeal is made.

A decision is not final within the meaning of this section when it has been obtained by arrangement between the parties and the Court has not given a judicial opinion on the matter.

Illustrations.

The following decisions shall cause the dismissal of a subsequent suit:—

(a). In a suit brought by one of the inhabitants of a village for the purpose of determining a right of way claimed by such inhabitants, a decree is made against him. Such decree shall bar all the other persons claiming the same right under the same title, but not if they claim under a different title.

(b). A sues B for a flock of sheep and obtains a decree. This is a bar to a subsequent suit by B against A for the flock, although the individual animals composing it may not be the same at the time of both suits, for the character of the whole matter in dispute is the same.

(c). A sues B for a particular bighá of land. Decree is made in favour of B. A dies intestate and C obtains letters of administration to his estate. B dies testate leaving D his executor who proves his will. C cannot sue D under the same title for any part of the same land.

(d). A sues B for two separate pieces of land. Decree is made in favour of A, who sells the two pieces to C. B cannot afterwards sue C under the same title for either piece separately.

(e). A sues B for Rs 1,000. The Court decides that this sum was never due to A. A then sues B for interest on the said sum. The decree in the former suit is a bar to this suit; for the subject of the second suit, though not identical with, is incident to, and involved in, the subject of the first.

(f). A sues B for a piece of land bordering on a river and obtains a decree. This decision is a bar to a subsequent suit by B against A for alluvial soil since added to the land, or for trees the growth of the land, or for rent or mesne profits in respect of its occupation, by virtue of the same title under which the land was claimed.

(g). In a suit by A against B respecting lights, the Court decides that the defendant has no right to raise his wall ten feet. This decision is a bar to a suit by B against A to enforce his alleged right to raise the wall twenty feet; for the thing demanded by the latter suit is so included in that which was decided in the former suit, that the decree in the latter suit must confirm or annul the decree in the former suit.

(h). A sues B on a written obligation for the payment of money Decree is made in favour of B on the ground that the money claimed is not due. This is a bar to a subsequent suit by A against B for money claimed not on the written obligation but on the same transaction.

(i). A sues B and C jointly for having together wrongfully fouled the water of a stream running through A's land, and obtains a decree against them. This is a bar to a subsequent suit by A against B separately for the same wrong, even though the decree in the prior suit has remained unexecuted.

(j). B and C jointly divert the water of A's watercourse. A sues B for the diversion, and the suit is dismissed. This is a bar to a subsequent suit by A against C for the same wrong.

(k). A and B, by their joint promissory note, promise to pay C Rs 1,000. C sues them for non-payment of this sum, and obtains a decree against them. This is a bar to a subsequent suit by C against A on the same note.

The following decisions shall not cause the dismissal of a subsequent suit:—

(l). An interlocutory order that a party shall account; for this decision is not final.

(m). A decree passed by a subordinate Court under section 655 contingent upon the opinion of the High Court upon a point referred; for this decision is not final.

(n). A decree of a Court of Small Causes under Act XI of 1865, for Rs. 1,001; for this decision has not been given by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

(o). A decree of a like Court for the balance of a partnership-account, such balance not having been struck by the parties or their agents; for such Courts have no jurisdiction to make such decrees.

(p). A decree of a Revenue Court in a suit for rent declaring the validity or invalidity of a bond: for such Courts have no jurisdiction to make such declarations.

(q). A decree in a suit in which it appears on the face of the record that summons has not been served on the defendant or his agent, when the defendant or his agent has not expressly or impliedly waived the necessity of such service.

(r). A decree that the defendant pay the damages which the plaintiff sustained; for here the decision is uncertain, and is not rendered certain by any part of the record.

(s). A decree that the plaintiff shall recover such compensation as Z shall determine; for here the decision is not final.

(t). A decree in a suit for three hogsheads of sugar that the defendant pay, at the rate of Rs. 150 per hogshead, the sum of Rs. 460; for here the sentence is invalid, evident error appearing on the decree itself.

(u). A decree declaring that the defendant shall go quit of a debt demanded by the plaintiff, and which the defendant had confessed to be due in his written statement in the same suit; for here the decision is invalid as being contrary to the judicial confession of a party.

(v). A decree given against one not a party to the suit, or against a minor not properly represented by a guardian.

(w). A sues B for one bighá of land. The Court decrees that A shall recover three bighás. The defendant then sues A for the two additional bighás. The former decree is no bar, because it was not in a matter alleged by one party and denied by the other in the suit in which it was made (x). A's executor, B, sues C for property belonging to A's estate. It appears that C has no such property and a decree is thereupon made in his favour. Afterwards C gets possession of part of A's estate. The former decree is no bar to a subsequent suit by B against C.

(y). A sues B, C and D. Before the judgment, D's name is struck out of the proceedings. A decree afterwards given in the suit does not bind D, unless his name has been reinstated on the record and is thereon at the date of the judgment.

(z) A sues B and C. Before the judgment D's name is introduced as a party on the record by fraud and without his knowledge. A decree afterwards given in the suit does not bind D unless he has consented to becoming a party.

(aa). A obtains against B a decree declaring that A is the owner of certain land. This is no bar to a subsequent suit by B against A for a right of way over the same land.

(bb). A sues B to obtain a right to an easement for the passage of cattle. Decree is made in favour of B. This is no bar to a subsequent suit by A against B for a right of footway; for the easements are of different kinds.

(cc). A sues B for trespassing on his land. Decree is made in favour of B. This does not bar a subsequent suit by A against B claiming rent from him as tenant of such land.

(dd). A, as executor to B, sues C for certain land. Decree is made in favour of C. A may nevertheless in his own right sue C for the same land; for here the plaintiff in each suit does not prosecute in the same quality.

(ee). On the death of A, a Hindú, B takes possession of A's land, claiming to hold it as A's adopted son. A's widow, C, sues B for possession as widow. B pleads the adoption. The Court finds that B was not adopted, and decrees in favour of C. On C's death, A's collateral kindred take possession of the land. The former decree does not bar a suit by B against them for possession as A's adopted son, for the collateral kindred do not claim under C

Court in which suit to be instituted.

14. Every suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it, unless an option as to the selection of the Court is allowed by this Code or some other law.

Suits to be instituted where subject-matter situate.

15. Subject to the pecuniary or other limitations prescribed by any law, suits

(a) for the recovery of immovable property,

(b) for the partition of immovable property,

(c) for the foreclosure or redemption of a mortgage of immovable property,

(d) for the determination of any other right or interest to or in immovable property,

(e) for the recovery of movable property distrained or attached for any cause, shall be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate.

Provided that suits to obtain relief respecting immovable property held by the defendant may, when the relief sought can be entirely obtained through his personal obedience, be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, or in the Court to whose jurisdiction he is personally subject.

Explanation.—In this section 'property' means property situate in British India.

Suits to be instituted where defendants reside or cause of action arose.

16. Subject to the limitations aforesaid, all other suits shall be instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction—

(a) all the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain; or

(b) any of the defendants, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain: provided that either the leave of the Court is given, or the defendants who do not reside or carry on business or personally work for gain as aforesaid acquiesce; or

(c) the cause of action arises; or

(d) a material part of the cause of action arises.

Explanation I.—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a lodging at another place for a temporary purpose only, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action occurring at the place where he has such temporary lodging.

Explanation II.—A Corporation or Company shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office, or, in respect of any cause of action occurring at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Delhi. B, by his agent in Calcutta, buys goods of A, and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta. A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has occurred, or in Delhi, where B carries on business.

(b.) A resides at Simla, B at Calcutta, and C at Delhi. A, B and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B and C at Benares, where the cause of action occurred. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non-resident defendant objects, the suit cannot be maintained without the leave of the Court.

(c.) A draws, in Simla, a bill on B, who accepts the bill in Calcutta, and returns it by post to A. The bill does not mention any place of payment. It is presented to B in Calcutta, and he fails to pay. One material part of the cause of action has occurred at Simla and others at Calcutta. The suit may therefore be brought either in Simla or in Calcutta.

(d.) A signs a contract in Calcutta for the delivery of rice to B at Delhi, and delivers it accordingly. B does not pay the price, and A sues him for it. One material part of the cause of action has occurred in Calcutta and another in Delhi. The suit may therefore be brought either in Calcutta or in Delhi.

(e.) A lets a house in Howrah to B at a monthly rent payable in Howrah. A dies intestate. C obtains, in Calcutta, a grant of letters of administration to A's estate. B allows the rent to fall into arrear. One material part of the cause of action has occurred in Calcutta and another in Howrah, and C may therefore sue B for the arrears either in Calcutta or in Howrah.

Power to stay proceedings where the whole cause of action did not arise and all defendants do not reside within jurisdiction.

17. If a suit is instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction only part of the cause of action arose, and where all the defendants do not actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, any defendant may move the Court to stay proceedings, and if the Court is satisfied that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted in some other Court, it may stay proceedings either finally or till further order, and make such order as it thinks fit as to the costs already incurred by the parties or any of them.

Illustration.

A and B in Calcutta enter into a written contract to carry on a partnership business in Delhi, and carry it on accordingly. B resides in Benares. A sues B in Calcutta for an account of partnership transactions. If the Court finds that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted in Delhi, or in Benares, it may on B's motion stay the proceedings.

Motion when to be made.

18. Every such motion shall be made before the settlement of issues and at the earliest possible opportunity, and any defendant not so moving shall be deemed to have acquiesced in the institution of the suit.

Remission of Court-fee where suit instituted in another Court.

19. Where the Court, under section 17, stays proceedings, and the plaintiff institutes his suit in another Court, the plaint shall not be chargeable with any fee under the Court Fees Act: provided that the proper fee has been levied on the institution of the suit in the former Court.

The interval between the institution of the suit and the date of so staying proceedings therein shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for such suit.

Forum in suits for compensation for wrongs.

20. In suits for compensation for wrong done to person or property, if the wrong was done within the local limits of the jurisdiction of one Court and the defendant resides within the local limits of the jurisdiction of another Court the plaintiff may at his option sue in either of the said Courts.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, residing in Delhi, beats B in Calcutta. B may sue A either in Calcutta or in Delhi.

(b.) A, residing in Delhi, publishes in Calcutta statements defamatory of B. B may sue A either in Calcutta or in Delhi.

(c.) A, travelling on the line of a Railway Company whose principal office is at Howrah, is upset and injured at Allahabad by negligence imputable to the Company. He may sue either at Howrah or at Allahabad Transfer of suits.

21. The District Court may withdraw any suit instituted in any Court subordinate to such District Court, and try the suit itself, or may, after giving notice to the parties, transfer it for trial to any other such subordinate Court competent in respect of the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit to try the same.

High Court may transfer suits and appeals.

22. The High Court may order that the cognizance of any suit or appeal instituted in any subordinate Court other than a Court of Small Causes, shall be transferred to any other subordinate Court, not being a Court of Small Causes, competent in respect of the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit or appeal to try the same.

Suits for immovable property situate in single districts, but within jurisdictions of different Courts.

23. If the suit be for immovable property situate within the limits of a single district, but within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the suit may be brought in the Court within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate; provided that, in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit, the entire claim be cognizable by such Court.

In such case the defendant may apply to the District Court to transfer the suit to another of the Courts having jurisdiction, and the District Court shall determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

Suits for immovable property situate in different districts.

24. If the immovable property be situate within the limits of different districts, the suit may be brought in any Court, otherwise competent to try it, within whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate.

In such case the defendant may apply to the High Court to transfer the suit to another of the Courts having jurisdiction. If the suit is brought in any Court subordinate to a District Court, the application shall be submitted through the District Court to which such Court is subordinate. The High Court may determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

Suits for immovable property situate in districts subject to different High Courts.

25. If the districts within the limits of which the immovable property is situate, are subject to different High Courts, the application shall be submitted to the High Court to which the district in which the suit is brought is subordinate; and such High Court may, after hearing the objections, if any, of the defendant, determine whether or not the suit shall proceed in the Court in which it is instituted.

Suit for immovable property alleged to be within another local jurisdiction.

26. If in a suit for immovable property, the defendant object to the hearing of the suit on the ground that the property is not situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, the Court may determine the point; and if the Court find that the property is situate within such limits, it shall proceed to try the suit.

CHAPTER III.

Who to be joined as plaintiffs

27. All persons having an interest in the subject-matter of the suit and in obtaining the relief sought, may be joined as plaintiffs, except as otherwise provided in this Code.

Distinct claims.

But persons having distinct claims against another in respect of distinct matters cannot, if the defendant object, join to enforce such claims in one suit.

Illustration.

A and B are partners. C deals with the firm and becomes indebted to it. A sells a horse his private property to C. A and B cannot, if C objects, sue him in one suit for the debt due to the firm and also for the price of the horse.

Who to be defendant.

28. Any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, or who is a necessary party to the complete determination or settlement of the questions involved therein.

Illustration.

A and B are partners, and become as such indebted to C in Rs. 5,000. A on his own account buys a horse for Rs. 1,000 from C, and fails to pay the price. C cannot, if A or B objects, sue in the same suit A and B for the Rs. 5,000 and A for the Rs. 1,000.

Parties to be joined.

29. Of the parties to the suit those who are united in interest must be joined as plaintiffs or defendants. But if the consent of any one who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, he may be joined as a defendant, the reason thereof being stated in the plaint.

And when the question is one of common or general interest of so many persons that it is impracticable to bring them all before the Court, one or more may sue or defend on behalf of the whole, the reason thereof being stated in the plaint.

Parties to bills, hundis and notes.

30. Persons severally liable upon the same obligation or instrument, including the parties to bills of exchange, hundis and promissory notes, may, all or any of them, be included in the same suit at the option of the plaintiff.

31. All objections for want of parties, or for joinder of parties who have no interest in the suit, or for misjoinder as co-plaintiffs or co-defendants, shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity; and any such objection not taken before the settlement of issues shall be deemed to have been waived by the defendant.

32. Any appearance, application or act in or to any Court, made or done by a party to a suit in such Court, may, except when otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be made or done by the party in person or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf:

Appearances, applications and acts may be in person, by recognized agent or by pleader.

Provided that any such appearance shall be made by the party in person if the Court so direct.

33. When there are more plaintiffs than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead and act for such other: and in like manner when there are more defendants than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead or act for such other.

Each of several plaintiffs or defendants may authorize any other to appear, &c., for him.

The authority shall be in writing, signed by the parties giving it, and shall be filed in Court.

34. The recognized agents of parties by whom such appearances, applications and acts may be made or done are—Recognized agents.

Persons holding powers-of-attorney from parties out of jurisdiction.

2*ndly*—Persons carrying on trade or business for and in the names of parties not within the jurisdiction of the District Court within the limits of which the appearance, application or act is made or done, in matters connected with such trade or business only, where no other agent is expressly authorized to make and do such appearances, applications and acts.

Persons carrying on trade or business for parties out of jurisdiction.

Explanation.—A partner is not, as such, a recognized agent within the meaning of this clause.

35. Processes served on a recognized agent relative to a suit shall be as effectual for all purposes in relation to the suit as if the same had been given to or served on the party in person, unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

Service of process on recognized agent.

The provisions of this Code relative to the service of process on a party to a suit apply to the service of process on a recognized agent.

36. The appointment of a pleader to make or do any appearance, application or act as aforesaid shall be in writing under the hand of the client and shall be filed in Court.

Appointment of pleader.

When so filed, it shall be considered to be in full force until revoked by a writing signed by the client and filed in Court, or until the pleader dies, or the suit is determined.

37. Processes served on the pleader of any party or left at the office or ordinary residence of such pleader, relative to a suit, and whether the same be for the personal appearance of the party or not, shall be presumed to be duly communicated and made known to the party whom the pleader represents; and, unless the Court otherwise directs, shall be as effectual for all purposes in relation to the suit as if the same had been given to or served on the party in person.

Service of process on pleader.

38. In all cases in which a party to a suit has not appointed a pleader to act for him, all processes shall be served upon such party in the manner hereinafter provided for the service of a summons upon a defendant to appear and answer.

Service of process on party who has not appointed a pleader.

39. Besides the recognized agents described in section 34, any person residing within the jurisdiction of the Court may be appointed an agent to accept service of processes.

Such appointment shall be in writing signed by the principal; and the original appointment, or a copy thereof if the appointment be a general one, shall be filed in Court.

40. If at any stage of a suit, it appear to the Court that any person who may be entitled to, or who may claim some share or interest in, the subject-matter of the suit, and who may be likely to be affected by the result, has not been made a party,

Court may direct that persons appearing to be interested shall be made parties.

or that any one of several plaintiffs should be made a defendant, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that such person shall be made a party or that such plaintiff shall be made a defendant, as the case may be.

In such case the Court shall issue a notice to such person in the manner hereinafter provided for the service of a summons on a defendant.

41. If at any stage of the suit, it appear to the Court that any person has been improperly made a party, the Court may direct that his name shall be struck out from the plaint, or that the proceedings shall be stayed as against him.

Power to remove parties.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT AND THE FORM OF THE PLAINT.

42. Every suit shall as far as practicable be so framed as to afford ground for a single decision upon the whole subject in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning it.

Suit how to be framed.

43. Every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising out of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court, and the fact of such relinquishment shall be entered on the record.

Suit to include the whole claim.

Relinquishment of part of claim.

If a plaintiff intentionally relinquish or omit to sue for any portion of his claim, a suit for the portion so relinquished or omitted shall not afterwards be entertained.

Illustrations.

(a.) Two partners, A and B, dispute regarding unsettled accounts of the partnership. A sues B for a particular item of the accounts. The suit must be dismissed, for it should have been for the whole of A's demand against B, so that there might be a general adjustment of the accounts.

(b.) A, as heir of Z, claims the ownership of lands in two districts, B and C. D claims the same lands also as heir of Z. A sues D in district B for the lands in that district only, omitting the rest of the lands. A's suit against D for the lands in district C cannot afterwards be entertained.

(c.) A sues D as in the last preceding illustration. A also claims other lands from D, alleging that D obtained a conveyance of them from A by fraud. A may make those lands the subject of a separate suit.

Joinder of several claims in the same suit.

44. Two or more claims, founded on distinct causes of action, by and against the same parties, and cognizable (as regards their nature) by the same Court, may at the option of the plaintiff be joined in the same suit; provided that, when claims are so joined, the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the suit shall depend on the amount or value of the aggregate subject-matters.

Multifariousness

But different claims, founded on distinct causes of action, against different parties, cannot be joined in the same suit where each of those parties has a separate interest.

And claims made against a defendant in different characters, cannot be joined in the same suit.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B, by their three joint promissory notes, promise to pay to C on demand Rs. 1,000, Rs. 1,500 and Rs. 2,000. A and B fail to pay the same. C may sue A and B in the same suit for Rs. 4,500, being the aggregate amount of the three notes.

(b.) A, the guardian of B, a minor, sells a portion of the minor's property to C, another portion to D, and another to E. B attains majority and sues in the same suit C, D and E to set aside the sales to them respectively. Any of the defendants may object that the suit is wrongly framed.

(c.) A sues B, the executor of C, in the same suit for a debt due from C, and also for a debt due from B personally. The defendant may object that the suit is wrongly framed.

Objections on ground of multifariousness.

45. All objections under section 44 shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity; and any objection not taken before the settlement of issues shall be deemed to have been waived by the defendant.

Power to order distinct claims to be tried separately.

46. If two or more claims founded on distinct causes of action be joined in one suit, and the Court is of opinion that they cannot conveniently be tried together, the Court may, at any stage of the suit, order such claims, or any of them, to be tried separately on the record as made up.

Claims for immovable property and for mesne profits.

47. A claim for immovable property, and a claim for the mesne profits of such property, may, at the option of the plaintiff, be deemed to be founded on distinct rights to sue, within the meaning of sections 44 and 46.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE INSTITUTION OF SUITS.

Suits to be commenced by plaint.

48. Every regular suit shall be commenced by a plaint.

Particulars to be contained in plaint.

49. The plaint must be distinctly written in the language in use in proceedings before the Court, and must contain the following particulars:—

(1.) the name of the Court in which the suit is brought;

(2.) the name, description and place of abode of the plaintiff;

(3.) the name, description and place of abode of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;

(4.) a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting the cause of action, and where and when it accrued;

(5.) a demand of the relief which the plaintiff claims.

Explanation 1.—When the plaintiff sues in a representative character, the plaint should shew, not only that he has an actual existing interest in the subject-matter, but that he has taken the steps necessary to enable him to institute a suit concerning it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues as B's executor. The plaint must state that A has proved B's will.

(b.) A sues as C's administrator. The plaint must state that A has taken out administration to C's estate.

(c.) A sues, as guardian of D, a Muhammadan minor. A is not D's guardian according to Muhammadan law and usage. The plaint must state that A has been specially appointed D's guardian.

Explanation 2.—The plaint must shew that the defendant is or claims to be interested in the subject-matter, and that he is liable to be called upon to answer the plaintiff's demand.

Illustration.

A dies leaving B his executor, C his legatee, and D a debtor to A's estate. C sues D to compel him to pay his debt in satisfaction of C's legacy. The plaint must shew that B has collusively refused to sue D, or that B and D have colluded for the purpose of defrauding C, or other such circumstances rendering D liable to C.

Explanation 3.—If the cause of action arose beyond the period ordinarily allowed by any law for commencing the suit, the plaint must shew the ground upon which exemption from such law is claimed.

Explanation 4.—If the plaintiff seek the recovery of money, the plaint must state the precise amount, so far as the case admits.

Illustration.

A sues for mesne profits.

A sues for the amount which will be found due to him on taking unsettled accounts between him and B.

In each of these cases the plaint need only state approximately the amount sued for.

Plaint to be subscribed and verified.

50. The plaint shall be subscribed by the plaintiff and his pleader (if any), and shall be verified at the foot by the plaintiff in the manner following, or to the like effect:—

I (A. B.), the plaintiff named in the above plaint, do declare that what is stated therein is true to the best of my information and belief.

Subscription and verification in case of plaintiff's inability.

51. If the plaintiff, by reason of absence or for other good cause, be unable to subscribe and verify the plaint, the Court may, if it think fit, allow it to be subscribed and verified on his behalf by any person whom the Court considers personally acquainted with the facts of the case and otherwise competent to make the verification.

What, besides absence, is good cause, is for the consideration of the Court in each case.

Illustrations.

(a.) The fact that a plaintiff has been exempted from attendance in Court on account of his rank is not good cause why he should not subscribe and verify the plaint.

(b.) Severe illness may be good cause.

When the plaint may be rejected, returned for amendment, or amended.

52. The plaint may, at the discretion of the Court, and at any time before the decree is passed, be rejected, returned for amendment within a time to be fixed by the Court, or amended then and there, upon such terms as to the payment of costs occasioned by the amendment as the Court thinks fit,

(a) if it do not state correctly and without prolixity the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein;

(b) if it contain any particulars other than those so required;

(c) if it be not subscribed and verified as hereinbefore required; or (d) if it do not disclose a cause of action.

Explanation.—A plaint cannot be altered so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character.

When the plaint shall be returned to be presented to the proper Court.

53. The plaint, when presented, shall be returned to be presented to the proper Court in the following cases:—

(a.) If a suit has been instituted in a Court whose grade is lower or higher than that of the Court competent to try it, where such Court exists, or where no option as to the selection of the Court is allowed by law:

(b.) If, in a suit relating to immovable property, but not coming under the proviso to section 15, it appear that no part of such property is situate within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction:

(c.) If, in any other case, it appear that the cause of action, or a material part thereof, did not occur, and that none of the defendants are dwelling or carrying on business, or personally working for gain, within such local limits.

When the plaint shall be rejected.

54. The plaint shall be rejected in the following cases:—

(a.) If the relief sought is undervalued, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to correct the valuation within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so:

(b.) If the relief sought is properly valued, but the plaint is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to supply the requisite stamp-paper within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so:

(c.) If, in the case mentioned in section 369, the plaintiff fail to furnish security for the payment of the costs that may be incurred by the defendant:

(d.) If the suit appear from the statement in the plaint to be barred by any positive rule of law.

55. When a plaint is rejected, the Judge shall record with his own hand an order to that effect with the reason for such order, and the plaint, with the order and any deposition made by or on behalf of the plaintiff, shall be deposited in the record-room of the Court.

Procedure on returning a plaint.

When a plaint is returned for amendment, the date of its presentation and return, the name of the party presenting it, and a brief statement of the reason for returning it, shall be endorsed upon it before it is returned, and shall be signed and sealed by the Judge.

When rejection of plaint does not preclude presentation of fresh plaint.

56. The rejection of the plaint on any of the grounds hereinbefore mentioned shall not of its own force preclude the plaintiff from presenting a fresh plaint in respect of the same cause of action.

Procedure on admitting plaint.

57. If the Court consider the plaint admissible, it shall cause to be endorsed thereon a memorandum of the documents (if any) which the plaintiff has filed along with it, together with the names of the persons presenting them.

The Court shall also cause the particulars mentioned in section 49 to be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose, and called the Register of Civil suits. The entries shall be numbered in every year according to the order in which the plaint is presented.

List of other documents.

If he rely on any other documents as evidence in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added at the foot of the plaint.

Suits on lost negotiable instruments.

59. In case of any suit founded upon a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the instrument is lost, and if an indemnity be given by the plaintiff, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person upon such instrument, the Court may make such decree as it would have made if the plaintiff had produced the instrument in Court when the plaint was presented, and had at the same time delivered a copy of the instrument to be filed with the plaint.

60. If the document on which the plaintiff sues be an entry in a shop-book or other book, the plaintiff shall produce the book to the Court, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies.

Production of shop-book.

The Court shall forthwith mark the document for the purpose of identification; and after examining and comparing the copy with the original, shall return the book to the plaintiff.

Original entry to be marked and returned.

61. A document which ought to be produced in Court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered at the foot of the plaint, and which is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit without the leave of the Court.

Inadmissibility of document not produced when plaint filed.

Explanation.—A document handed to a witness merely to refresh his memory is not received in evidence within the meaning of this section.

Issue of Summons.

62. When the plaint has been registered, a summons shall be issued to the defendant to appear and answer the claim on a day to be therein specified Person served to endorse summons.

If such person refuse to sign the acknowledgment, the serving officer may affix the copy of the summons on some conspicuous part of the house in which the defendant is dwelling but the service of the summons shall be held sufficient if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court, notwithstanding that a copy of the summons shall not have been so affixed.

Procedure where he refuses.

77. If the defendant cannot be found and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons on his behalf, nor any other person on whom the service can be made, the serving officer shall fix the copy of the summons on some conspicuous part of the house in which the defendant is dwelling, and the summons shall thereupon be deemed to have been served.

If summons cannot be served, copy to be fixed on dwelling-house.

Explanation.—The manner of dwelling here intended is such as renders it probable that the fact of the fixing of the copy will come to the defendant's knowledge.

78. If the summons cannot be otherwise served on the defendant, and the serving-officer cannot find any house in which the defendant is dwelling, the serving-officer shall return the summons to the Court from which it issued, with an endorsement thereon that he has been unable to serve it.

Summons when returned with endorsement of non-service.

79. The serving officer shall, in all cases in which the summons has been served, endorse on the original summons, or on a copy thereof signed and sealed as aforesaid, the time when and the manner in which the summons was served, and such endorsement shall be evidence of the service of the summons.

Service through a British Resident or Agent of Government.

86. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the Court from substituting for the summons a letter signed by the Judge or Registrar or Clerk of the Court, and under the seal of the Court, when the person whose appearance is required is of a rank which entitles him to such mark of consideration.

Substitution of letter for summons.

The letter shall contain all the particulars required to be stated in the summons, and, subject to the provisions contained in section 87, shall be treated in all respects as a summons.

87. When a letter or other communication is substituted for a summons, it may be sent by post or by a special messenger selected by the Court, or in any other manner which the Court thinks fit; unless the person whose appearance is required has an agent empowered to accept the service of the summons, in which case it shall be served on such agent.

Mode of sending such letter.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

88. On the day fixed in the summons for the defendant to appear and answer, the parties shall be in attendance at the Court-house, and the suit shall then be heard, unless the hearing be adjourned to a future day fixed by the Court.

Parties to appear on day fixed in summons for defendant to appear and answer.

89. If on the day fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, it be found that the summons has not been served upon him in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to deposit, within the time allowed, the sum required to defray the cost of issuing such summons, the Court may order that the suit be dismissed:

Dismissal of suit where summons not served in consequence of plaintiff's failure to deposit costs of issuing it.

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the summons has not been served upon the defendant, if, on the day fixed for him to appear and answer, he has entered an appearance by a pleader or by a duly authorized agent, when he is allowed to appear by agent, or is in attendance in person.

Proviso.

90. If on the day fixed for the defendant to appear and answer, or on any other subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit may be adjourned, neither party appears when called upon by the Court, the suit shall be dismissed.

If neither party appear, suit to be dismissed.

91. Whenever a suit is dismissed under either of the last two preceding sections, the plaintiff may bring a fresh suit; or if within the period of thirty days from the date of the order dismissing the suit he satisfies the Court that there was a sufficient excuse for his not making the deposit required within the time allowed or for his non-appearance, as the case may be, the Court may restore the suit to its file.

In such case plaintiff may bring fresh suit; or Court may restore the suit to its file.

92. If the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear, and the Court is satisfied that the summons was duly served, the Court may proceed ex parte either to dispose of the suit or to settle issues, according to the tenor of the summons.

If plaintiff only appear, and due service of summons be not proved, Court may order issue of second summons.

94. If the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the summons was served on the defendant, but not in sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on the day fixed in the summons, the Court shall postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and may direct notice of such day to be given to the defendant.

Procedure where plaintiff only appears, and it is proved that summons was served, but not in due time.

95. If the defendant, on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit ex parte has been adjourned, appear and assign good cause for his previous non-appearance, he may, upon such terms as the Court may direct as to costs or otherwise, be heard in answer to the suit, in like manner as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his appearance.

Procedure where defendant appears on day of adjourned hearing, and assigns good cause for previous non-appearance.

96. If the defendant appears and the plaintiff does not appear, the Court shall pass a decree against the plaintiff by default, unless the defendant admits the claim, in which case the Court shall pass a decree against the defendant upon such admission.

Procedure where defendant only appears.

97. If on the day fixed for the hearing of a suit against a defendant residing out of British India, who has no agent empowered to accept service of summons, or on any day to which the hearing has been adjourned, the defendant does not appear, the plaintiff may apply to the Court, and the Court may direct that the plaintiff be at liberty to proceed with his suit in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

98. When a decree is passed against a plaintiff by default, he shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit in respect of the same right to sue.

Decree against plaintiff by default bars fresh suit.

99. If there are more plaintiffs than one, and one or more of them shall appear in person or by a pleader or by a co-plaintiff duly authorized, and the other or others of them shall not appear in person nor by a pleader nor by a co-plaintiff duly authorized, the Court may proceed with the suit at the instance of the plaintiff or plaintiffs who may have appeared, in the same way as if all the plaintiffs had appeared, and pass such order as it thinks fit.

100. If there be more defendants than one, and one or more of them appear in person or by a pleader or by a co-defendant duly authorized, and the others of them do not appear in person or by a pleader or by a co-defendant duly authorized, the Court shall proceed with the suit, and shall at the time of passing judgment make such order with respect to the defendant or defendants who have not appeared as it thinks fit.

Procedure in case of non-attendance of one or more of several defendants.

101. If a plaintiff or defendant who has been ordered to appear in person under the provisions of section 63 or section 430 does not appear in person, or show sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Court for failing so to appear, he shall be subject to all the provisions of the foregoing sections applicable to plaintiffs and defendants, respectively, who do not appear.

Consequence of non-attendance, without sufficient cause shown, of party ordered to appear in person.

102. In support of the cause shown by a plaintiff or defendant for failing to appear in person, the Court shall receive any declaration in writing on paper signed by such plaintiff or defendant and verified in manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS.

103. The parties may, at the first hearing of the suit, tender written statements of their respective cases, and the Court shall record such statements and deal with them as if given in evidence.

Written statements.

104. Written statements shall be chargeable with the fee prescribed by the Court Fees Act, 1870, for petitions to the Court.

105. If in a suit for the recovery of money the defendant claims to set-off against the plaintiff's demand any ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by him from the plaintiff, and if in such claim of the defendant against the plaintiff both parties fill the same character as they fill in the plaintiff's suit, the defendant may, at the first hearing of the suit, but not afterwards unless permitted by the Court, tender a written statement containing the particulars of the debt sought to be set-off.

Particulars of set-off to be given in written statement.

The Court shall thereupon enquire into the same, and if it find that the case fulfils the requirements of the former part of this section, the Court shall set-off the one debt against the other.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths Rs. 2,000 to B, and appoints C his executor and residuary legatee. B dies and D takes out administration to B's effects. C pays Rs. 1,000 as surety for D. Then D sues C for the legacy. C cannot set-off the debt of Rs. 1,000 against the legacy, for neither C nor D fills the same character with respect to the legacy as they fill with respect to the payment of the Rs. 1,000.

(b) A dies intestate and in debt to B. C takes out administration to A's effects, and B buys part of the effects from C. In a suit for the purchase-money by C against B, the latter cannot set-off the debt against the price, for C fills two different characters, one as the vendor to B, in which he sues B, and the other as representative to A, in which B seeks the set-off.

(c) A sues B on a bill of exchange. B alleges that A has wrongfully neglected to insure B's goods and is liable to him in compensation which he claims to set-off. The amount not being ascertained cannot be set-off.

(d) A sues B on a bill of exchange for Rs. 500. B holds a judgment against A for Rs. 1,000. The two claims being both definite pecuniary demands may be set-off.

(e) A sues B for compensation on account of a trespass. B holds a promissory note for Rs. 1,000 from A and claims to set-off that amount against any sum that A may recover in the suit. B may do so, for as soon as A recovers, both sums are definite pecuniary demands.

106. Except as provided in the last preceding section, no written statement shall be received after the first hearing of the suit unless called for by the Court.

No written statement to be received after first hearing unless called for by Court.

The Court, in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, may at any time require a full and true written statement, or additional written statement, from any of the parties, and fix a time for presenting the same.

Court may at any time call for written statement.

If any party from whom a written statement is so called for fail to present the same within the time fixed by the Court, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such other order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit. And in case of wilful disobedience to the requisition of the Court, he shall also be liable to the penalties provided by section 176 of the Indian Penal Code.

Procedure when party fails to present written statement called for by Court.

107. Written statements shall be as brief as the nature of the case will admit, and shall not be argumentative, nor by way of answer one to the other; but shall be confined as much as possible to a simple narrative of the facts which the party by whom or on whose behalf the written statement is made believes to be material to the case, and which he believes he will be able to prove.

Frame of written statements.

108. Written statements shall be subscribed and verified in the manner hereinbefore provided for subscribing and verifying plaints, and no written statement shall be received unless it be so subscribed and verified.

Written statements to be subscribed and verified.

Persons exempted from attendance in Court are not exempted thereby from subscribing and verifying written statements.

109. If it appear to the Court that any written statement, whether called for by the Court or spontaneously tendered, is argumentative or prolix, or contains matter irrelevant to the suit, the Court may strike out any part of the statement, or, by an order to be endorsed thereon, reject the same, and return it to the party by whom it was made, imposing such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit.

Rejection of argumentative, prolix or irrelevant written statements.

It shall not be competent to such party to present another written statement, unless it be expressly called for or allowed by the Court.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES AT THE FIRST HEARING.

Oral examination of party, or companion of himself or his pleader.

The substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing and shall form part of the record.

Substance of examination to be written.

111. If any party to a suit refuses, without lawful excuse, to answer any material question relating to the suit which the Court thinks fit to put to him, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

Consequence of refusal of party to answer material question.

112. If the pleader of any party who appears by a pleader refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day, and direct that such party shall appear in person on such day.

Consequence of refusal or inability of pleader to answer.

If such party fails without lawful excuse to appear in person on the day so appointed, the Court may pass a decree against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER X.

113. Either party may exhibit to the other or to his pleader, at any time before the hearing, any document material to the suit, and request an admission in writing of its genuineness.

Admission of documents.

If the adverse party or his pleader fail to give the admission within four days after the request, and if the party exhibiting the document be afterwards put to expense in order to prove its genuineness and the same be finally proved or admitted at the hearing, such expense, to be ascertained at the hearing, shall be paid by the party refusing admission, unless the Court is satisfied that there were good reasons for the refusal.

114. Subject to the other provisions of this Code and to the rules of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, the Court before which a suit is pending may, in its discretion, and upon application in writing order any party to give to any other party within a specified time, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy, of any books, papers or other documents in his possession or under his control, containing evidence relating to the merits of the suit or the defence therein.

Inspection of documents.

The application shall state—

(a) that the suit is pending,

(b) the nature of the suit,

(c) that the applicant has just grounds to maintain or defend the suit, as the case may be,

(d) his belief that the documents are in the possession or under the control of the party against whom the order is sought,

(e) the reason of the application,

(f) the existence, nature, identification and admissibility of the documents; and

(g) that the application has been made at the earliest opportunity, or (where this is not the case) that there was good cause (stating it) for the delay.

Every such application must be subscribed and verified in the manner hereinbefore provided for subscribing and verifying plaints.

115. The Court may, of its own accord, and may, in its discretion, upon the application of any of the parties to a suit, send for, either from its own records or from any other Court or public office, the record of any other suit or case, or any other official paper, and inspect the same.

Court may send for papers from its own records or from other public offices or Courts.

Every application made under this section must be supported by an affidavit shewing how the record or paper is material to the suit in which the application is made:

Documentary evidence to be produced at first hearing.

and all documents or other things specified in any order made by the Court under section 114 at any time before the hearing of the suit.

No documentary evidence of any kind, which the parties or any of them may desire to produce, shall be received at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless good cause be shown to the satisfaction of the Court for the non-production thereof at the first hearing. And the Judge receiving such evidence shall record the grounds of his doing so.

Documents to be received by Court.

117. The Court shall receive the documents produced by the parties.

Rejection of irrelevant or inadmissible documents.

The Court may at any stage of the suit reject any document which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible, recording the grounds of such rejection Admitted documents to be marked and filed.

118. When a document is admitted in evidence at any stage of the suit, it shall be endorsed with the number and title of the suit, the name of the person producing it, and the date on which it was produced, and shall be filed as part of the record:

Entries in shop-books.

Provided that, if the document be an entry in a shop-book or other book, the party on whose behalf such book is produced may furnish a copy of the entry, which may be endorsed as aforesaid, and shall be filed as part of the record, and the book shall be returned to the person producing it.

Rejected documents to be marked.

119. When a document is rejected by the Court, it shall be endorsed in the manner specified in the last preceding section with the addition of the word "rejected," and the endorsement shall be signed by the Judge.

and returned; unless detained by Court.

The document shall then be returned to the party who produced it, unless the Court thinks proper, on suspicion of the document having been fabricated, or for any other reason, to order that it be impounded.

Court may order any document to be impounded.

120. The Court may, if it see sufficient cause, direct any document produced before it in any suit to be impounded and kept in the custody of an officer of the Court, for such period and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

After lapse of time for appeal, document admitted in evidence may be returned.

121. In suits in which an appeal is allowed, when the time for preferring an appeal from the decree has elapsed, or, if an appeal has been preferred, then after the appeal has been disposed of, any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit, shall ordinarily be entitled, on application to the Judge of the Court in which such document may be, to receive back the same.

If no appeal, document may be returned as soon as decree is made

122. In suits in which an appeal is not allowed, the document may be returned, on application to the Court at any time after the suit has been disposed of.

Document may for special reasons be returned before time limited.

126. On the return of a document which has been admitted in evidence, a receipt shall be given by the party receiving it, in a receipt-book to be kept for the purpose.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

Framing of issues.

127. Issues arise when a proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other.

They are of two kinds: (1) issues of fact, (2) issues of law.

At the first hearing of the suit, the Court shall enquire upon what propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the Court to depend.

When issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court is of opinion that the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, it may try those issues first.

Allegations from which issues may be framed.

128. The Court may frame the issues from any of the following materials:—

(a) allegations orally made by the parties, or by any persons present on their behalf, or by their pleaders;

(b) allegations made in the plaint or in the written statements (if any) tendered in the suit;

(c) the contents of documents produced by either party.

Court may examine witnesses or documents before framing issues.

129. If the Court be of opinion that the issues cannot be correctly framed without the examination of some person not before the Court, or without the inspection of some document not produced in the suit, it may adjourn the framing of the issues to a future day, to be fixed by the Court, and may compel the attendance of any person or the production of any document by the person in whose hands it may be, by summons or other process.

Amendment of issues.

Addition of issues.

130. The Court may at any time before passing a decree amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the real question or controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed.

The Court may also, at any time before passing a decree, strike out any issues that appear to it to be wrongly framed or introduced.

OF ISSUES BY AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

Questions of fact or law may by agreement be stated in the form of an issue.

131. When the parties to a suit are agreed as to the question of fact or of law to be decided between them, they may state the same in the form of an issue, and enter into an agreement in writing,

(a.) that upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or the negative of such issue, a sum of money specified in the agreement, or to be ascertained by the Court, or in such manner as the Court may direct, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them, or

(b.) that upon such finding some property specified in the agreement and in dispute in the suit shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them, or as that other may direct, or

(c.) that upon such finding one or more of the parties shall do or abstain from doing some particular act, specified in the agreement, and relating to the matter in dispute.

Court if satisfied that the agreement was executed in good faith may give judgment.

132. If the Court be satisfied, after making such enquiry as it deems proper,

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by the parties,

(b) that they have a real interest in the decision of such question as aforesaid, and

(c) that the same is fit to be tried and decided, it may proceed to record and try the issue, and deliver its finding or opinion thereon in the same manner as if the issue had been framed by the Court, and may, upon the finding or decision on such issue, give judgment according to the terms of the agreement; and upon the judgment so given, decree shall follow and may be executed in the same way as if the judgment had been pronounced in a contested suit.

CHAPTER XII.

If one of several defendants be not at issue with the plaintiff.

134. Where there are more defendants than one, and any one of the defendants is not at issue with the plaintiff on any question of law or fact, the Court may at once give judgment for or against such defendant, and the suit shall proceed only against the other defendants.

If the parties are at issue on questions of law or fact.

135. When the parties are at issue on some question of law or of fact, and issues have been framed by the Court as hereinbefore provided, if the Court be satisfied that no further argument or evidence than such as the parties can at once supply is required upon any such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit, and that no injustice will result from proceeding with the suit forthwith, the Court may proceed to determine such issue, and if the finding thereon is sufficient for the decision, may pronounce judgment accordingly, whether the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit:

Court may determine issue and give judgment.

Provided that, where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only, the parties are present and none of them object.

Otherwise the Court shall postpone the further hearing of the suit, and shall fix a day for the production of such further evidence, or for such further argument as the case requires.

If either party fails to produce his evidence, Court may give judgment.

136. If the summons has been issued for the final disposal of the suit, and either party fails without sufficient cause to produce the evidence on which he relies, the Court may at once give judgment.

Procedure where Court cannot give judgment at first hearing.

137. After the issue of such summons, if the Court is unable to give judgment at the first hearing of the suit by reason of additional evidence being required, or for any other cause, the Court shall frame the issues requiring to be determined as provided in section 127.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF ADJOURNMENTS.

Court may grant time, or adjourn hearing.

138. The Court may, if sufficient cause be shown, at any stage of the suit, grant time to the parties, or to any of them, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing of the suit.

Costs of adjournment.

In all such cases the Court shall fix a day for the further hearing of the suit, and may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the costs occasioned by the adjournment:

Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall not be adjourned at the application of any of the parties or except from day to day when all the witnesses cannot be examined on the same day.

Procedure if parties fail to appear on day fixed.

139. If, on any day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties or either of them fail to appear, the Court may proceed to dispose of the suit in one of the modes directed in that behalf by chapter VII, or make such other order as it thinks fit.

Court may proceed notwithstanding either party fails to produce proofs or witnesses.

140. If either party to a suit to whom time has been granted fails to produce his proofs, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses, or to perform any other act necessary to the further progress of the suit, for which time has been allowed, the Court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to a decision of the suit on the record.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF SUMMONING WITNESSES.

Summons to attend to give evidence or produce documents.

141. The parties may, after the issue of the summons to the defendant, if the summons be for the final disposal of the suit; or after the issues have been recorded, if the summons to the defendant be for the settlement of issues only, obtain, on application to the Court at some reasonable ime before the day fixed for such disposal o settlement, as the case may be, summonses t persons whose attendance is necessary or proper either to give evidence or to produce a document.

In any such summons the names of any number of persons may be inserted.

142. The person applying for a summons shall pay into Court such a sum of money as appears to the Court to be reasonable to defray the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned, in passing to and from the Court in which he is required to attend, and for one day's attendance.

Expenses of witnesses to be paid into Court on applying for summons.

If the Court be a subordinate Court, regard shall be had, in fixing the scale of such expenses, to the rules (if any) laid down by the Court to which such Court is subordinate.

Scale of expenses.

The sum so paid into Court shall be tendered to the person summoned, at the time of serving the summons if it can be served personally.

Tender of expenses to witness.

143. If it appear to the Court that the sum paid into Court on account of the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned in passing to and from the Court is not sufficient to cover such expenses, and for one day's attendance, the Court may direct such further sum to be paid to him as appears to be necessary on that account; and, in case of default in payment, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the goods of the person obtaining the summons; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence.

Procedure where insufficient sum paid in.

If it be necessary to detain the person summoned for a longer period than one day, the Court may from time to time order the party at whose instance he was summoned, to pay into Court such sum as is sufficient to defray the expenses of his detention for such further period, and in default of such deposit being made, may order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the goods of the party at whose instance he was summoned; or the Court may discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence.

Expenses if witness detained more than one day.

144. Every summons for the attendance of a person to give evidence or produce a document shall specify the time and place at which he is required to attend, and also whether his attendance is required for the purpose of giving evidence or to produce a document, or for both purposes; and any particular document which the person summoned is called on to produce, shall be described in the summons with convenient certainty.

Time, place, and purpose of attendance to be specified in summons.

145. Any person, whether a party to the suit or not, may be summoned to produce a document, without being summoned to give evidence; and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons, if he cause such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

Summons to produce a document.

SERVICE OF SUMMONS ON PERSONS REQUIRED TO GIVE EVIDENCE OR PRODUCE DOCUMENTS.

146. Every summons to a person to give evidence or produce a document shall be served as nearly as may be in manner hereinbefore prescribed for the service of summons on the defendant; and the rules for the guidance of officers serving summonses on the defendant shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to officers serving summonses under this section.

Summons how served.

147. The service shall in all cases be made a sufficient time before the time specified in the summons for the attendance of the person summoned, to allow him a reasonable time for preparation and for travelling to the place at which his attendance is required.

Time for serving summons.

148. If the summons for the attendance of a person, either to give evidence or to produce a document, cannot be served in any of the ways hereinbefore specified, the Court, on being certified thereof by the return of the serving officer, and upon being satisfied that the evidence of such person or the production of such document is material, and that he is absconding or keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding the service of the summons, may cause a proclamation requiring his attendance to give evidence, or produce the document, at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous place of the house in which he is dwelling; and if he does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may in its discretion, at the instance of the party on whose application the summons was issued, make an order for the attachment of the movable property of the person whose attendance is required, to such amount as the Court deems reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of the costs of attachment and of any fine to which he may be liable under the provisions of section 150.

Attachment of property of absconding witness.

149. If, on the attachment of his property, such person appears and satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as it thinks fit.

If witness appears, attachment may be withdrawn.

150. If the person whose attendance is required does not appear, or appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that he did not abscond or keep out of the way to avoid service of the summons, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court may impose upon him such fine not exceeding the amount in dispute as the Court thinks fit, having regard to his condition in life and all the circumstances of the case, and may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of the said fine if any.

Procedure if witness fails to appear.

If the person whose attendance is required pays into Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Court shall order the property to be released from attachment.

Of summoning and examining Strangers to the Suit.

151. If the Court at any time thinks it necessary to examine any person other than a party to the suit, and not named as a witness by a party to the suit, the Court may, of its own accord, cause such person to be summoned as a witness to give evidence, or to produce any document in his possession, on a day to be appointed, and may examine him as a witness or require him to produce such document.

Court may of its own accord summon as witnesses strangers to suit.

152. Whenever any person not a party to the suit is summoned to give evidence or to produce any document in a suit otherwise than on the application of a party to the suit, the cost of summoning such person, including his travelling and other expenses, if not deposited by any party to the suit, shall (if the Court so directs) be paid by the Collector of the District, and shall be costs in the suit, and shall be paid out of any money recovered on account of costs in the suit, whether at the instance of the Government or of any of the parties to the suit, before any other costs in the suit are paid.

Payment of cost of summons.

ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-ATTENDANCE.

153. Whoever is summoned to appear and give evidence in a suit, must attend at the time and place named in the summons for that purpose.

Persons summoned to give evidence must attend.

154. If any person on whom a summons to give evidence or produce a document has been served fails, without lawful excuse, to comply with the summons, the Court may order him to be apprehended and brought before the Court.

Consequences of non-attendance by witness.

If he absconds or keeps out of the way, so that he cannot be apprehended and brought before the Court, his property may be attached and sold for the purpose of realizing such fine and costs as the Court may order him to pay, in the manner and subject to the rules provided in sections 148, 149 and 150, with respect to any person on whom the service of a summons cannot be effected.

Explanation.—Before ordering a person to be apprehended it should appear to the Court that there is reason to believe that he has no lawful excuse for his failure to comply with the summons; but it is not necessary for this purpose to institute a formal investigation and come to a determination on evidence adduced.

155. If any person attending or being present in Court refuses, without lawful excuse, to give evidence, or to produce any document in his custody or possession named in such summons as aforesaid, upon being required by the Court so to do, the Court may commit him to jail for such time as it thinks fit, unless, in the mean time, he consents to give his evidence or to produce the document.

Consequences of refusal to give evidence or produce documents.

If after the expiration of such time he persists in his refusal, the Court may proceed to deal with him according to the provisions of the Indian Penal Code or any other law for the punishment of persons refusing to give evidence.

Explanation.—"Lawful excuse" means, in this section, such an excuse as, under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, justifies a refusal to give the evidence or produce the document required.

156. Any person present in Court, whether a party to the suit or not may be called upon by the Court to give evidence and to produce any document then and there in his actual possession or in his power, in the same manner and subject to the same rules as if he had been summoned to attend and give evidence or to produce such document.

Any person present in Court may be called upon to give evidence though not summoned.

Such person shall be liable to be dealt with by the Court in the same manner as a party or witness, as the case may be, would be liable, under any of the provisions hereinbefore contained, to be dealt with for any refusal to obey the order of the Court.

CHAPTER XV.

EXAMINATION OF PARTIES AND WITNESSES.

157. When a party to a suit appears in person at any hearing of the suit, he may be examined as a witness, either on his own behalf or on behalf of any other party to the suit, in the same manner as if he were not a party.

Party to suit appearing in person may be examined as witness.

158. If a party to a suit require to enforce the attendance of any other party thereto as a witness at any stage of the suit, he shall make a special application to the Court for an order requiring such attendance, and if he shows to the satisfaction of the Court sufficient ground in support of such application, an order shall be made accordingly.

Special application to enforce attendance of party as witness.

If he fails to show such ground the Court shall dismiss the application.

159. The Court, before making such order, may cause notice to be given to the party whose attendance is required, fixing a day for him to show cause why he should not attend and give evidence; and may also from time to time, for sufficient reason, enlarge the time for such purpose.

Court may first give notice, fixing a day to show cause why he should not attend.

160. In support of the cause shown, the Court shall receive any declaration in writing of the party, if signed by him and verified in the manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints.

Written declaration in support of cause shown.

161. If no sufficient cause be shown on the day fixed, or upon any subsequent day to which the Court may enlarge the time for that purpose, the Court shall issue its order requiring the party to attend and give evidence.

If no sufficient cause shown, order to issue.

Such order may be served either on the party personally or on his pleader or recognised agent.

162. If the Court thinks it necessary to examine any party to the suit, or to inspect any document in his possession or power, and if he is not

(a) unable from sickness or infirmity to attend before the Court to be personally examined, nor

(b) exempted by reason of rank or sex from personal appearance in Court, the Court may, of its own accord, at any stage of the suit, cause him to be summoned to attend as a witness to give evidence or to produce such document if in his possession or power, on a day to be appointed in the summons, and may examine him as a witness, or cause him to be examined in such other manner as the Court directs.

If he resides at a place distant more than fifty miles from the place at which the Court is held, the Court shall not exercise the power conferred by this section, unless railway communication exists between such places, or within a convenient distance from such places, in which case the Court shall have a discretion as to exercising such power.

Consequences of party's non-attendance, refusal to give evidence or produce documents.

163. If any party to the suit is summoned to attend to give evidence or produce a document, and, without lawful excuse, fails to comply with such summons, or, attending or being present in Court, refuses, without lawful excuse, to give evidence or to produce any document in his custody or possession named in such summons as aforesaid, upon being required by the Court so to do, the Court may in its discretion either pass a decree against him, or make such other order in relation to the suit as the Court thinks fit,

Provided, in the case of a party summoned to attend and failing to do so, that the summons to attend has been duly served upon him:

Nothing in the former part of this section shall be deemed to enable the Court to decree a claim which on the face of the record is not warranted by law.

Illustration.

(a.) A sues for rent. The Court orders him to attend to give evidence. A without lawful excuse fails to attend pursuant to the order. The Court, if it find the evidence before it sufficient, should, notwithstanding A's failure, make a decree in his favour.

Witness not bound to attend if residing beyond a certain distance from Court.

164. No person shall be bound to attend in person to give evidence in a Court if he resides at a place distant more than fifty miles from the place at which the Court is held, unless the Court specially orders that he shall appear; nor in any case if he resides at a place distant more than one hundred miles from the place at which the Court is held:

Provided that, if Railway communication exists between the place at which he resides and the place where the Court is held, or within a convenient distance from such places, the Court shall have a discretion as to making such order.

Witnesses to be examined at hearing in open Court.

167. On the day appointed for the hearing of the suit, or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the evidence of the witnesses in attendance shall be taken orally in open Court in the presence and hearing and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Judge.

A witness may for sufficient cause be examined immediately.

168. If a witness be about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or if other sufficient cause be shown to the satisfaction of the Court why his examination should be taken immediately, the Court may, upon the application of either party or of the witness, at any time after the institution of the suit, take the examination of such witness forthwith, or on any day fixed for that purpose, of which due notice shall be given to the parties if the day be fixed in their absence.

The witness shall be examined, and his evidence shall be taken down in writing, in the manner hereinafter provided for the examination of witnesses; and the evidence so taken down may be read in evidence at any hearing of the suit.

How evidence shall be taken in appealable cases.

169. In cases in which an appeal is allowed, the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing, in the language in use in proceedings before the Court, by or in the presence and under the personal direction and superintendence of the Judge, not ordinarily in the form of question and answer, but in that of a narrative, and, when completed, shall be read over in the presence of the Judge and of the witness, and shall, if necessary, be corrected, and shall be signed by the Judge.

Local Government may direct evidence to be taken down by Judge with his own hand.

170. The Local Government may order that the evidence of witnesses in any District, or in any class of Courts in any District, shall be taken down by the Judge with his own hand.

Any such order may be cancelled.

When the Judge is prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

When witness may require his deposition to be interpreted.

171. If the evidence is taken down in a language different from that in which it was given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the evidence as taken down in writing shall be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given.

When evidence may be taken in English.

172. If in a Court in which English is not the language in use the parties to the suit who are present, and the pleaders of such as are absent, consent to have such evidence as is given in English taken down in that language, the Judge may take down the evidence in English with his own hand.

173. It shall be in the discretion of the Court to take down or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer if there appears any special reason for so doing, or if any party to the suit or his pleader so requires.

Any particular question and answer may be taken down.

174. If any question put to a witness be objected to, the question, whether the Court allow or forbid it to be put, shall be taken down.

Questions objected to.

The answer shall also be taken down if the Court allow the question to be put; and the objection and the name of the party making it shall be noticed in taking down the evidence, together with the decision of the Court upon the objection.

175. The Court may record such remarks as it thinks material respecting the demeanour of any witness while under examination.

Remarks on demeanour of witnesses.

176. In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Judge, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what each witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Memorandum when evidence is not taken down by Judge.

177. In cases in which an appeal is not allowed, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence of the witnesses in writing at length; but the Judge, as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall make a memorandum of the substance of what he deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Memorandum of evidence in unappealable cases.

178. If the Judge be prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so; and in cases in which an appeal is not allowed, he shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court and shall sign the same, and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

Judge unable to make such memorandum to record reason of his inability.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

179. The Court, after inspecting the documentary evidence, and examining or hearing examined the witnesses of the parties, and hearing the parties in person or by their respective pleaders, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders.

Judgment when pronounced.

180. The judgment shall be written in the Judge's mother-tongue:

Judgment to be written in Judge's mother-tongue.

Provided that, if such mother-tongue be not English, and the Judge be sufficiently conversant with English to be able to write a decision in that language, and prefer so to write it, the judgment may be written in English.

Proviso.

181. Whenever the judgment is written in any language other than that in use in proceedings before the Court, the judgment shall be translated into the language in ordinary use in such proceedings, and the translation shall also be signed by the Judge:

Translation of judgment.

Provided that, if the judgment be written in English, it shall not be necessary to make a translation of it in suits in which an appeal is not allowed, unless any of the parties require such translation.

182. The judgment shall be dated and signed by the Judge in open Court at the time of pronouncing it.

Judgment to be dated and signed.

183. The judgments of the Courts of Small Causes need not contain more than the points for determination and the decision thereupon.

Judgments of Small Cause Courts.

The judgments of all other Courts shall, in addition to the points for determination and the decision thereon, contain the reasons for such decision.

Judgments of other Courts.

184. In suits in which issues have been framed, the Court shall state its finding or decision, with the reasons thereof, upon each separate issue, unless the finding upon any one or more of the issues be sufficient for the decision of the suit.

Court to state its decision on each issue.

Exception.

185. The decree shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced, and shall be signed by the Judge and sealed with the seal of the Court.

Date of decree.

186. The decree must agree with the judgment: it shall contain the number of the suit, the names and descriptions of the parties, and particulars of the claim, as stated in the register of the suit, and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the suit.

Contents of decree.

The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the suit and by what parties and in what proportions they are to be paid.

If the decree is found to be at variance with the judgment, the Court shall of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, amend the decree so as to bring it into conformity with the judgment.

Power to amend decree.

187. When the suit is for the recovery of immoveable property with specified boundaries, or of the possession of such property, if the decree be for the recovery of a portion only of such property, or of the possession of such portion, it shall specify the boundaries of the property affected by the decree.

188. When the suit is for moveable property, if the decree be for the delivery of such property, it shall also state the amount of money to be paid as an alternative if delivery cannot be had.

Decree for delivery of moveable property.

189. When the suit is for a sum of money due to the plaintiff, the Court may, in the decree, order interest at such rate as the Court thinks proper to be paid on the principal sum adjudged, from the date of the suit to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the date of suit, with further interest on the aggregate sum so adjudged, and on the costs of the suit, from the date of the decree to the date of payment.

In suits for money, decree may order certain interest to be paid on principal sum adjudged.

Payment by instalments.*

190. In all decrees for the payment of money, the Court may for any sufficient reason order that the amount shall be paid by instalments with or without interest.

Court may order payment by instalments.

And on the application of the defendant at any time after decree, the Court may order that the amount of the decree be paid by instalments on such terms as to the payment of interest, the attachment of the property of the defendant, or the taking of security from him, or otherwise as it thinks fit.

In suits for land, Court may decree payment of mesne profits with interest.

191. When the suit is for land or other property paying rent, the Court may provide in the decree for the payment of mesne profits or rent in respect of such property from the date of the suit until the date of delivery of possession to the party in whose favour the decree is made, or until the expiration of one year from the date of the decree (whichever is soonest), with interest thereupon at such rate as the Court thinks fit.

Explanation.—'mesne profits' of property mean those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received, or might with ordinary diligence have received, therefrom.

Court may determine amount of mesne profits prior to passing decree, or may reserve enquiry.

192. When the suit is for land and for mesne profits which have accrued on the land during a period prior to the date of suit, and the amount of such profits is disputed, the Court may either determine the amount by the decree itself, or may pass a decree for the land and direct an enquiry into the amount of mesne profits, and dispose of the same on further orders.

Administration-suit.

193. When the object of the suit is to obtain an account of any property and to have the same duly administered under the decree of the Court, the Court, before making its final decree, shall order such accounts and enquiries to be taken and made, and give such other directions, as it thinks fit for carrying out such object.

Suit for dissolution of partnership.

194. When the object of the suit is to obtain the dissolution of a partnership, the Court, before making its final decree, may pass an order fixing the day on which the partnership shall stand dissolved and appointing a receiver of the partnership-estate and effects, and directing such accounts to be taken and other acts to be done as it thinks fit for carrying out such object.

If set-off be allowed.

195. If the defendant has set-off the amount of a debt against the claim of the plaintiff, the decree shall state what amount is due to the plaintiff and what amount (if any) is due to the defendant, and shall be for the recovery of any sum which appears to be due to either party.

Effect of decree.

The decree of the Court with respect to any sum awarded to the defendant shall have the same effect, and be subject to the same rules in respect of appeal or otherwise, as if such sum had been claimed by the defendant in a separate suit against the plaintiff.

Certified copies of decree and judgment to be furnished.

196. Certified copies of the judgment and decree, or of either of them, shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Court, and on the production of the necessary stamp-paper for making such copies where a stamp is required by law.

CHAPTER XVII.

OF COSTS.

Costs of applications.

197. When disposing of any application under this Code the Court may give to either party the costs of such application, or may reserve the consideration of such costs for any future stage of the proceedings.

Judgment to direct by whom costs are to be paid.

The judgment shall direct by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, whether by himself or by any other party to the suit, and whether in whole or in what part or proportion.

Power of Court as to costs.

198. The Court shall have full power to give and apportion costs in any manner it thinks fit, and the fact that the Court has no jurisdiction to try the case is no bar to the exercise of such power:

Provided that the costs of every application or suit shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, follow the event. And if the Court otherwise directs, it shall state its reasons in writing.

Costs may be set-off against sum admitted or found to be due.

199. The Court may direct that the costs payable to one party by another shall be set-off against a sum which is admitted or is found in the suit to be due from the former to the latter.

Interest on costs.
Costs may be paid out of or charged on subject-matter of suit.

200. The Court may give interest on costs at any rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and may direct that costs, with or without interest, be paid out of or charged upon the subject-matter of the suit.

Questions of costs when reheard or appealable.

201. There shall be no rehearing or appeal on a question solely relating to costs except where it distinctly appears on the face of the proceedings either

(a) that the costs are payable out of or chargeable on some property; or

(b) that the mode in which the costs have been given is inconsistent with some enactment for the time being in force.

Illustration.

A, an incumbrancer upon a certain estate, sues to compel the payment of his charge. The Court decrees him his principal and interest, but refuses his costs. A may appeal against this refusal, for every incumbrancer has a lien for his costs on the property charged.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF THE EXECUTION OF DECREES.

Decree for immovable property.

202. If the decree be for the delivery of any immovable property, possession thereof shall be delivered over to the party to whom it has been adjudged.

When the immovable property is a share of the dwelling-house of an undivided Hindú family, the decree shall be executed with due regard to the customs of the country, and so as to avoid unnecessary annoyance to the members of the family.

203. If the decree be for any specific movable, it shall be enforced by the seizure, if practicable, of the movable and by the delivery thereof to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or by the imprisonment of the party against whom the decree is made, or by attaching his property and keeping the same under attachment until the further order of the Court, or by both imprisonment and attachment, if necessary.

Decree for specific movable.

Provided that, in a suit for the recovery of a wife, or for restitution of conjugal rights, a decree for the plaintiff shall be declaratory and shall be enforced only by attachment in case of disobedience.

204. When the party against whom a decree for the specific performance of a contract has been made has had an opportunity of obeying the decree and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may be enforced by his imprisonment, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

Enforcement, by attachment or imprisonment, of decree for specific performance.

The imprisonment and attachment may be continued until the party against whom the decree is made complies with the terms of it, or for such time as the Court may order:

Provided that no person shall be imprisoned under this section for a longer period than six months.

205. Payment of a sum of money ordered to be paid as the alternative to some other relief granted by the decree shall be enforced in manner hereinafter provided for the execution of a decree for money.

207. Every order under this Code for the payment of money by way of compensation or otherwise shall be enforced in the same manner as a decree for money.

Orders for payment.

208. If in any suit a decree for money is passed against a plaintiff, the decree may be enforced against him in the same manner as a decree may be enforced against a defendant.

Enforcement of decree for money against a plaintiff.

209. When a decree is passed for a sum of money only, and the amount decreed does not exceed the sum of one thousand rupees, the Court may, when passing the decree, on the oral application of the party in whose favour the decree is made, order immediate execution thereof by the issue of a warrant directed either against the person of the judgment-debtor if he is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or against his moveable property within the same limits.

Power to direct immediate execution of decree for money not exceeding Rs. 1,000.

210. If the warrant be directed against the moveable property of the judgment-debtor, it may be general against any of his moveable property wherever it may be found within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or special against any of his moveable property within the same limits which is indicated by the party in whose favour the decree is made.

Warrant against moveable property may be general or special.

211. If the decree be for the execution of a conveyance, or for the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, and the party ordered to execute such conveyance or endorse such instrument neglects or refuses to comply with the order, the party in whose favour the decree is made may prepare the draft of a conveyance or endorsement in accordance with the terms of the decree, and deliver a copy of the draft to the party so ordered to execute or endorse, and tender another copy of the same to the Court for execution upon the proper stamp-paper if a stamp is required by law.

Decree for execution of conveyance, or endorsement of negotiable instruments

The Court shall thereupon execute such draft-conveyance or endorsement, or, if necessary, may alter the same so as to bring it into accordance with the terms of the decree, and execute the conveyance or endorsement so altered:

Provided that, if any party object to the draft so tendered as aforesaid, his objections shall, within eight days of such delivery, be stated in writing and argued before the Court, and the Court shall thereupon pass such order as it thinks fit, and execute, or alter and execute, the draft in accordance therewith.

212. The execution of a conveyance or the endorsement of a negotiable instrument by the Court under the last preceding section may be in the following form—"C. D., Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be), for A. B., in a suit by E. F. against A. B.—" or in such other form as the High Court may from time to time prescribe, and shall have the same effect as the execution of the conveyance or endorsement of the instrument by the party ordered to execute or endorse the same.

Form and effect of execution of conveyance by Court.

213. If the decree be against a party as the legal representative of a deceased person, and the decree be for money to be paid out of the property of the deceased, it may be executed by the attachment and sale of any such property.

Decree against representative of deceased for money to be paid out of deceased's property.

If no such property can be found and the defendant fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against the defendant to the extent of the property not duly applied by him, in the same manner as if the decree had been against him personally.

214. Whenever a person has, before the passing of a decree, become liable as surety for the performance of the same or of any part thereof, the decree may be executed against him to the extent to which he has rendered himself liable, in the same manner as a decree may be executed against a defendant.

Decree against surety

215. Obstruction by claimant other than defendant.

304. If it appear that the resistance or obstruction to the delivery of possession was occasioned by any person other than the defendant, claiming a right to the possession of the property sold, as proprietor, mortgagee, lessee, or under any other title, or if, in the delivery of possession to the purchaser, any such person claiming as aforesaid be dispossessed, the Court, on the complaint of the purchaser, or of such person claiming as aforesaid, shall enquire into the matter of the complaint and pass such order as it thinks fit.

The party against whom such order is passed shall be at liberty to bring a suit to establish his right to the property at any time within one year from the date of such order.

307. If it appear to the Court upon the application of the holder of a decree, that any other decree under which property has been attached was obtained by fraud or other improper means, the Court may either order that the proceedings be stayed and refer the parties to a regular suit, or, if it find the materials before it sufficient for deciding the case at once, may order,

(a) if such other decree be a decree of the same Court, that the applicant shall be satisfied out of the proceeds of the property attached so far as the same may suffice for the purpose;

346. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that at the date of the attachment he was entitled to, or possessed of, the property attached.

Release of property from attachment.

347. If the property is immoveable, and if upon the said investigation the Court is satisfied that, for the reason stated in the claim or objection, such property was not, when attached, in the possession of the party against whom execution is sought or of some person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, or that, being in the possession of the party himself at such time, it was so in his possession, not on his own account or as his own property, but on account of or in trust for some other person, the Court shall pass an order for releasing the property from attachment.

348. If in like manner the Court is satisfied that the property was in possession of such party, subject to a mortgage or lien in favour of some other person, the Court shall continue the attachment subject to the claims of such other person.

Continuance of attachment subject to claim of incumbrancer.

349. If the property attached be immovable, and the Court is satisfied that the property was, at the time it was attached, in possession of the party against whom execution is sought as his own property and not on account of any other person, or was in the possession of some other person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, the Court shall disallow the claim and may order the sale to proceed at such time as it thinks fit.

When Court to disallow claim to release of property attached.

350. The party against whom an order is passed under section 347, may bring a suit to establish his right to attach the property, and on obtaining a decree in such suit, the said order shall be set aside.

Person against whom order is passed under section 347 or 349 may sue within one year to establish his right.

The party against whom an order is passed under section 349, may, within one year from the date of the order, bring a suit for a declaration that at the date of the attachment he was entitled to, or possessed of, the property attached.

351. A claim to attached property, or an objection to the sale of such property, shall be made without delay to the Court which ordered the attachment; and if the property to which the claim or objection applies has been advertised for sale, the sale may, if the Court thinks fit, be postponed pending the investigation into the claim or objection:

Claims and objections to be made without delay.

Provided that no such investigation shall be made if it appear that the making of the claim or objection was designedly and unnecessarily delayed with a view to obstruct the ends of justice.

352. If, on the ground of delay in making it, the claim or objection be disallowed, or the Court refuse to investigate it, the proceedings on such claim or objection shall not preclude a suit by the claimant or objector.

If claim or objection be disallowed, claimant or objector may sue.

PART II.

OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XIX.

OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

353. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the cause of action survives.

No abatement by party's death, if cause of action survive.

Illustrations.

(a). A covenants with B and C to pay an annuity to B during C's life. B and C sue A to compel payment. B dies before the decree: the cause of action survives to C, and the suit does not abate.

(b). In the same case, all the parties die before decree. The cause of action survives to the representative of the survivor of B and C, and he may continue the suit against A's representative.

354. If there be more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any of them dies, and if the cause of action survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants.

Proceeding in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or defendants, if cause of action survive.

355. If there be more plaintiffs than one, and any of them dies, and if the cause of action does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, but survives to him or them and the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff jointly, the Court may, on the application of such legal representative, enter his name in the register of the suit in the place of such deceased plaintiff, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs and such legal representative.

Proceeding in case of death of one of several plaintiffs, where cause of action survives to the survivors and representative of deceased.

356. If no application be made to the Court within a reasonable time by any person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs; and the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff shall be interested in and bound by the decree passed in the suit, in the same manner as if the suit had proceeded at his instance conjointly with the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs.

Proceeding where no application made by representative of deceased plaintiff.

357. In case of the death of a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff, the Court may, on the application of the legal representative of the deceased, enter his name in the place of such plaintiff in the register of the suit, and the suit shall thereupon proceed.

Proceeding in case of death of sole, or sole surviving, plaintiff.

358. If no such application be made to the Court within a reasonable time, by any person claiming to be the legal representative of any such deceased plaintiff as aforesaid, the Court may pass an order that the suit shall abate, and award to the defendant the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of such deceased plaintiff as aforesaid; or the Court may, if it think proper, on the application of the defendant, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, pass such other order as it thinks fit for bringing in the legal representative of such deceased plaintiff as aforesaid, and for proceeding with the suit in order to a final determination of the matter in dispute.

Abatement where no application by representative of deceased plaintiff.

Explanation.—A certificate of heirship, or a certificate to collect debts, does not of itself constitute the person holding it the legal representative of the deceased. But when the person holding any such certificate obtains thereby property belonging to the deceased, he may be treated as a legal representative liable in respect of such property.

359. If any dispute arise as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit.

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants, or of sole or sole surviving defendant.

360. If there be more defendants than one and any of them die, and the cause of action does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, and also in case of the death of a sole defendant, or sole surviving defendant, where the right to sue survives, the plaintiff may make an application to the Court, specifying the name, description, and place of abode of any person whom the plaintiff alleges to be the legal representative of the deceased defendant, and whom he desires to be made the defendant in his stead.

The Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative in the register of the suit in the place of such defendant, and shall issue a summons to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit; and the case shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as if such representative had originally been made a defendant and had been a party to the former proceedings in the suit:

Provided that the person so made defendant shall be at liberty to object that he is not the legal representative of the deceased defendant, or to make any defence appropriate to his character as such representative.

Suit not abated by marriage of female party.

361. The marriage of a female plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate, but the suit may notwithstanding be proceeded with to judgment, and where the decree is against a female defendant, it may thereupon be executed against the wife alone.

If the case is one in which the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, with the permission of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and in case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may with such permission be issued upon the application of the husband, where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree.

When plaintiff's bankruptcy or insolvency bars suit.

362. The bankruptcy or insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee might maintain for the benefit of his creditors shall not bar the suit, unless such assignee declines to continue the suit and to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order.

If the assignee neglect or refuse to continue the suit and to give such security within the time limited by the order, the defendant may, within eight days after such neglect or refusal, apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's bankruptcy or insolvency, and the Court may award to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the plaintiff's estate.

Effect of abatement on parties' rights.

363. The abatement or dismissal of a suit under this chapter shall have the same effect on the rights of the parties as if the suit had been dismissed on the merits.

CHAPTER XX.

OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Court may allow plaintiff to withdraw suit, with liberty to bring fresh suit.

364. If, at any time before judgment, the Court is satisfied on the application of the plaintiff (a) that the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, and (b) that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the same matter, the Court may grant such permission on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

If the plaintiff withdraw from the suit without such permission, he shall be liable for such costs as the Court may award, and shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit for the same matter.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

Limitation-law not affected by first suit.

365. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding section, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitations in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought.

Compromise of suits.

366. If a suit be adjusted by mutual agreement or compromise, or if the defendant satisfy the plaintiff in respect to the matter of the suit, such agreement, compromise or satisfaction shall be recorded, and the suit shall be disposed of in accordance therewith.

CHAPTER XXI.

OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Deposit by defendant of amount considered by him to be in full satisfaction of claim with costs up to date.

367. The defendant in any suit involving a claim to money, may at any stage of the suit deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim.

Notice of deposit.

Notice of the deposit shall be given by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the amount of the deposit shall be paid to the plaintiff on his application.

Interest on sum deposited not allowed to plaintiff after receipt of notice.

No interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on any sum deposited by the defendant from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fal[illegible]ort thereof.

Procedure where plaintiff accepts the deposit as satisfaction in part.

368. If the plaintiff [illegible]pt such amount only as [illegible]sfaction in part of his [illegible]im, he may prosecute h[illegible]t for the balance; but if the Court decides that the payment by the defendant has been a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff must pay the costs of the suit.

Procedure where he accepts the deposit as satisfaction in full.

If the plaintiff accept such amount as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall file in Court a statement to that effect, and the Court shall pass judgment accordingly, and in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation.

Illustrations.

(a). A owes B Rs. 100. B sues A for [illegible] amount, having made no demand for payment and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim, but the Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b). B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shewn that the litigation was necessary.

(c). A owes B Rs. 100 and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150 and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed, A pays Rs. 100 into Court and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50. B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

(d). A pays Rs. 100 into Court under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (c). B accepts it in part discharge of his claim and continues the suit for the remainder. B fails. The Court should order him to pay all the costs of the suit.

The above illustrations assume that, save what is therein mentioned, there is nothing in the conduct of the parties which should influence the Court in awarding costs.

CHAPTER XXII.

OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

When security for costs is to be furnished by plaintiff at the time of presenting the plaint.

369. When the plaintiff ordinarily resides out of British India, and does not possess any sufficient immovable property within British India independent of the property in suit, he shall, on presenting the plaint or within such time as the Court may fix, furnish security for the payment of the costs that may be incurred by the defendant.

When security for costs may be required from the plaintiff at any stage of suit.

370. If at any subsequent stage of a suit it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or that all the plaintiffs (when there are more plaintiffs than one) are, residing out of British India, and such plaintiff or plaintiffs does not or do not possess any sufficient immovable property within British India independent of the property in suit, the Court may order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time to be fixed [illegible] the order, to give security for the payment of [illegible] costs incurred and likely to be incurred by the [illegible]ndant.

Procedure where requisition is not complied with.

In the event of such [illegible]urity not being furnished [illegible] the time so fixed, the Court shall pass a decree against the plaintiff or plaintiffs by default, unless he or they be permitted to withdraw from the suit under the provisions of section 364.

Residence out of British India.

371. A person is considered to be resident out of British India, within the meaning of the two last preceding sections, who leaves British India under such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF SETTING ASIDE DECREES BY DEFAULT AND EX PARTE.

Setting aside decree ex parte against defendant.

372. In any case in which a decree is passed ex parte against a defendant under section 92, he may within a reasonable time, not exceeding thirty days after any process for enforcing the decree has been executed, apply to the Court by which the decree was made for an order to set it aside; and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that the defendant was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the decree upon such terms as to costs, payment into Court, or otherwise, as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

Setting aside decree by default against plaintiff.

373. In any case in which a decree is passed against a plaintiff by default under section 96, he may within thirty days from the date of the decree apply for an order to set it aside; and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the plaintiff was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall pass an order to set aside the decree upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

No decree to be set aside, without notice to opposite party.

374. No decree shall be set aside on any such application as aforesaid, unless notice [illegible] has been served on the [illegible] party.

Order for setting aside decree to be final.

375. In every case in which the Co[illegible]s an order under section 372 or section 373 for setting aside a decree, the order shall be final.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF COMMISSIONS.

A.—Commissions to examine Witnesses.

Cases in which Court may issue commission to examine witness.

376. The Court may order a commission to issue for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of the following persons:—

(a) persons who, under section 162 or section 164, are not bound to attend the Court;

(b) persons who are from sickness or infirmity unable to attend;

(c) persons exempted by reason of rank or sex, from appearing in Court.

Order for commission may be made either on application of parties or by Court of its own accord.

377. Such order may be made by the Court either of its own motion, or on the application of any party to the suit or of the witness to be examined.

Directions for examination.

378. The Court may, by the same or any subsequent order, give such directions as to taking the examination of an absent witness as it thinks fit.

When witness resides within Court's jurisdiction.

379. If a Commission be issued for the examination of a person who resides within the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the Commission, the Commission may be issued to any officer of the Court or to any Court subordinate to such Court, or to any other person whom the Court issuing the Commission thinks proper to appoint to execute the same.

When witness resides beyond Court's jurisdiction, but in British India.

380. If the person resides at some place in British India beyond the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the Commission, the Commission shall ordinarily be issued to any Court, not being a High Court, within whose jurisdiction he resides, and which can most conveniently execute the same:

Provided that, under special circumstances, the Commission may be issued to any person whom the Court issuing it thinks fit to appoint.

When witness is within local limits of ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court.

381. If the person resides beyond the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the Commission and within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of any High Court, the Commission shall be issued to the Court of Small Causes within whose jurisdiction the witness resides, or to any Court, other than a High Court, which now exists or may hereafter be established with jurisdiction within the same local limits:

Provided that, under special circumstances, the Commission may be directed to any person whom the Court issuing the Commission thinks fit to appoint.

When witness is not within British India.

382. In the case of a person residing at any place not within British India, the Court, if satisfied that the evidence of such person is necessary, may, of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties to the suit, issue a Commission for his examination:

Provided that, if the suit be pending in any Court subordinate to the District Court, such subordinate Court shall not issue the Commission, but the District Court may issue the Commission on the application of the subordinate Court.

Commission when executed to be returned to Court issuing it with depositions of witnesses.

383. After the Commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court out of which it issued, unless the order for issuing the Commission has otherwise directed, in which case the Commission shall be returned in terms of such order, and the Commission and the return thereto, and the evidence taken under it, shall form part of the record of the suit.

When depositions may be read in evidence.

384. Evidence taken under a Commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless

(a) the person who gave the evidence is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead, or unable from sickness or infirmity to attend to be personally examined, or exempted from personal appearance in Court, or

(b) the Court in its discretion dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding clause, and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by Commission has ceased at the time of reading the same.

Evidence of prisoners.

385. If the person whose evidence is required is in jail, his evidence shall be taken in the mode prescribed by the Prisoners' Testimony Act, 1869, or by any other law for the time being specially applicable to the taking of evidence in the case of prisoners.

B.—Commission for Local Investigations.

Commission to make local investigations.

386. In any suit in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property or the amount of any mesne profits or damages, or annual nett profits, the Court may issue a Commission to an officer of the Court appointed to execute such Commissions, or, if there be no such officer, to any suitable person, directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court.

Appointment of Government officer as Commissioner.

387. If in any case it appears desirable to employ an officer of Government other than the officer of the Court appointed to execute such Commissions, the Court may, with the consent of the immediate superior of the officer whom the Court wishes to employ, appoint him to make such investigation and report.

Commissioner may examine parties and witnesses and call for papers.

388. The Commissioner, unless otherwise directed by the order of appointment, may examine the parties themselves and any witness whom they or any of them may produce, and any other person whom the Commissioner thinks proper to call upon to give evidence in the matter referred to him.

The Commissioner may also call for and examine documents and other papers relevant to the subject of enquiry.

The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary, and after reducing to writing, in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for taking the evidence of witnesses in the presence of the Judge, the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence, together with his report in writing, subscribed with his name, to the Court.

Report and depositions to be evidence in suit.

389. The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record; but the Court, or any of the parties to the suit with the permission of the Court, may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to the manner in which he may have conducted the investigation.

Commissioner may be examined in person.

C.—Commission to investigate Accounts.

Commissioner to investigate and adjust accounts.

390. In any suit in which an investigation or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may appoint such officer or other person as aforesaid to be a Commissioner for the purpose of making such investigation or adjustment.

391. The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the enquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his investigation.

Court to give Commissioner necessary instructions.

392. The proceedings of the Commissioner shall be received in evidence in the suit, unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further enquiry as is requisite, and shall make such decree or order as it thinks fit.

Proceedings of Commissioner may be received in evidence.

Power to make further enquiry if dissatisfied.

D.—General Provisions.

393. Whenever a Commission is issued under any of the provisions of this Chapter, the Court, before issuing the Commission, may order such sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the Commission to be paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the Commission is issued.

Expenses of Commission to be paid into Court.

394. The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance, and examination of witnesses and to the remuneration of, and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under the foregoing provisions relating to Commissions to examine persons, whether parties to the suit or not or to make local enquiries, or to investigate or adjust accounts.

Attendance, examination and punishment of witnesses summoned by Commission.

The examinations of witnesses before a Commission shall be conducted in the same manner as the examination of witnesses is conducted in the Court from which the Commission issued.

The Commissioner shall take down all questions and answers, and make a note of the objections, if any, to the admissibility of evidence.

Any penalty to which a witness may be liable under this section shall, on the application of the Commissioner, be imposed by the Court from which the Commission issued.

The Commissioner shall have the same legal powers, as regards the summoning, examination and remuneration of witnesses, as the Court issuing the Commission.

395. Whenever a Commission is issued under the provisions of this Chapter, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commission in person or by their agents or pleaders.

Procedure ex parte where parties do not appear.

If the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed ex parte.

PART III.

OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER XXV.

SUITS BY PAUPERS.

396. A suit may be brought in formâ pauperis in the Court having jurisdiction over the claim, subject to the following rules.

Suits may be brought in formâ pauperis.

397. No suit shall be brought in formâ pauperis to recover compensation for loss of caste, slander, abusive language or assault.

What suits excepted.

398. The application for permission to institute a suit in formâ pauperis shall be by petition in writing.

Application to be by Petition on stamp paper.

399. The petition shall contain the particulars required by section 49 in regard to plaints in suits, and shall have annexed to it a schedule of any movable or immovable property belonging to the petitioner, with the estimated value thereof, and shall be subscribed and verified in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the subscription and verification of plaints.

Contents of petition.

400. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 32, the petition shall be presented to the Court by the petitioner in person.

Presentation of petition.

But if he satisfy the Court that he is prevented by sickness from attending the Court in person, or if the petitioner be a female who, according to the customs of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public, the petition may be presented by a duly authorized agent who may be able to answer all material questions relating to the application, and who shall be liable to be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person.

Certain petitions may be presented by agent.

401. If the petition be not framed or presented in the manner laid down in sections 399 and 400, the Court shall reject it.

Rejection of petition.

402. If the petition be in form and duly presented, the presiding officer of the Court shall himself proceed to examine the petitioner, or his agent when the petitioner is allowed to appear by agent, regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the petitioner.

Examination of petitioner.

When the petition is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks proper, order that the petitioner be examined by a Commission in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken under the provisions of this Code.

If presented by agent, Court may order petitioner to be examined by Commission.

Rejection of application.

403. If it appear to the Court upon such examination

(a) that the defendant, or the subject-matter of the suit, is not within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(b) that the right to sue is barred by lapse of time, or

(c) that the allegations of the petitioner do not shew a right to sue, or

(d) that he has failed to show that he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law for the plaint, or

(e) that he has recently disposed of any property fraudulently or with a view to obtain the benefit of this Chapter, the Court shall refuse to allow him to sue as a pauper.

Notice of day for receiving evidence of petitioner's pauperism.

404. If upon such examination the Court sees no reason to refuse the application on any of the grounds stated in the last preceding section, it shall fix a day, of which at least ten days' previous notice shall be given to the opposite party, for receiving such evidence as the petitioner may adduce in proof of his being a pauper, and for hearing any evidence which the opposite party may bring forward in disproof of his pauperism.

Procedure at hearing.

405. On the day so fixed or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence.

The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the petition and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the petitioner is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in section 403.

The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the petitioner to sue as a pauper.

[illegible] to witness.

406. [illegible] party may, on application to the Court made in sufficient time before the day fixed for the hearing of the case, obtain a summons to any person to attend either to give evidence or to produce a document.

Court may institute local investigation.

407. Previously to passing a final order in the case, the Court may, if it thinks fit, cause a local investigation to be made in the manner laid down in sections 386 to 389 (both inclusive) regarding the property of the petitioner or regarding the amount or value of any property claimed.

Procedure if application admitted.

408. If the application of the petitioner be granted, it shall be numbered and registered and shall be deemed the plaint in the suit, and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted under chapter V, except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to any fee chargeable under the Court Fees Act, 1870, in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader, or other proceeding connected with the suit.

Nothing in this section exempts the petitioner from—

(a) payment of the expenses of service of process,

(b) payment of the travelling and other expenses of witnesses,

(c) payment of the duty and penalty (if any) payable under the General Stamp Act on unstamped or insufficiently stamped instruments produced in Court by or on behalf of the petitioner, or ([illegible] security for costs, if he resides out [illegible] British India.

Costs when pauper succeeds.

409. If the plaintiff succeed in the suit, the Court may award to him such costs as it thinks fit, and shall calculate the amount of fees chargeable under the Court Fees Act, 1870, which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper, and such amount shall be recoverable by Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, in the same manner as costs of suit are recoverable under this Code.

*Recovery of dives stamp duty.*

The costs of an application for permission to sue as a pauper and of an enquiry into pauperism are costs in the suit.

Procedure when pauper fails.

If the plaintiff fails in the suit, the Court may order him to pay costs to the defendant; and if it find that the suit was frivolous or vexatious it may also punish him with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to a month, or with both.

Refusal to allow petitioner to sue as pauper to bar subsequent application of like nature.

410. Refusal to allow the petitioner to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature in respect of the same right to sue; but the plaintiff shall be at liberty to institute a suit in the ordinary manner in respect of such right.

Dispaupering.

411. The Court may, on motion by the defendant, of which he shall have given one week's notice in writing to the plaintiff, order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit;

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper; or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit, which would be held invalid on the ground of its breeding litigation or being otherwise against public policy.

Attendance, examination and punishment of witnesses.

412. The provisions of Chapters XIV and XV relating to the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses, and to the remuneration of, and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to witnesses and other persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under the provisions of this Chapter.

CHAPTER XXVI.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST GOVERNMENT OR GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

The Secretary of State in Council.

413. Suits by or against the Government shall be brought by or against (as the case may be) the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Persons authorized to act for Government.

414. Persons being ex officio or otherwise authorized to act for Government in respect of any judicial proceeding, shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts and applications un[illegible] Code may be made or done on behalf of Gove[illegible]nt.

415. Security in case of order for execution of a decree appealed against.

559. If an order is made for the execution of a decree against which an appeal has been preferred, the Court which passed the decree may, on sufficient cause being shown by the appellant, require security to be given for the restitution of any property which may be taken in execution of the decree, or of the value of such property, and for the due performance of the decree or order of the Appellate Court, or the Appellate Court may for like cause direct the Court which passed the decree to take such security.

No such security to be required from Government or public officers.

560. No such security as is mentioned in the last three preceding sections shall be required from the Government or from any officer of the Government sued as such.

OF PROCEDURE IN APPEAL FROM DECREES.

Registry of memorandum of appeal.

561. When a memorandum of appeal is presented within the time allowed, the Appellate Court or the proper officer of that Court, if the memorandum be duly stamped and in the prescribed form, shall endorse thereon the date of presentment, and shall register the appeal in a book to be kept for the purpose.

Register.

Such book shall be called the Register of Appeals.

Appellate Court may require appellant to give security for costs.

562. The Appellate Court may, at its discretion, either before the respondent is called upon to appear and answer or afterwards on the application of the respondent, demand from the appellant security for the costs either of the appeal, or of the original suit, or of both:

When appellant resides out of British India.

Provided that the Court shall demand such security in all cases in which the appellant is residing out of British India, and is not possessed of any sufficient immovable property within British India independent of the property to which the appeal relates.

If such security be not furnished at the time of presenting the memorandum of appeal or within such time as the Court orders, the Court shall reject the appeal.

Appellate Court to give notice to Court whose decree is appealed against.

563. When the memorandum of appeal is registered, or when the grounds of objection are filed, the Appellate Court shall send notice of the appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made.

Transmission of papers to Appellate Court.

If the appeal be from a Court the records of which are not deposited in the Appellate Court, the Court to which such notice is sent shall, upon the receipt thereof, transmit with all practicable despatch all material papers in the suit, or such papers as may be specially called for by the Appellate Court.

Copies of exhibits in Court whose decree is appealed against.

564. Either party may make an application in writing to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, specifying any papers of which he requires copies to be made and deposited in such Court, and copies of such papers shall be prepared at the expense of the applicant, and shall be deposited accordingly.

Day for hearing appeal.

565. A day shall be fixed by the Appellate Court for the hearing of the appeal.

The day shall be so fixed, with reference to the place of residence of the respondent and the time necessary for the service of the notice of appeal, as to allow the respondent a sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer the appeal on such day.

Notice of the day fixed for hearing the appeal shall b[illegible]uck up in the Appellat[illegible]d like notice shall [illegible] the Appellate Court to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and shall be served on the respondent or his pleader in the manner provided in chapter VI for the service of a summons to a defendant to appear and answer; and all rules applicable to such summons and to proceedings with reference to the service thereof, shall apply to the service of such notice.

Appellate Court may itself cause notice to be served.

Instead of sending the notice to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, the Appellate Court may itself cause the notice to be served on the respondent or his pleader under the rules above referred to, whenever it appears convenient to do so.

Contents of notice.

567. The notice to the respondent shall declare that, if he does not appear in the Appellate Court on the day so fixed for the hearing of the appeal, the appeal will be heard ex parte.

568. If on the day fixed for hearing the appeal or any other day subsequent thereto to which the hearing of the appeal may be adjourned, the appellant does not attend in person or by his pleader, the appeal shall be dismissed for default.

Hearing appeal ex parte.

If the appellant attends and the respondent does not attend, the appeal shall be heard ex parte in his absence.

569. If on the day fixed for hearing the appeal it be found that the notice to the respondent has not been served in consequence of the failure of the appellant to deposit, within the time allowed, the sum required to defray the cost of issuing the notice, the Court may order that the appeal be dismissed :

Dismissal of appeal where notice has not been served in consequence of appellant's failure to deposit cost of notice.

Provided that no such order shall be passed, although the notice has not been served upon the respondent, if on the day fixed for hearing the appeal the respondent appears in person or by a pleader, or by a duly authorized agent.

Proviso.

570. If an appeal be dismissed for default, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal; and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the appellant was prevented by any sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court may re-admit the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose on the appellant.

Re-admission of appeal dismissed for default.

571. When an appeal is heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent and judgment is given against him, he may apply to the Appellate Court to re-hear the appeal; and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the respondent was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court may re-hear the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court thinks fit to impose on the respondent.

Re-hearing on application of respondent against whom ex parte decree is made.

572. The respondent, though he may not have appealed against any part of the decree, may, upon the hearing, take any objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided he gives the appellant seven days' notice in writing of such objection.

Upon the hearing respondent may object to decree as if he had preferred a separate appeal.

Such notice shall be in the form of a memorandum, and shall be on the stamp-paper prescribed for petitions to the Court; and the provisions of sections 545, 546 and 547, so far as they relate to the form and contents of the memorandum of appeal, shall be applicable to such notice.

Explanation.—A respondent cannot by such notice raise questions between himself and any other respondent or defendant to the suit, but can only raise questions between himself and the appellant.

573. If without going into the merits, the Court against whose decree the appeal is made disposes of the suit upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of fact which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the due determination of the rights of the parties, and the decree upon such preliminary point is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, remand the case, together with a copy of the decree or order in appeal, to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register, and

When further evidence barred.

575. 576. The Appellate Court shall not remand a case for a second decision, except as provided in section 573.

577. When the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court shall finally determine the case notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds.

When evidence on record sufficient Appellate Court shall determine case finally.

578. If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has omitted to raise or try any issue or to determine any question of fact which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right determination of the suit upon the merits, and the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to determine such issue or question, the Appellate Court may frame issues for trial, and may refer the same for trial to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, and (subject to the rules contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872,) prescribe the manner in which the additional evidence required should be taken and the points to which it should be confined, and such Court shall proceed to try such issue, and shall return to the Appellate Court its finding thereon together with the evidence.

When Appellate Court may frame issues and refer them for trial to Court whose decree is appealed against.

579. Such finding and evidence shall become part of the record in the suit; and either party may, within a time to be fixed by the Appellate Court, file a memorandum of objections to the finding.

the Appellate Court may allow such evidence to be produced, or document to be received, or witness to be examined.

Whenever additional evidence is admitted by an Appellate Court, the reason for the admission shall be recorded on the proceedings of the Court.

582. Whenever additional evidence is permitted to be received, the Appellate Court may either take such evidence, or require the Court against whose decree the appeal is made or any other Court, or may empower any person, to take such evidence, and to send it when taken to the Appellate Court.

Mode of taking additional evidence.

Subject to the rules contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, the Appellate Court may also prescribe the manner in which such additional evidence shall be taken.

583. In all cases where additional evidence is permitted to be taken, the Appellate Court shall specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined, and record on its proceedings the points so specified.

Points to be defined and recorded.

The Court may also reject the application if it be not drawn up in the mode prescribed by this chapter, or if it do not bear the proper stamp: or the Court may return the application to the party presenting the same for the purpose of being amended within a time to be fixed by the Court.

If the application lie to the High Court, the order rejecting it may be passed by a single Judge of the Court.

621. In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 620, the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must be ten thousand rupees or upwards, and the amount or value of the matter in dispute on appeal to Her Majesty in Council must be the same sum or upwards, or the decree must involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to, or respecting, property of like amount or value,

622. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 620,

Bar of certain appeals.

no appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council from the judgment of one Judge of a High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter one hundred and four, or of one Judge of a Division Court, or of two or more Judges of such High Court, or of a Division Court constituted by two or more Judges of such High Court, wherever such Judges are equally divided in opinion, and do not amount in number to a majority of the whole of the Judges of the High Court at the time being;

Upon receipt of such petition, the Court may direct notice to be served on the opposite party to show cause why the said certificate should not be granted.

626. If such certificate be refused, the petition shall be dismissed:

Provided that, if the decree complained of be a final decree passed by a Court other than a High Court, the order refusing the certificate shall be appealable, within thirty days from the date of the order, to the High Court to which the former Court is subordinate.

627. If the certificate be granted, the applicant shall, within six months from the date of the decree complained of, or within six weeks from the grant of the certificate, whichever is the later date,

Security and deposit required on grant of certificate.

(a) give security for the costs of the respondent, and

(b) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of translating, transcribing, indexing, and transmitting to Her Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record of the suit, except

(c) transmit to Her Majesty in Council, under the seal of the Court, a correct copy of the said record, except as aforesaid, and

(d) give to either party one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on his applying therefor and paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them.

629. At any time before the admission of the appeal, the Court may, upon cause shown, revoke the acceptance of any such security, and make further directions thereon.

or further payment is required for the purpose of translating, transcribing, printing, indexing, or transmitting the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, the Court may order the appellant to furnish, within a time to be fixed by the Court, other and sufficient security, or to make, within like time, the required payment.

631. If the appellant fail to comply with such order, the proceedings shall be stayed,

But the Court may, if it think fit, on any special cause shown by any party interested in the suit, or otherwise appearing to the Court—

(a) impound any movable property in dispute, or any part thereof, or

(b) allow the decree appealed against to be enforced, taking such security from the respondent as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(c) stay the execution of the decree appealed against, taking such security from the appellant as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of the decree appealed against, or of any order which Her Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions, or give such other direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit.

634. If at any time during the pendency of the appeal, the security so furnished by either party appears inadequate, the Court may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

Increase of security found inadequate.

In default of such further security being furnished as required by the Court, if the original security was furnished by the appellant, the Court may, on the application of the respondent, issue execution of the decree appealed against as if the appellant had furnished no such security.

And if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court shall, so far as may be practicable, stay all further execution of the decree, and restore the parties to the position in which they respectively were when the security which appears inadequate was furnished, or give such direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit.

RESOLUTION.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

SECTION B.

Calcutta, the 15*th March* 1875.

BY the promotion of Mr. R. L. Mangles to be a Judge of the 1st class, the transfer of Mr. H. B. Simson to the Additional Judgeship of the districts of the Patna Division vice Mr. Mangles, with a salary of Rs. 2,000, and the appointment of Mr. T. T. Allen to act in the 2nd class of Judges while he may be employed as Additional Judge of Jessore and Backergunge, in succession to Mr. Simson, the saving of Rs. 333-5-4 referred to in paragraph 3 of the

...tion of the 8th April 1874 has now been effected. It was always contem-...d that the saving to be effected, when these two additional judgeships on Rs. 2,166-10-8 were reduced to second grade judgeships on Rs. 2,000, should be utilized in increasing further the allowances of the Magistrate-Collectors of the second class, or otherwise improving the position of Magistrate-Collectors generally.

The grades of Magistrate-Collectors as reconstituted in the above Resolution stood as follows :—

1st grade ...	... 15 officers.
2nd „ ...	... 15 „
3rd „ ...	... 7 „	including the Senior Superintendent of Survey

Under the orders of the Government of India, No 977, dated 18th December last, the number of officers in the 2nd grade has been reduced to 14, and by the constitution of the new district of Durbhunga, the strength of the 3rd grade has been raised to 8 officers.

The saving now effected enables the Lieutenant-Governor to raise one officer from the 3rd grade on Rs. 1,500 to the 2nd grade on Rs. 1,800; thus this arrangement places the grades of Magistrate-Collectors in the same position in which they stood on the date of the Resolution announcing the completion of the arrangements for the establishment of parallel lines of promotion for the Judicial and Executive branches of the Covenanted Service.

A saving of Rs. 33 will remain after the strength of the 2nd grade of Magistrate-Collectors has been restored to 15 officers.

Mr. J. F. K. Hewitt, Magistrate and Collector of the 3rd grade, is promoted to be Magistrate and Collector of the 2nd grade.

Mr. R. D. Hime is promoted to the vacancy in the 3rd grade of Magistrate-Collectors.

The vacancy in the first grade of Joint-Magistrates thus created will not be filled up in consequence of the reduction ordered by the Government of India in the Resolution of the Home Department, dated 18th December 1874.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

On the 30th November 1874, ship Java, on her passage from London to Akyab, when in Lat. 26-22 S., Long. 26-11 W., sighted a wreck, which evidently had been rigged as a ship or barque. At 0·30 P.M. sent a boat alongside, and found that the vessel had been destroyed by fire and the cargo burnt out; masts and gear hanging alongside. On the stern they read "The Foundling, Liv;" the remainder of the word destroyed; supposed to be Liverpool. The bowsprit was still standing; but whether iron or wood, cannot say. Her rail is about 24 feet above the water, and her deck line about 20 feet. Nothing of the hull appeared to be injured, except a little of the bulwark injured in the wake of the foremast. The vessel is in the track for outward bounders round Cape of Good Hope, and homeward bounders round Cape Horn.

The above has been communicated to the Master-Attendant at Akyab by Captain W. D. R. Bergstrom, of the Java, who is of opinion that the wreck is not likely to sink for a long time, consequently very dangerous. She was evidently a coal-laden vessel.

CHAPTER II.

OF SESSIONS.

Time of holding sittings.

4. For the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, every High Court shall hold sittings on such days and at such convenient intervals as the Chief Justice of such Court from time to time appoints.

Place of holding sittings.

5. The High Court shall hold its sittings at the place at which it now holds them, or at such other place (if any) as the Governor-General in Council in the case of the High Court at Fort William, and as the Local Government in the case of the other High Courts, may direct. But it may, from time to time, in the case of the High Court at Fort William, with the consent of the Governor-General in Council, in all other cases, with the consent of the Local Government, hold sittings at such other places within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction as the High Court appoints.

Notice of sittings.

Such officer as the Chief Justice directs shall give notice beforehand in the local official Gazette of all sittings intended to be held for the exercise of the original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court.

CHAPTER III.

OF PROCEDURE ON COMMITMENTS.

Cases tried by High Courts to be tried under this Act.

6. The provisions of this Act shall apply to all criminal cases triable by the High Court.

Consideration and amendment of charge.

7. When any person is committed for trial before a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, or, if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, shall, on receipt of the charge, peruse and consider it, and may, if it appear necessary or expedient so to do, alter or redraw the same, having regard to the rules as to the form of charges contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

How Court may deal with charge.

8. If a prisoner is committed to the Court without any charge at all, the Clerk of the Crown, or, if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, may draw up a charge, having regard to the rules referred to in section seven. If a prisoner is committed upon a charge which the Court, upon reference to the proceedings before the committing Magistrate, considers improper, the Court may draw up a charge for any offence or offences which it considers to be proved by the evidence taken before the committing Magistrate.

Prisoner may apply for amendment.

9. Any accused person may apply to the Court for an amendment of the charge made against him; and in considering whether any error in a charge did in fact mislead the accused person, the Court shall take into account the fact that he did or did not make such an application.

Court may amend charge.

10. The Court may, upon the application of the accused person, or of the prosecutor, or upon its own motion, amend or alter any charge at any stage of the proceedings before the verdict of the jury is delivered. Such amendment shall be explained to the accused person.

When trial may proceed immediately after amendment.

11. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, it shall be at the discretion of the Court, after making such amendment or alteration, to proceed with the trial as if the amended charge had been the original charge.

When new trial may be directed or trial suspended.

12. If the amendment or alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused person in his defence, the Court may either direct a new trial, or suspend the trial for such period as may be necessary to enable the accused person to make his defence to the amended or altered charge; and, after hearing his defence, the Court may, if it thinks fit, further adjourn the trial, to admit of the appearance of any witness whose evidence the Court may consider to be material to the case, or whom the accused person may wish to be summoned in his defence.

Charge to be recorded.

Copy of charge.

13. The charge, with such alterations (if any) as may have been made therein, shall be recorded in the High Court and a copy of such charge shall be given to the person gratis, if he demands it.

Copies of depositions.

The person charged shall also be entitled to a copy of his own examination before the committing Magistrate, and to copies of the examinations of witnesses upon whose depositions he has been committed, and of all documents read and made exhibits as part of such depositions by the committing Magistrate, if the person charged demands them a reasonable time before the case comes on for trial and pays for the same a reasonable sum not exceeding one anna for each folio of ninety words.

The Court may for any special reason remit any such payment.

Entry on unsustainable charge.

14. When any charge, or portion of a charge, recorded as aforesaid appears to a Judge of the High Court, at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, to be clearly unsustainable, such Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

Effect of entry.

Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge (as the case may be), but shall not operate as an acquittal of the person charged.

Prosecutor and accused person may recall witnesses.

15. In all cases of amendment or alteration of a charge during the trial, the prosecutor and accused person shall be allowed to recall and examine any witness who may have been examined.

Previous sanction to be obtained if offence in amended charge require it.

16. If the offence stated in the amended or altered charge be one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained; unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the amended or altered charge was founded.

Joinder of Charges.

Separate charges for distinct offences.

17. There must be a separate charge for every distinct offence of which any person is accused, and every such charge must be tried separately, except in the cases hereinafter excepted.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

18. When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind, committed within one year of each other, he may be charged and tried at the same time for any number of them not exceeding three.

More offences than one of same kind may be charged within a year of each other.

EXPLANATION.—Offences are said to be of the same kind under this section if they fall within the provisions of section twenty.

19. I. If in one series of acts, so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with and tried for every such offence at the same time.

Trial of more than one offence.

II. If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being, by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with each of the offences so committed; but he must not receive a more severe punishment than could be awarded for any of such offences.

One offence falling within two definitions.

III. If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself constitute an offence, form, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with every offence, or any of the different offences, which he may have committed; but he must not receive for such offences, collectively, a punishment more severe than that which might have been awarded for any one of such offences.

Acts severally constituting more than one offence, but collectively coming within one definition.

Illustrations.

To paragraph I.

(a.) A rescues B, a person in lawful custody, and in so doing causes grievous hurt to C, a constable in whose custody B was. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 225 and 333, Indian Penal Code.

(b.) A has in his possession several counterfeit seals with the intention of committing several forgeries. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, the possession of each seal for a distinct forgery under section 473, Indian Penal Code.

(c.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, institutes proceedings against him, knowing there is no just or lawful ground for such proceedings. A also, in the course of the proceedings, falsely charges B with having committed an offence. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, two offences under section 211, Indian Penal Code.

(d.) A, with intent to injure B, brings a false charge against him of having committed an offence. On the trial, A gives false evidence against B. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 211 and 194 or 195, Indian Penal Code.

(e.) A, knowing that B, a female minor, has been kidnapped, wrongfully confines her and detains her as a slave. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 368 (read with 367) and 370, Indian Penal Code.

(f.) A, with six others, commits the offences of rioting, grievous hurt to B, and of assaulting C, a public servant engaged in suppressing the riot. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 147, 325 and 152, Indian Penal Code.

(g.) A criminally intimidates B, C and D at the same time. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, each of the three offences under section 506, Indian Penal Code.

(h.) A intentionally causes the death of three persons by upsetting a boat. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, three offences under section 302, Indian Penal Code.

To paragraph II.

(i.) A commits mischief by cutting down a tree in a Government forest. The tree overhangs the bank of a river and falls into the stream. A commits theft by having severed the tree and by floating it down the river to his village, where he sells it. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 426 and 379, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 379 only.

(j.) A wrongfully strikes B with a cane. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 352 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 323 only.

(k.) A wrongfully kills a buffalo worth sixty rupees belonging to B, and then takes away the carcase in a manner amounting to theft. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 429 and 379, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a more severe sentence than if it had convicted him under section 429 only.

(l.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property. A and B thereupon assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 411 and 414, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries them may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted them under one of those sections only.

(m.) A uses a forged document in evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under section 167. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 471 (read with 166) and 196 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under one of those sections only.

To paragraph III.

(n.) A commits house breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497, Indian Penal Code, but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

(o.) A robs B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 323, 392 and 394 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 392 or 394 only.

(p.) A entices B, the wife of C, away, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 498 and 497, Indian Penal Code; but the Court which tries him may not inflict a severer sentence than if it had convicted him under section 497 only.

20. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused person may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences; and any number of such charges may be tried at once, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to either theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust, or cheating. He may be charged separately with theft, criminal breach of trust, and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed either theft or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

21. If, in the case mentioned in section twenty, one charge only is brought against an accused person, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence, for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, or receiving stolen goods, though he was not charged with it.

22. When a person is charged with an offence, and part of the charge is not proved, but the part which is proved amounts to a different offence, he may be convicted of the offence which he is proved to have committed, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 407, Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 406.

(b.) A is charged with murder. He may be convicted of culpable homicide, or of causing death by negligence.

23. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together or separately, as the Court thinks proper, and the provisions hereinbefore contained shall apply to all such charges.

What persons may be charged jointly.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b.) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c.) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

24. No error, either in the way in which the offence is stated, or in the particulars required by the Code of Criminal Procedure to be stated, and no omission to state the offence, or to state those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the person accused was in fact misled by such error or omission.

Effect of errors.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit;" the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d.) A is charged with the murder of Khodá Baksh on the 21st January. In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e.) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January, and Khodá Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khodá Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

25. If any Magistrate, or other authority purporting to exercise powers conferred, but not being actually so empowered, commits an accused person to take his trial before a High Court, the Court may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment if it considers that the accused person has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on behalf either of the accused person or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of the committing Magistrate during the inquiry and before the order of commitment.

When irregular commitments may be validated.

If such Court considers that the accused person was prejudiced, or if such objection as aforesaid was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

26. Pending the directions of the Court as to the place of trial, every person committed for trial shall (if not admitted to bail) be committed by the Magistrate for intermediate custody to the criminal jail in which he can be most conveniently confined.

Custody pending direction as to place of trial.

If the trial be directed to be held at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, the Magistrate shall bind over the person charged to appear and take his trial at such place of sitting, or shall commit him to the jail at such place.

Procedure thereafter.

If the Court direct that the person charged be tried elsewhere than at its ordinary place of sitting, the Magistrate shall bind him over to appear and take his trial at the place so directed, or shall, if necessary, cause him to be removed to the criminal jail at or nearest to the place at which he is directed to be tried.

Intermediate custody of European British subjects.

27. The Court may direct that all European British subjects committed or bailed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified periods of the year, shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they shall be tried at a particular place named, and may also order that they shall, if not bailed, be committed for intermediate custody to a particular jail, being one of the jails appointed by the Government for the reception of such prisoners.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE TRIAL.

Commencement of trial.

28. When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused person shall be brought before it, and the charge shall be read and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged, or claims to be tried.

Plea of guilty.

29. If the accused person pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

Refusal to plead or claim to be tried.

30. If the accused person refuses to, or does not, plead, or if he claims to be tried, the Court shall proceed to choose jurors as hereinafter directed, and to try the case.

Right of accused to be defended.

31. Every person accused of an offence may of right be defended by any advocate of a High Court.

Any such person may, with the permission of the Court (but not otherwise), employ any person not being an advocate, attorney or pleader, to assist him in his defence.

CHAPTER V.

OF JURIES.

(a) Of Juries generally.

Trials to be by jury.

32. All trials under this Act shall be by jury; and, notwithstanding anything contained in section sixty-four of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in all criminal cases transferred to a High Court under that section or under the Letters Patent of any High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, Chapter 104, the trial may, if the High Court so direct, be by jury.

Number of jurors.

33. The jury shall consist of nine persons, who shall be chosen by lot from the persons summoned to act as jurors: provided that, in case of a deficiency of such persons, the number required may, with the leave of the Court, be chosen from such other persons as may be present.

Successive trials by same jury.

34. Subject to the right of challenge hereinafter mentioned, the same jury may try as many accused persons successively as the Court thinks fit.

Majority of jurors for trial of European British subjects.

35. If before the first juror is called and accepted, any European British subject charged as aforesaid requires to be tried by a mixed jury, the majority of the jurors shall consist of Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans.

Trial of European British subject and Native jointly accused.

36. In any case in which a European British subject is accused jointly with a person not being a European British subject, and such European British subject is committed for trial before a High Court, the person so jointly accused shall (if the committing Magistrate thinks that he ought to be tried) also be committed for trial before such High Court, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Such persons may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately.

Provisions for European British subject requiring majority of Europeans in jury.

37. Provided that, if before the first juror is called and accepted the European British subject requires the majority of the jurors to consist of Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans, and the person not being a European British subject requires that he shall be tried separately by a jury of which at least five members shall be persons not being Europeans or Americans, the latter person shall be tried separately.

Native may claim separate trial.

(b) Of Juries in the Presidency Towns.

Trials before special jury.

38. Every person tried in Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, shall be tried before a special jury

(a) if charged with having committed an offence punishable with death, or (b) if in any other case a Judge of the High Court so directs.

Jurors' book.

39. The jurors' book for the year current when this Act comes into force, shall be taken as containing a correct list of persons liable to serve as jurors under this Act; and those persons whose names are entered in the said book as being liable to serve on special juries only shall be deemed to be persons privileged and liable to serve only as special jurors under this Act during the year for which the said list has been prepared.

Number of special jurors.

40. The names of not more than two hundred persons shall at any one time be entered in the Special Jurors' list.

Exemption of special jurors.

41. All persons whose names are entered in the special jurors' list shall be exempted from serving on any other than special juries, but so long only as their names are contained in such list.

Lists of common and special jurors.

42. The Clerk of the Crown shall, before the first day of April in each year, and subject to such rules as the High Court from time to time prescribes, prepare

(a) a list of all persons liable to serve as common jurors;

(b) a list of persons liable to serve as special jurors only.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No person shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list, merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year.

The Governor General in Council may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

Discretion of officer preparing lists.

43. The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

Publication of lists.

44. Preparatory lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the officer by whom the same have been prepared, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

Revised lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and special jurors, respectively, signed as aforesaid, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the first day of May next after their preparation.

Copies of the said lists* shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

Number of jurors to be summoned.

45. Out of the persons named in the revised lists aforesaid, there shall be summoned for each sessions at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, and fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries.

No person shall be so summoned more than once in six months unless the number cannot be made up without him.

Supplementary summons.

If, during the continuance of any sessions, it appears that the number of persons so summoned is not sufficient, such number as may be necessary of other persons liable to serve as aforesaid shall be summoned for such sessions.

Failure of jurors to attend.

46. Any person summoned under section 45 who without lawful excuse fails to attend as required by the summons, or who having attended departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable by order of the Judge to such fine as he thinks fit, and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Peremptory challenges.

47. Challenges without cause shown shall be allowed to the number of eight on behalf of the Crown and eight on behalf of the person or all the persons charged.

Challenges on cause.

The following and no others shall be good causes of challenge, whether on behalf of the Crown or by the person or persons charged:—

(a) Some personal objection, such as alienage, infancy, old age, or deficiency in the qualification required by any law or rule having the force of law for the time being in force:

(b) Some presumed or actual partiality in the juror:

(c) A previous conviction of the juror of a non-bailable offence under the Indian Penal Code, or of a similar offence under any other law in force in British India:

(d) Inability to understand English when spoken.

Trial of challenges.

48. The Judge before whom a person charged is about to be tried shall try any challenge, other than a challenge without cause shown; and if the Judge allow the challenge, the juror shall be set aside.

The decision of the Judge as to any challenge shall be final.

Powers of Presidency High Courts as to jurors.

49. Save as herein provided, the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay shall retain all their present powers respecting the summoning, empannelling, qualification, challenging, and service of jurors, and shall have power to make such rules on these subjects (consistent with the provisions of this Act) as seem to them to be proper.

All rules relating to jurors now in force in the same High Courts shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) remain in force until repealed or altered by new rules made under this section.

(c) Of Juries in the Mofussil.

Summoning jurors.

50. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place (other than the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay) for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, take and cause to be taken the measures prescribed by sections 407, 409, 410 and 411 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the summoning of jurors.

Military jurors.

51. In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session shall, if it think needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers in the military service, resident within ten miles of its place of sitting, as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of European British subjects charged with offences before the High Court as aforesaid.

All Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure; but no Commissioned or Non-Commissioned Officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

Juries for trial of European British subjects.

52. The juries for the trial of European British subjects as aforesaid shall be formed in the manner required by the Code of Criminal Procedure and by this Act from the persons summoned in accordance with sections 50 and 51.

Names of jurors to be called.

53. As each juror is chosen, his name shall be called aloud, and, upon his appearance, the accused person shall be asked if he objects to be tried by such juror.

Objections to jurors.

Objection may then be made to such juror by the accused person, or by the prosecutor, and the grounds of objection shall be stated.

Grounds of objection.

54. Any objection made to a juror on any of the following grounds, if made out to the satisfaction of the Court, shall be allowed:—

(a) his holding any office in or under the Court or the local Court of Session;

(b) his executing any duties of Police or being entrusted with any Police functions;

(c) his having been convicted of any offence against the State, or of any fraudulent or other offence which, in the judgment of the Court, renders him unfit to serve on the jury;

(d) his having by habit or religious vows, relinquished all care of worldly affairs;

(e) his standing in the relation of husband, master, servant, landlord or tenant, to the person alleged to be injured or attempted to be injured by the offence charged, or to the person accused;

(g) his being plaintiff or defendant in any civil suit against any of such persons;

(h) his having complained against, or having been accused by, any of such persons in any criminal prosecution;

Decision of objection.

55. Any objection made to a juror shall be decided by the Court, and such decision shall be final.

Supply of place of juror against whom objection allowed.

56. If the objection be allowed, the place of such juror shall be supplied by any other juror attending in obedience to a summons; or, if there be no such other juror present, then by any other person present in the Court whose name is on the list of jurors, or whom the Court considers a proper person to serve on the jury, provided no objection to such other juror or person be made and allowed under section 54.

Juror to understand language in which evidence is given or interpreted.

57. The Judge shall not allow any person to serve on the jury, unless such person understands the language in which the evidence is given or interpreted.

(d) Of the Foreman.

Foreman of jury.

58. When the jury has been completed, they shall appoint one of their number to be foreman.

It shall be the duty of the foreman to preside in the debates of the jury, to deliver the verdict of the jury, and to ask any information from the Court that may be required by the jury or any of the jurors.

If a majority of the jury do not agree in the appointment of a foreman, he shall be appointed by the Court.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE TRIAL.

Examination of witnesses.

59. The prosecutor shall then open his case, and the witnesses shall be examined, cross-examined and re-examined according to the law for the time being relating to the examination of witnesses.

Examination of accused before Magistrate to be evidence.

60. The examination of the accused person before the committing Magistrate shall be given in evidence at the trial.

Examination of accused.

61. The Court may from time to time, at any stage of the trial, examine the accused person.

Accused not punishable for refusal to answer.

The accused person shall not be liable to any punishment for refusing to answer, or for answering falsely, questions asked under this section, but the Court shall draw such inference as seems just from such refusal or false answer.

No oath or affirmation shall be administered to the accused person.

Defence.

62. When the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination of the accused person are concluded, the accused person shall be asked whether he means to call witnesses. If he says that he does not, the prosecutor may sum up his case. The Court may then, if it thinks that there are no grounds for proceeding, direct the jury to return a verdict of acquittal.

If the Court considers that there are grounds for proceeding, it shall call on the accused person to state his grounds of defence and produce his witnesses.

The accused person, or his Counsel may then state the case for the defence, and may examine the witnesses, if any, produced for the defence, and at the conclusion of such examination may sum up his case.

Prosecutor's right of reply.

63. If any evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused person, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

View by jury.

64. Whenever, in the opinion of the Court, it is proper and convenient that the jury should view the place in which the offence charged is said to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the inquiry in the trial took place, an order shall be made to that effect, and the jury shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court. Such officer shall not suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury.

Locking-up jury.

65. The High Court may from time to time make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

Postponement of trial. Adjournment.

66. The Court may, in its discretion, postpone the hearing of the case; and may, from time to time, adjourn the trial, if it considers that such adjournment is proper and will promote the ends of justice.

Jury to attend at adjourned sitting.

67. If a trial is adjourned, the jury shall be required to attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

Power to prescribe mode in which evidence shall be taken down.

68. The Court may, if it think fit, from time to time, by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court in the exercise of its ordinary or its extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.

Evidence of jurors.

69. If a juryman is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be examined, cross-examined and re-examined, in the same manner as any other witness.

Interpreter.

70. When the services of an interpreter are required by the Court for the interpretation of any evidence or statement, he shall be bound to state the true interpretation of such evidence or statement.

CHAPTER VII.

OF EVIDENCE.

Evidence of medical witness.

71. The examination of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any criminal trial, although the person examined is not called as a witness.

Court may summon medical witness.

The Court may summon such Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, if it sees sufficient cause for doing so.

Report of Chemical Examiner.

72. Any document purporting to be a report from the Chemical Examiner, or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analyis and report, in the course of any criminal trial, or in any preliminary inquiry relating thereto, may, if it bears his signature, be used as evidence in any criminal trial.

Genuineness of signature may be presumed.

The Court may presume that the signature of any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he professed to hold at the time when he signed it.

Admission of accused.

73. If, after the commencement of the trial, the accused person admits before the Court the commission of an offence, the Court may convict him on his own admission, whether such offence is the same as the offence of which he is accused, or not.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

74. If an accused person abscond, and after due pursuit cannot be arrested, the Court may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution and record their depositions; and any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for the offence with which he is charged if it is not practicable to procure the attendance of the deponent.

Evidence given at preliminary inquiry.

75. When a witness is produced, the evidence (if any) given by him before the committing Magistrate may, in the discretion of the presiding Judge, be treated as evidence in the case, if it was duly taken in the presence of the accused person.

EXPLANATION.—This section shall not authorize the Court to refer to the record of the evidence given by a witness who is absent, except in the cases in which such evidence may be referred to under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, or other law in force for the time being upon the subject of evidence.

Commissions.

When a commission may issue.

76. Whenever, at any time after the commitment, it appears that the attendance of a witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, the Court may dispense with his personal attendance.

Mode of issuing commission.

The Court may direct a commission to the Magistrate of the District, or to a Magistrate of the first class, in whose jurisdiction such witness may be. The Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall proceed to the place where such witness is, or shall summon such witness before himself. Such Magistrate shall take the evidence of such witness in the same manner, and shall have for this purpose, and may exercise, the same powers as in trials of warrant cases under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Where witness is in a Native State.

When the witness is in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India in alliance with Her Majesty, the commission may be directed to any Justice of the Peace or other officer in the service of the Crown resident in such territories; and the provisions of the second clause of this section shall apply to such Justice of the Peace or officer.

If the witness is within the local limits of the ordinary original criminal jurisdiction of any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, the commission may be directed to any Police Magistrate within such limits, and such Magistrate shall have the like power to compel the attendance and examination of witnesses as he possesses for that purpose in cases pending before him.

Where witness is in a Presidency Town.

The prosecutor and the accused person may forward interrogatories, upon which the officer to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness, or the prosecutor may appear personally before the officer to whom the commission is directed, or the prosecutor or accused person may so appear by authorized agent.

Prosecutor and accused may examine witness.

After any commission issued under this section has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto, and the deposition of such witness may be used as evidence in the case and shall form part of the record.

Return of commission.

Tender of Pardon to obtain Evidence.

77. The Court may, with the view of obtaining on the trial the evidence of any person or persons supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence mentioned in column 7 of the fourth schedule annexed to the Code of Criminal Procedure as triable exclusively by the Court of Session, instruct the committing Magistrate to tender, or itself may, at any time before judgment, tender, a pardon to such person or persons, on condition of his or their making a full, true and fair disclosure of the whole of the circumstances, within his or their knowledge, relative to the crime committed and every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Court may direct tender of pardon.

Any person accepting a tender of pardon under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case, under the rules applicable to the examination of witnesses.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody pending the termination of the trial.

78. When a pardon has been tendered under section 77, if it appears to the Court that any person who has accepted such tender has not conformed to the conditions under which it was made, either by wilfully concealing anything essential, or by giving false evidence, the Court may commit, or direct the commitment of, such person, for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he may appear to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

Commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

The statement made by a person under pardon, which pardon has been withdrawn under this section, may be put in evidence against him.

Of securing Attendance of Witnesses and Production of Documents.

79. The following procedure shall be pursued in order to obtain the attendance of witnesses before the Court.

Procedure for obtaining attendance of witnesses.

80. The Court may, at any stage of any proceeding, inquiry or trial, summon any witness, or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness, and it shall be its duty to do so if the evidence of such person appears essential to the just decision of the case.

Power to summon material witness or examine person present.

81. If the Court has reason to believe that any witness whose attendance is required will not attend to give evidence without being compelled to do so, it may, instead of issuing a summons, issue a warrant of arrest in the first instance.

When warrant of arrest may issue in first instance.

82. If such warrant cannot be executed, and the Court considers that the witness is absconding or concealing himself for the purpose of avoiding the service thereof, it may issue a proclamation, requiring his attendance to give evidence at a time and place to be named therein, to be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode.

Procedure when warrant cannot be served.

If the witness does not attend at the time and place named in such proclamation, the Court may order the attachment of any moveable property belonging to such witness, to such amount as seems reasonable, not being in excess of the amount of costs of attachment and of any fine to which he may be liable under the provisions of the next following section.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any such moveable property within the jurisdiction of the Court by which the order was made; and if any such moveable property be without the jurisdiction of the said Court, such order when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situated shall authorize the attachment of the property last aforesaid.

83. If the witness appears and satisfies the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not notice of the proclamation in time to attend at the time and place named therein, the Court shall direct that the property attached be released from attachment, and shall make such order in regard to the costs of the attachment as the Court thinks fit.

Release of attached property of witness appearing and satisfying Court.

If such witness does not appear, or, appearing, fails to satisfy the Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding the execution of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as aforesaid, the Court may order the property attached, or any part thereof, to be sold for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of any fine which may be imposed upon such witness under the provisions of section 172 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sale of property of witness not appearing or not satisfying Court.

If the witness pays to such Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, his property shall be released from attachment.

84. If any person summoned to give evidence neglects or refuses to appear at the time and place appointed by the summons, and no reasonable excuse is offered for such neglect or refusal, the Court, upon proof of the summons having been duly served, may issue a warrant under its seal to bring such person before it to testify as aforesaid.

Arrest of person disobeying summons.

Right of accused as to examination of witness.

85. The accused person shall be allowed to examine as a witness any person in attendance.

Procedure for obtaining production of document required as evidence

86. Whenever the Court considers that the production of any document is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation or judicial proceeding, the Court may issue a summons to the person in whose possession or power such document is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce such document at the time and place stated in the summons.

When warrant for search for documents may issue.

87. If there is reason to believe that the person to whom the summons is addressed will not produce the document as directed in the summons, the Court may issue a search-warrant for the document in the first instance.

Power to impound document produced.

88. The Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document produced before it, or may, at the conclusion of the proceedings, order such document to be returned to the person who produced it.

Procedure in case of refusal to answer or produce documents.

89. If a witness refuses to answer any question which is put to him or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any just excuse for such refusal, he shall be deemed guilty of contempt of Court.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE CHARGE TO THE JURY.

Charge to jury.

90. When the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

Duty of Judge.

91. It is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence, or the propriety of questions asked by parties or their agents, which may arise in the course of the trial; and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties; to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial; to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given; to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury; and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness, under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document, the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE VERDICT AND THE DISCHARGE OF THE JURY.

Retirement to consider.

92. After the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

Duty of jury.

93. It is the duty of the jury—

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true, and then to return the verdict which under such view ought, according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned;

(b) to determine the meaning of all technical terms and words used in an unusual sense, which it may be necessary to determine, whether such words occur in documents or not;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general, indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(1.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(2.) The question is, whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point. Whether work was done with reasonable skill, or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

Foreman to communicate verdict.

94. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Court what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

Verdict to be given on each charge.
Judge may question jury.

95. The jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Court may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

96. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

Procedure where jury differ.

97. A verdict of guilty or not guilty, as the case may be, shall be delivered either when the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them.

Verdict when to be delivered.

98. When the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

Discharge of jury in default of unanimity or majority of six with Judge's concurrence.

If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall then discharge the jury.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

99. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever by reason of illness a juryman becomes incapable of attending through the trial or the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar.

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of juror or prisoner.

100. Whenever the jury is discharged, the prisoner shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be) and shall be tried by another jury unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

Re-trial of prisoner after discharge of jury.

101. When any person has in a trial before a Judge of the High Court acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of the High Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Power to reserve questions.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail, or, if the Judge think fit, be admitted to bail, and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as to the High Court seem fit.

Procedure when question reserved.

102. When more charges than one are preferred against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw, or the Court of its own accord may direct the withdrawal of, the remaining charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges.

Withdrawal of remaining charges, on conviction on one of several charges.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE SENTENCE.

103. Every warrant for the commitment of a person to custody shall be in writing and signed and sealed by the Judge who issues it.

Form and direction of warrant of commitment.

104. In the case of a High Court holding its sittings elsewhere than in the towns of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 303, 304 and 305, shall apply to the officers therein mentioned.

Provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, ss. 303, 304, 305, applied in Mofussil.

105. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court may issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, whether or not the offence be punishable with fine only, and whether or not the sentence direct that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment.

Levy of fine.

Such warrant may be executed within the jurisdiction of the Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender without the jurisdiction of the said Court, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

This section shall not apply to cases in which any special procedure is laid down by any special or local law in force for the time being for the recovery of any fine, but shall apply to cases in which no such procedure is laid down, and to all fines not levied when this Act comes into force, but which might have been levied under this section if it had been in force when they were imposed.

Cases to which section applies.

106. Whenever the Court imposes a fine under any law in force for the time being, the Court may order the whole or any part of the fine to be paid in compensation,

Payment of fine in compensation.

(a) for expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;

(b) for the offence complained of, where such offence can, in the opinion of the Court, be compensated by money.

Such payment shall be made, as the Court thinks fit, to or for the benefit of the complainant, or the person injured, or both.

In any subsequent civil proceedings relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been awarded under this section.

107. In every case punishable under any law in force for the time being with imprisonment as well as fine, in which the offender is sentenced to a fine, whether with or without imprisonment, the High Court shall be guided by the provisions of sections 64, 65, 68, 69 and 70 of the Indian Penal Code in awarding the period of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

108. Sentences of whipping shall be executed in manner provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, sections 311, 312 and 313.

Execution of sentences of whipping.

109. When a person ... convicted, at one trial, of two or more offences punishable under the same or different sections of any law for the time being in force, the Court may sentence him, for the offences of which he has been convicted, to the several penalties prescribed by such enactment or enactments, which such Court is competent to inflict; such penalties, when consisting of imprisonment, or transportation, or penal servitude, to commence the one after the expiration of the other:

Sentence in cases of simultaneous conviction of several offences.

Provided that in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years.

Maximum term of imprisonment.

110. When sentence of death or whipping is passed on an escaped convict, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he has escaped.

Currency of sentence on escaped convicts.

When any other sentence is passed on an escaped convict severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall also direct the new sentence to take effect without waiting for the expiration of the sentence from which he escaped.

When the new sentence is not severer than the sentence from which he has escaped, the Court shall direct the new sentence to take effect after such convict has suffered imprisonment, or transportation, or penal servitude, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

When the former sentence on the escaped convict is or includes transportation or penal servitude for life and the Court does not sentence him to death, the new sentence shall direct that he be, as soon as practicable, sent back to the place from which he escaped.

EXPLANATION.—For the purpose of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment:

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

111. When sentence is passed on a person actually undergoing sentence of imprisonment or transportation, and the sentence is for imprisonment or transportation, the Court shall direct such imprisonment or transportation to commence at the expiration of the imprisonment or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced; or, if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be for transportation or penal servitude, the Court may direct the sentence to commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which such person has been previously sentenced:

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be held to excuse such person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon such former or subsequent conviction.

Proviso.

112. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such offender, instead of being imprisoned in the criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

115. When the trial is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any property produced before it, regarding which any offence appears to have been committed.

Order for disposal of property regarding which offence committed.

Any order under this section may be in the form of a reference to a Magistrate, who shall in such case deal with the property as if it had been seized by the Police and the seizure duly reported to him.

EXPLANATION.—In this section the term 'property' includes not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

116. Subject to any rules that may be passed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Court may order payment, on the part of Government, of the reasonable expenses of any complainant or witness attending for the purpose of any trial before such Court under this Act.

Expenses of complainants and witnesses.

CHAPTER XI.

OF PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS OR ACQUITTALS.

117. A person who has once been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 20, or for which he might have been convicted under section 21.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 19, paragraph I.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which such person was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence in respect of any facts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with and tried for any other offence which he may have committed in respect of the same facts, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged with the same theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply or with criminal breach of trust.

(b.) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

(c.) A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code for malignantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life and is acquitted. The act so done afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 325, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person.

(e.) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried for the murder of B on the same facts.

(f.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three.

(g.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the second class with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(h.) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity, on the same facts.

118. Previous conviction to be set out in charge. If the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence, and if it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

119. Previous conviction or acquittal how proved. A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved by an extract certified under the hand of the officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had, to be a copy of the finding and sentence.

CHAPTER XII.

OF CRIMINAL LUNATICS.

120. Procedure in case of person committed being lunatic. If any person committed for trial appears at his trial to the Court to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness of mind, and if satisfied of the fact, shall give a special judgment that the accused person is of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence; and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind of the accused person shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

121. Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court, if the offence of which he is accused be bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required.

Custody of lunatic. If the offence be not bailable, or if the required bail be not given, the Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the accused person shall be kept in safe custody in such place as the Local Government directs.

122. Resumption of trial. Whenever a trial is postponed under section 120, the Court may at any time resume the trial, and require the accused person, if detained in custody, to be brought before the Court; or, if he has been released on security, may require his appearance.

The surety of such person shall be bound, at any time, to produce him to any officer whom the Court appoints to inspect him; and the certificate of such officer shall have the same effect as the certificate of an Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, granted under section 127.

123. Procedure on accused appearing before Court. If, when the accused person appears or is again brought before the Court, it appears to such Court that he is in a fit state of mind to make his defence, he shall be put on his trial.

If it appears that the accused person is still of unsound mind, and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 121.

124. Finding in case of acquittal on ground of being lunatic. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is charged with having committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act charged or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the finding shall state specially whether such person committed the act or not.

125. Person so acquitted to be kept in safe custody. Whenever such finding states that the accused person committed the act charged, the Court before which the trial was held shall, if the act charged would, but for the incapacity found, have amounted to an offence, order him to be kept in safe custody, in such place and manner as the Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government.

The Local Government may order such person to be kept in safe custody in a Lunatic Asylum or other suitable place of safe custody.

Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General.

126. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 121 or 125, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the Visitors of the Lunatic Asylums or any two of them, if he is confined in a Lunatic Asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such Visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or Visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person.

Procedure where lunatic prisoner is reported capable of making his defence.

127. If such person is confined under section 121 and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Court, at such time as it appoints, and the Court shall deal with him under the provisions of section 123; and the certificate of such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 125 is declared capable of being discharged

128. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 125, and such Inspector General or Visitors as aforesaid shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon either order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public Lunatic Asylum, if he has not been already sent to such an Asylum; and may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the Lunatic Asylum shall be one.

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as to it may seem fit.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

129. Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 125 is desirous that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person detained shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order that the person detained be delivered to such relative or friend.

Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be subject to be inspected by such officer, and at such times as the Local Government directs.

The provisions of sections 126 and 128 shall apply to persons detained under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate of the Inspector General of Prisons or the Visitors of Lunatic Asylums, under the said sections.

Procedure where accused does not understand the proceedings.

130. If an accused person, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the trial; and if such trial results in a conviction, the Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF PROSECUTIONS IN CERTAIN CASES.

Prosecutions for offences against the State.

131. A complaint of an offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294 A of the said Code, shall not be entertained, unless the prosecution be instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council to order or authorize such prosecution, or unless instituted by the Advocate General.

Prosecution of Judges and public servants.

132. A complaint of an offence of which any Judge or any public servant not removeable from his office without the sanction of the Government is accused as such Judge or public servant, shall not be entertained against him, except with the sanction or under the direction of the Government, or of some officer empowered by the Government, or of some Court or other authority to which he is subordinate, and whose power so to sanction or direct such prosecution the Government does not think fit to limit or reserve.

No such Judge or public servant shall be prosecuted for any act purporting to be done by him in the discharge of his duty, unless with the sanction of the Government.

Sanction when to be given.

The sanction must be given before the commencement of the proceedings.

In this section the expression 'Government' means either the Local Government or the Governor General in Council; and the expressions 'Judge' and 'public servant' have the meanings assigned to them respectively by the Indian Penal Code.

Prosecution for contempts of the lawful authority of public servants.

133. A complaint of any offence described in chapter X of the Indian Penal Code, not falling within section 175, 178, 179 or 180 of that Code, shall not be entertained by any High Court, except with the sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned, or of his official superior.

Nature of sanction necessary.

134. The sanction referred to in section 133 may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person, and may be given at any time.

EXPLANATION.—In cases under this chapter, the report or application of the public servant shall be deemed sufficient complaint.

Procedure in cases mentioned in section 133.

135. When the Court is of opinion that there is sufficient ground for inquiring into any charge mentioned in section 133, it may, after making such preliminary inquiry as may be necessary, either commit the case itself, or may send the case for inquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused person for the offence charged.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law; and the Court may send the accused person in custody, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or inquiry.

The Magistrate receiving the case may, if he is authorised to make transfers of cases, transfer the inquiry to some other competent Magistrate, instead of completing the inquiry himself.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF BAIL.

Power to direct admission to bail.

136. The Court may in any case direct that an accused person shall be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a Magistrate be reduced.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by accused.

137. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance of the person executing the personal recognizance, the Court is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance, it shall proceed to enforce the penalty, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person, which may be found within its jurisdiction.

Such warrant may be executed within such limits, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the accused person without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

Procedure to compel payment of penalty by sureties.

138. Whenever, by reason of default of appearance by the person bailed, the Court is of opinion that proceedings should be had to compel payment of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the surety or sureties, it shall give notice to the surety or sureties to pay the same, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

If such penalty be not paid, and if no sufficient cause for its non-payment be shown, the Court shall proceed to recover the penalty from such surety or sureties, by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to him or them which may be found within its jurisdiction.

Such warrant may be executed within such local limits; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the surety or sureties without such limits, when endorsed by the Magistrate of the District in which such property is situate.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, such surety or sureties shall be liable to confinement, by order of the Court, in the civil jail, during a period not exceeding six months:

Remission of part of penalty.

Provided that the Court may, at its discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned in the recognizance of the party or witness, or of the surety or sureties, and enforce payment in part only:

Court may direct Magistrate to levy sum forfeited.

The Court may direct any Magistrate to levy the amount due on a forfeited bail-bond executed in respect of attendance before such Court.

Deposit instead of bail.

139. When any person is required to give bail, the Court may permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as it may fix in lieu of such bail.

CHAPTER XV.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE.

Personal recognizance to keep the peace in cases of conviction.

140. Whenever a person accused of rioting, assault, or other breach of the peace, or with abetting the same, or with assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, is convicted of such offence, and the Court is of opinion that it is just and necessary to require such person to give a personal recognizance for keeping the peace, the Court may, in addition to any other order passed in the case, direct that the person so convicted be required to execute a formal engagement, in a sum proportionate to his condition in life and the circumstances of the case, for keeping the peace during such period as it may appear proper to fix in each instance, not exceeding three years, with a provision that, if the same be not given, he shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years, unless within such period he executes such formal engagement as aforesaid:

If the accused person be sentenced to imprisonment, the period for which he may be required to execute a recognizance, and the imprisonment in default of executing such recognizance, shall commence on the expiration of his sentence.

Security to keep the peace.

141. Whenever it appears necessary to require security for keeping the peace, in addition to the personal recognizance of the party so convicted, the Court empowered to require a personal recognizance may require security in addition thereto, and may fix the amount of the security-bond to be executed by the surety or sureties; with a provision that, if the same be not given, the party required to find the security shall be kept in simple imprisonment for any time not exceeding three years.

Power to restore possession of immoveable property.

142. Whenever a person is convicted of an offence attended with criminal force, and it appears to the Court that, by such criminal force, any person has been dispossessed of any immoveable property, the Court may cause such person to be restored to possession.

No order made for this purpose shall prejudice any right over such immoveable property which any person may be able to show in a civil suit.

CHAPTER XVI.

RULES FOR TEA LEASES IN THE WESTERN DOOARS.

The 19*th March* 1875.—The following rules for the grant of leases of land for tea cultivation in the Western Dooars have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, and are published for general information. The rules will come into force from the 1st April 1875:—

What lands will ordinarily be available.

1. THE lands that will be generally available under these rules lie within that tract of country in the Western Dooars which extends in an easterly direction from the east bank of the River Teesta to the west bank of the River Sankos.

What lands will not ordinarily be available.

2. The following lands will not ordinarily be available under these rules:—

(a.)—Lands which, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, are held to constitute a reserve for the supply of timber, fuel, grazing, or any other article of general and public consumption.

(b.)—Lands not included in the above category, but which now bear India-rubber trees or other valuable timber (such as sâl, khair, chelownee, sissoo, &c.) in compact blocks or patches.

(c.)—Lands in respect of which any person or persons, or any village community, possess rights of occupancy, or such other rights or privileges as would, in the opinion of the local Government, render it impolitic or unadvisable to grant such lands to any other person or persons for the purpose of tea cultivation.

(d.)—Lands lying within a distance of 60 feet on either side from the centre of any public road or thoroughfare. Provided that such road or thoroughfare shall have been constructed, or shall be kept in repair, from public funds, and that it be borne on the list of the district roads of the district within which the land above mentioned lies.

(e.)—Lands which the local Government may at any time, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, expressly exempt from the operation of these rules.

How and to whom application is to be made.

3. Every person desirous of obtaining a grant of land under these rules shall, in person or by a duly authorized agent, present an application on stamped paper of the value of 8 annas to the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the land lies.

What the application is to specify.

4. The application shall specify—

(a.)—The name, father's name, and address of the applicant, and of his authorized agent, if any.

(b.)—The area, situation, and boundaries of the land applied for, as far as they can be ascertained without a detailed survey.

(c.)—A statement of the particulars, if any, which may appear to the applicant to bring the land applied for, or any part of it, within the exceptions mentioned in Rule 2. The application shall also state whether the land, or any part of it, is or has ever been cultivated in any manner.

5. Every lot applied for shall be compact and capable of being enclosed in a ring fence; and if any part of the land touches on a public road or navigable river, the length of such road or river frontage shall not exceed one half the breadth of the lot applied for.

6. No application shall be received in respect of an area greater than 800 acres; and not more than this quantity of land shall be granted under these rules to any one lessee.

Procedure on receipt of an application.

7. On receipt of an application, and after satisfying himself as far as lies in his power that the requirements of the rules have been complied with, the Deputy Commissioner shall record a proceeding to the above effect, calling upon the applicant or his authorized agent to deposit such a sum as the Deputy Commissioner shall deem to be necessary to cover the cost of the survey and demarcation to be made as hereinafter provided. Such sum shall ordinarily be calculated at the rate of 8 annas per acre of the total quantity of land applied for. But if the rate of 8 annas an acre be found insufficient, the applicant shall be required to deposit such further sum as may be needed to cover the actual cost of survey. On the other hand, if the actual cost of survey falls short of the sum deposited, the applicant shall be entitled to a refund of the excess.

8. On receipt of the sum payable under the preceding rule, and of an agreement, signed by the applicant or by his authorized agent, to pay such further sum as may be required for the purposes above mentioned, the Deputy Commissioner shall record an order appointing a tehsildar or other officer to visit the land, and to make full and detailed inquiries into its condition and circumstances.

Preliminary inquiry to be made.

9. The general object of such inquiry shall be to ascertain whether or not the land applied for can be granted under the rules in force; but the Deputy Commissioner may instruct the officer making the inquiry to furnish him with such other specific and detailed information as may seem to him to be necessary.

10. On completion of his inquiry, the officer making it shall record the result thereof and submit a report for the orders of the Deputy Commissioner. If the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the report, and after calling for such further explanations, oral or written, as he may deem necessary, shall be of opinion that the land applied for cannot be granted under the rules, and should not therefore be surveyed, he will record an order to that effect. Such order shall be appealable to the Commissioner of the Division within which the land applied for is situated, and his order shall be final. The appeal must be filed within one month from the date of the receipt, by the applicant or authorized agent, of a copy of the order appealed against.

11. If the Deputy Commissioner decide that the land applied for can be granted under the rules, and should therefore be surveyed, he shall record an order to that effect.

12. If the Deputy Commissioner thinks it necessary to remove from off such land any occupants or others not having rights such as those contemplated in Rule 2 (c), or whom the Deputy Commissioner considers should be removed for the good of the state, he shall submit a full report of the circumstances for the orders of the Commissioner, stating in detail the grounds of his recommendation, and the compensation, if any, he proposes to pay them. The orders of the Commissioner on this point shall be final.

13. If any claim or objection be preferred under Act XXIII of 1863, the Deputy Commissioner shall proceed to dispose of the same in accordance with the provisions of the said Act.

14. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to appoint a Surveyor and such other establishment as he may deem to be requisite for the purpose of making an accurate chain and compass survey and map of the land applied for.

How the survey is to be made.

15. The officer who made the inquiry provided for by Rule 6 shall, on receipt of an order to that effect from the Deputy Commissioner, proceed to point out to the Surveyor the boundaries of the land applied for, and such prominent features in it as may be useful for the purposes of the survey, and which should, in his opinion, be entered in the draft under the rules as hereinafter provided. Such boundaries and other features as above mentioned shall be clearly marked and defined by the tehsildar in presence of the Surveyor, and the latter should be furnished with a list of them signed by the tehsildar.

16. The Surveyor shall then proceed to make the survey and fix the necessary boundary marks, which shall be such as a masonry platform at each point where more than two lots or patches of waste or other properties meet, and large stones or mounds at every angle and at every 100 yards of the boundary line between such platforms or other marks. Before sending in his report, the Surveyor should be careful to see that all marks required by the rules have been duly erected, and are in good order and preservation. The Surveyor shall prepare a map showing—

(a.)—All natural features of the country lying within the boundaries as fixed by the officer who made the inquiry under Rule 6, e.g. bheels, streams, forest clumps, &c.

(b.)—Such features of the country lying outside the boundary of the land to be surveyed as may serve to identify the latter and connect it with the revenue survey or other existing map.

17. The map shall ordinarily be on a scale of 16 inches to the mile. If possible, the Surveyor's field-book shall be copied at the back of it. If not, a copy of the field-book shall be attached to or accompany the map. If the map be made originally in the vernacular, the Deputy Commissioner shall cause it to be translated into English.

18. The whole cost of survey, including the expenses of cutting jungle, erecting boundary and other marks, &c., shall be borne by the applicant, and the Deputy Commissioner shall advance, from the funds deposited by the applicant, for the purpose such sums as shall from time to time be required. A full account of such sums shall be rendered to the Deputy Commissioner by the party receiving them, and such accounts shall be open to the inspection of the applicant at such time and place as the Deputy Commissioner may appoint.

19. On the map being completed, it shall be checked by an officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner. If found to be incorrect, it shall be amended by the Surveyor in conjunction with the officer above mentioned. If found to be correct, it shall be laid before the Deputy Commissioner with the report of the officer who made the preliminary inquiry under Rule 6, and with all other papers connected with the case.

20. The Deputy Commissioner shall then proceed to consider the application. A date for this purpose shall be previously fixed by him, and due notice of it shall be given to the applicant or to his authorized agent.

21. It shall be competent to the Deputy Commissioner, after considering the papers of the case and making such further inquiries as he may deem necessary, either to reject or to comply with the application as originally presented or as amended by the applicant, with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner.

22. If the Deputy Commissioner rejects the application, he shall record an order in writing to that effect, with the grounds of his decision. A copy of such order, and of the grounds on which it is based, shall, on application made in writing by the applicant or by his authorized agent, be granted. An appeal against such order shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division in which the land applied for is situated, if made within 30 days of the date of the receipt of a copy of such order by the applicant or his authorized agent.

23. If the Deputy Commissioner grant the application, he shall grant the applicant a lease in form A of the appendix, and shall call upon him to execute a counterpart thereof, and to mark out the land leased by a continuous trench, or in such other manner as the Deputy Commissioner may direct.

24. Whenever, after receipt of an application, as provided for in Rule 3, and after making such inquiries as he may deem necessary, the Deputy Commissioner shall be of opinion that there is no primâ facie objection whatever to the grant under the rules of the land applied for, he may put the applicant in preliminary possession of an area not exceeding one-eighth of the estimated area of the land applied for, with the object of enabling the applicant to make preparations for commencing cultivation and getting the land in order. Provided that the applicant, before obtaining such preliminary possession, shall have erected such boundary marks as the Deputy Commissioner may direct, and that the amount of all estimated charges incurred in connection with such preliminary occupation shall have been deposited by the applicant.

25. The order for, and conditions of such preliminary occupation, shall be in the form B in the appendix, and shall be addressed to the tehsildar or other officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner. A copy of the order shall be delivered to the applicant, who shall, after receipt of occupation, acknowledge such receipt by signing a copy of the order and depositing it with the Deputy Commissioner.

RESOLUTION.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

SECTION B.

Calcutta, the 15*th March* 1875.

BY the promotion of Mr. R. L. Mangles to be a Judge of the 1st class, the transfer of Mr. H. B. Simson to the Additional Judgeship of the districts of the Patna Division vice Mr. Mangles, with a salary of Rs. 2,000, and the appointment of Mr. T. T. Allen to act in the 2nd class of Judges, while he may be employed as Additional Judge of Jessore and Backergunge in succession to Mr. Simson, the saving of Rs. 333-5-4, referred to in paragraph 3 of the Resolution of the 6th April 1874, has now been effected. It was always contemplated that the saving to be effected, when these two additional judgeships on Rs. 2,166-10-8 were reduced to second grade judgeships on Rs. 2,000, should be utilized in increasing further the allowances of the Magistrate-Collectors of the second class, or otherwise improving the position of Magistrate-Collectors generally.

1st grade ...	... 15 officers.
2nd " ...	... 15 "
3rd " ...	... 7 "	including the Senior Superintendent of Survey.

Under the orders of the Government of India, No. 977, dated 18th December last, the number of officers in the 2nd grade has been reduced to 14, and by the constitution of the new district of Durbhunga, the strength of the 3rd grade has been raised to eight officers.

The saving now effected enables the Lieutenant-Governor to raise one officer from the 3rd grade on Rs. 1,500 to the 2nd grade on Rs. 1,800; thus this arrangement places the grades of Magistrate-Collectors in the same position in which they stood on the date of the Resolution announcing the completion of the arrangements for the establishment of parallel lines of promotion for the Judicial and Executive branches of the Covenanted Service.

A saving of Rs. 33 will remain after the strength of the 2nd grade of Magistrate-Collectors has been restored to 15 officers.

Mr. J. F. K. Hewitt, Magistrate and Collector of the 3rd grade, is promoted to be Magistrate and Collector of the 2nd grade.

Mr. R. D. Hime is promoted to the vacancy in the 3rd grade of Magistrate-Collectors.

The vacancy in the second grade of Joint-Magistrates to be created by the promotion of an officer from that to the 1st grade of Joint-Magistrates, will not be filled up in consequence of the reduction ordered by the Government of India in the Resolution of the Home Department, dated 18th December 1874.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

ON the 30th November 1874, ship Java, on her passage from London to Akyab, when in Lat. 26-22 S., Long. 26-11 W., sighted a wreck, which evidently had been rigged as a ship or barque. At 0·30 P.M. sent a boat alongside, and found that the vessel had been destroyed by fire and the cargo burnt out; masts and gear hanging alongside. On the stern they read "The Foundling, Liv;" the remainder of the word destroyed; supposed to be Liverpool. The bowsprit was still standing; but whether iron or wood, cannot say. Her rail is about 24 feet above the water, and her deck line about 20 feet. Nothing of the hull appeared to be injured, except a little of the bulwark injured in the wake of the foremast. The vessel is in the track for outward bounders round Cape of Good Hope, and homeward bounders round Cape Horn.

The above has been communicated to the Master-Attendant at Akyab by Captain W. D. R. Bergstrom, of the Java, who is of opinion that the wreck is not likely to sink for a long time, consequently very dangerous. She was evidently a coal-laden vessel.

 The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowlege of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

Proceedings under Act to be subject to the control of the Board.

37. All proceedings and orders of revenue officers under this Act, excepting decisions in boundary disputes, shall be subject to the control and supervision of the Board.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

MUCH of the value of the survey operations which have been carried on in Bengal has been lost owing to the boundaries of mouzahs and estates, as ascertained and settled at the time of survey, not having been secured by permanent marks. In every other province such marks are erected at the cost of the landholders, who are bound to maintain them when erected. There is no reason that those provinces should form an exception to this general rule, and should remain longer without the benefits which its enforcement will secure. The Bill therefore provides for the erection of marks to secure the boundaries which may be ascertained by future surveys, and for the apportionment of the cost thereof on landholders.

2. Provision is also made for the recovery of certain sums which have been expended during the last field season by Government in erecting such marks, on the understanding that they should be recovered from the landholders.

3. The opportunity has been taken to remove the doubts which have hitherto existed as to the legal power of the Government to authorise its servants to enter upon any land in order to make a survey, otherwise than for the purposes of a settlement. The Bill also provides that the Lieutenant-Governor may order a survey of any land to be made for any purpose.

37. All proceedings and orders of revenue officers under this Act, excepting decisions in boundary disputes, shall be subject to the control and supervision of the Board.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

MUCH of the value of the survey operations which have been carried on in Bengal has been lost owing to the boundaries of mouzahs and estates, as ascertained and settled at the time of survey, not having been secured by permanent marks. In every other province such marks are erected at the cost of the landholders, who are bound to maintain them when erected. There is no reason that these provinces should form an exception to this general rule, and should remain longer without the benefits which its enforcement will secure. The Bill therefore provides for the erection of marks to secure the boundaries which may be ascertained by future surveys, and for the apportionment of the cost thereof on landholders.

2. Provision is also made for the recovery of certain sums which have been expended during the last field season by Government in erecting such marks, on the understanding that they should be recovered from the landholders.

3. The opportunity has been taken to remove the doubts which have hitherto existed as to the legal power of the Government to authorise its servants to enter upon any land in order to make a survey, otherwise than for the purposes of a settlement. The Bill also provides that the Lieutenant-Governor may order a survey of any land to be made for any purpose.

Procedure of Collector on receipt of application.

8. The Collector, on the receipt of an application for partition, shall, if the application be in order, and not open to objection on the face of it, publish a Notification of the same at his office, and at some conspicuous place on the estate to which the application relates, and shall invite any party in possession, who may not have joined in the application, and who may object to the partition applied for, to appear before him, either in person or by a duly constituted agent, on a day to be specified in the Notification, not being less than fifteen, or more than thirty days from the date of the Notification, and state his objection. If the application for partition shall not have been made by all the recorded proprietors of the estate, notice of the application shall be served, in the manner usual in the District for serving notices of the Revenue Officers, on such of the recorded proprietors of the estate as shall not have joined in the application.

Notice to proprietors who have not joined therein.

In case of valid objection being made within time allowed, application may be refused.

9. If any objection be made to the partition by any party in possession, within the time allowed, and the Collector, on a consideration of such objection, be of opinion that there is any good and sufficient reason, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, why the partition should be absolutely disallowed, he may refuse the application, recording the grounds of his refusal.

Procedure if question of title, or of proprietary right, be raised.

10. If the objection raise any question of title or of proprietary right, other than a question connected with a boundary dispute, which shall not appear to have been already determined by a Court of competent jurisdiction, the Collector may either decline to grant the application until the question in dispute shall have been determined by a competent Court, or he may call on the objector to give security that he will, within a month from the date of such call, bring a suit in the Civil Court to try the question of title or of proprietary right. The amount of security shall be fixed by the Collector. If no security be given within ten days, or if security having been given no order from the Civil Court to stay the division reaches the Collector by a date not later than forty days from the date of his call for security, he will proceed with the division. Provided that the objector, having failed to bring a suit within the time above allowed for the trial of his grounds of objections, shall be precluded from ever raising the same question again before any Court.

Notification on partition being ordered.

11. When the Collector, after disposing of the objections (if any) taken to the partition, shall order a partition to be made, he shall cause a notification to be published in his own office, in the District Court, at the headquarters of every sub-division within which any lands appertaining to the estate to be divided are situate, and at some conspicuous place on the estate, intimating his intention to proceed with the partition after thirty days from the date of the notification, and calling on all the proprietors of the estate to file, by a certain date, copies of their rent-rolls for the three preceding years. Provided that any two or more of such proprietors may file joint rolls. If any proprietor shall omit to file rent-rolls as above described, he shall be liable to such daily fine as the Collector, upon consideration of the case and of the circumstances in life of such proprietor, may impose until production of said rent-rolls; and such fine shall be deemed to have been imposed under the provisions of Act XX of 1848, (An Act for better enforcing the attendance of proprietors, and farmers of land before Collectors of Land Revenue in the Lower Provinces of the Bengal Presidency.)

Subsequent application for separation of another share.

12. If at any time after the Collector has made an order under the last preceding section, that a partition be made, any sharer in the estate other than the original applicant for partition, shall apply for the separation of his share to be held as a separate estate, the Collector may either order that the proceedings for effecting such separation shall be carried on simultaneously with those for separating the share of the original applicant, or if he consider that such a course would entail delay in the completion of the original proceedings, he may order that the subsequent application shall not be acted on until after the proceedings for the separation of the original applicant's share shall have been completed. In the latter case all or any of the rent rolls, measurements, and other proceedings which were taken in respect of the separation of the original applicant's share, may be adopted, as far as they are applicable, in respect of the separation of the shares as to which subsequent application has been made.

Assessment and levy of costs incurred in making partition.

13. The estimated expense of making the partition, and the allowances of the establishment necessary for the measurement and survey of the lands, for the testing of the measurement and rates, for the preparation of papers, and any other charges, shall be fixed by the Collector. The amount shall be leviable from all the proprietors of the estate in proportion to their share or interest in the same, and shall be paid under such rules as may from time to time be laid down by the Board with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, and, in default of payment, may be realized as arrears of revenue. After the final completion of the partition the Collector shall hold a proceeding declaring what the total expense has been. The account shall then be adjusted either by returning to the proprietors any sums they may have paid in excess, or by levying from them under the provisions above noted, any sums remaining due.

Officer appointed to make partition may order measurement, &c.

14. After the expiration of the period mentioned in the notification referred to in Section ten the Collector may appoint a Deputy Collector to make the partition and to allot the assessment. Such officer shall examine the rent-rolls filed in accordance with the call made under the provisons of Section ten, and may, if necessary, cause a measurement of all lands comprised in the estate to be made, and a rent-roll of the same to be prepared by an Amin in the manner hereinafter provided in the twenty-second and following sections.

15. The Deputy Collector may examine any persons on solemn affirmation in regard to the papers produced before him, whether by the proprietors, the Amin deputed to make the measurement, or otherwise. He shall also allow any shareholder to examine the papers so produced, and to take a copy of the same, and after such examination he shall hear any objections which any of the shareholders may make in respect to such papers, and shall decide whether any and, if any, which of the papers as they stand, or with such modifications as he may think necessary to direct, shall be accepted as correct for the purposes of the partition.

Option of settlement by private agreement. Procedure in case of refusal or default.

16. The Deputy Collector, on the completion of the inquiry allowed by the last preceding Section, shall, on the receipt of a petition to that effect signed by all the shareholders, allow them the option of making a private partition of the estate and allotment of the public Revenue amongst themselves within such time as he may fix, or of referring the partition of the estate, and the apportionment of the public Revenue, to an arbitrator or arbitrators to be appointed by them. The Deputy Collector may also offer the parties the option of referring any point arising in the course of a partition to arbitration. If the parties having elected to make a private partition, shall fail to make such partition within the time fixed by the Deputy Collector, and shall not then apply to refer the partition to arbitrators, the Deputy Collector may allow a further period of time for the completion of the private partition, or may by a proceeding declare the attempt at a private partition to have failed, and make the partition himself. The partition and allotment of the public Revenue made by the parties, or by arbitrators appointed by them, shall be subject to the confirmation of the Collector, and the orders of the superior Revenue Authorities.

If parties cannot agree as to arbitrators, latter may be appointed by Collector

If the arbitrators are equally divided in opinion, the Deputy Collector shall act as umpire, and the partition made by the arbitrator or arbitrators with whom the Deputy Collector shall concur, shall be the partition in the case. The same rule shall apply in respect of any point arising in the course of a partition, which shall be referred to arbitration.

18. If any person, on being appointed an arbitrator, shall refuse to act, or, after accepting the appointment, shall die or become incapable of acting, another person shall be appointed arbitrator in his stead, in the same manner in which the first person was appointed.

Appointment in place of arbitrator refusing, or being unable, to act.

19. After the arbitrators shall have accepted the appointment, the Deputy Collector shall transmit the whole of the papers to them, and it shall be competent to the Deputy Collector to exercise towards the arbitrators the same powers and authority for securing their attendance, and the due completion of their award, which he is competent to exercise towards witnesses summoned before him when acting judicially, for the purpose of compelling them to attend and give evidence. The Deputy Collector shall also fix a time within which the arbitrator or arbitrators shall deliver the paper of partition. On sufficient cause shown, the Deputy Collector may extend such period.

20. The arbitrators shall deliver a full and complete paper of partition, in such form as may be prescribed by the Board for partitions made by the Collector or Deputy Collector.

If the paper of partition be not delivered within the time fixed by the Collector, or within any further period to which the time may have been extended, the Collector may order that the partition shall be referred to another arbitrator or arbitrators, to be chosen in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the first.

In default of award by first arbitrators, partition may be referred to others.

23. If the partition of the estate is not made by the parties themselves, or by arbitration, under the foregoing rules, and if a detailed measurement is deemed necessary, the Deputy Collector shall issue a proclamation at the mal-cutcherry of the estate, or at the mal-cutcherry of each shareholder who may have a separate mal-cutcherry on the estate, and in a conspicuous place in one or more villages appertaining to the estate, requiring the several proprietors of the estate to attend in person, or by agent, upon the Amin deputed to make the measurement during the time that such measurement is being made, and shall transmit to the Amin for his guidance the rent-roll accepted as correct under section fourteen. The Deputy Collector shall, as soon as possible after completion of the Amin's work, test on the spot that officer's measurements and rent-roll, and shall, after such testing, accept or correct or reject altogether one or both. If he reject, he may allow the same Amin to do the work over again, unless the error be one of measurement, in which case the measurement work must be done by another Amin.

Deputy Collector to test Amin's work.

26. When the Collector is finally satisfied that any measurement papers and rent rolls before him are correct, he shall fix a day on which to determine the manner of partition, and shall issue a notification to that effect, calling on all the shareholders to be present Such notification shall be published at the Collector's office, the Deputy Collector's office, at the Head-quarters of every sub-division within which any lands appertaining to the estate under partition are situated, and at some conspicuous place in one or more (if any) of the largest villages on the estate, and, as far as possible, a notice to the same effect shall be served on each proprietor or his agent. The date fixed in such notification shall be not less than fifteen, nor more than thirty days after the order for issue of the notification. It shall be lawful, however, for the Deputy Collector, any time before issue of the notification, if all or a majority of the shareholders are present, to hold a proceeding stating what shareholders are present, and to proceed to make a partition in the manner enjoined in the next section, without issuing any notification.

27. On the day fixed, the Deputy Collector shall consult orally each shareholder present, and shall endeavour as far as possible, with the concurrence of the shareholders, to arrange a mode of partition which shall be in accordance with the requirements of this Act. After hearing what each shareholder present may urge, the Deputy Collector shall hold a proceeding, ordering the partition to be made in the manner he thinks best with regard to the position of the lands to be allotted to each sharer, and shall then make over the papers to the Amin or to some officer of his own or other establishment to have all the details of the allotment, as ordered, carried out.

29. The Collector may refuse to declare any lands held in severalty a separate mehal, if the lands be so intermixed with other properties as to render the formation of a compact estate impossible, and if the parties affected by the partition refuse to agree to the transfers necessary for curing such defect.

Where no lands held in common, lands in severalty may be declared a separate estate.

30. Where there may be no lands held in common, the lands in severalty, held by the applicant for partition, or assigned to him by the Collector under the provisions of this Act, shall be assessed and declared a separate estate. Provided that it shall be in the discretion of the Collector to cause any transfer of lands, agreed to, or directed by his order, as provided in section twenty-seven, to be made previous to such declaration, and the new estate shall be declared subject to the transfer so made.

31. When a recorded proprietor in an estate holds only an undivided share in certain specific portions of an estate, such as a village or mouzah, and applies for a separation of such share, the Deputy Collector shall first ascertain the proportion of the Government revenue of the whole estate payable by the village or villages in which the applicant owns a share, and shall then separate off to the applicant from the lands of those villages, lands representing the share of the Government revenue payable by him. Provided that no specific portion of an estate, such as a village or mouzah, shall be separated from the estate of which it forms a part, except on the application of all the proprietors of such specific portion.

32. Whenever any lands are held in common between the proprietors of two or more estates, one of which is under partition in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Deputy Collector shall first allot to the estate under partition a portion of such common lands, of which the produce is in proportion to the interest which the proprietors of that estate hold in the said common lands; and all the rules prescribed in this Act in respect of the allotment, between the shareholders in an estate, of lands which are held jointly by such shareholders, shall as far as possible apply to the allotment of the proportionate share of such common lands to the estate under partition; and in respect of the service of notices, hearing of objections, and all other procedure in view to such allotment, the registered proprietors of all estates who have an interest in the said common lands shall be deemed to be registered proprietors of the estate under partition.

33. As soon as the proportionate share of the common lands shall have been allotted to the estate under partition as provided in the last preceding section, the lands so allotted shall be dealt with in every respect as if they were held jointly by the proprietors of the estate under partition in proportion to their respective interests in the estate.

Disputed boundary.

34. If at any time before the partition is confirmed a dispute as to boundary shall be found to exist between the estate under division and a neighbouring estate, the Deputy Collector shall inquire into the fact of possession. If possession is, in his opinion, with the neighbouring estate, he shall report the case to the Collector, and the Collector may, either order that the proceedings for partition be quashed, in which case no second application for a partition of such estate shall be accepted until the applicant can show that the dispute has been decided by the Civil Court, or has been amicably settled; or he may order that the proceedings for partition shall proceed, leaving out of consideration the disputed lands. Provided that if at any time after any partition proceedings have been so completed, the disputed lands or any part of them shall be declared, by order of a competent Court, to have appertained to the estate of which the partition has been so completed, such lands shall be held by the sharers in the said estate or their representatives jointly in proportion to the interest which each sharer held in the original estate before its partition, the share of every such shareholder in such lands being deemed to appertain to the separate estate which has been allotted to him, or in which he is a shareholder after the partition.

If in the Deputy Collector's opinion, possession of the disputed lands is with the proprietors of the estate under partition, he shall hold a proceeding stating so and giving his reasons, and shall give notice of his decision to all persons who may claim the title in the disputed lands, requiring them to institute a suit in the Civil Court within six months of the date of the notice to establish their right on the said lands, should they desire to institute such suit, and warning them that no suit for that purpose will be received by any Civil Court after the expiration of the said period. After issue of such notice the Deputy Collector shall proceed with the partition including the disputed lands within such partition; but the partition shall not be confirmed by the Commissioner till after the expiration of six months from the date of the said notice, nor if at any time before such confirmation, proof be given that a suit has been instituted in the Civil Court to try the question of title and right until such suit shall have been decided. Should no such suit be instituted, and the partition be confirmed, it will not be competent to any one afterwards to raise the same question before any court.

Case of proprietor who has created an enduring tenure.

35. If any proprietor of a joint estate brought under division under the provisions of this or any other Act, shall have given his share or a portion of it in patni or other enduring tenure, such lease or tenure shall hold good, mutatis mutandis, as regards the lands finally allotted to the share of the lessor, and only as to them. Thus, if the patni have been for the whole of such proprietor's share in the joint estate, it will hold good for the whole of the lands allotted to such proprietor; if for half, it will give the patnidar the right of half collection over the whole of such lands. Provided that no separation of lands shall be made on the application of any proprietor, who has given a patni or other enduring tenure of all or a portion of his share, as long as such lease is in force, if the leaseholder object.

Sharer failing to attend after proclamation, liable to forfeit right of objection.

36. If any sharer, after the issue of the proclamation or notification mentioned in Sections twenty-two and twenty-five of this Act, shall fail to attend during the time the Amin's or the Collector's measurement or the partition is being made, no objection taken by such sharer to the partition shall be heard, unless such sharer can show that his absence was not wilful, or unless for any good and sufficient reason it shall appear just and proper to allow him to be heard against the partition.

Estates formed in course of partition to be as compact as possible.

37. It shall be the duty of the Collector, so far as circumstances will admit, to arrange that the estates into which the estate under partition is divided shall consist of contiguous lands or villages. Provided that, if the estate ordered to be divided shall not consist of a sufficient number of villages to admit of one or more entire village or villages being included in each estate, the partition of the village or villages of which the estate shall consist shall be made so as to render each estate as compact as possible.

Circumstances to be considered in making partitions.

38. In selecting the villages or lands to be included in each separate estate, the advantages or disadvantages arising from situation; the vicinity of roads, railways, navigable rivers or canals; the nature and quality of the soil and produce; the quantity of culturable and unculturable waste land; the number of tanks and wells; the state of the embankments and water-courses; and any other local circumstances affecting the present or likely to influence the future value of the lands shall be duly considered. So far as may be practicable and consistent with compactness of partition, lands field in severalty shall be left in the possession of the parties holding the same.

Rule when dwelling-house belonging to one sharer is situate on ground to be allotted to another sharer.

39. If a dwelling-house belonging to one sharer shall be situate on any land, or in any village, which it may be necessary to include in the share of another sharer, the proprietor of such house shall be at liberty to retain it, with the offices, buildings, and grounds, immediately attached thereto, upon agreeing to pay to the proprietor of the land or village in which the same is situate an equitable rent for the ground. The limits of the ground and the rent to be paid for it in perpetuity shall be fixed by the Deputy Collector, and shall be stated in the paper of partition. Provided that in every such case a defined pathway shall be secured to the owner of the house, leading from his house to some portion of the lands allotted to him.

Rule as to tanks, wells, water-courses, and embankments.

40. Tanks, wells, water-courses, and embankments, shall be considered as attached to the land for the benefit of which they were originally made. In cases in which, from the extent, situation, or construction of such works, it shall be found necessary to continue them the joint property of the proprietors of two or more of the estates into which the estate may be divided, the paper of partition shall specify, as far as circumstances may admit, the extent to which the proprietors of each of such estates may make use of the same, and the proportion of the charges for repairs to be borne by them respectively.

Rule as to places of worship.

41. Places of worship, which shall have been held in common previous to the partition of an estate, shall continue to be so held, unless the parties shall otherwise agree amongst themselves, in which case they shall state in writing the agreement into which they have entered, and the Deputy Collector shall enter a note of the agreement in the paper of partition.

Revenue to be assessed on each divided estate.

42. The public revenue shall be assessed on each estate into which the property shall be ordered to be divided, in conformity to the rules in that behalf contained in Regulation I of 1793 or any other law for the time being in force.

Particulars to be contained in the paper of partition to be submitted by officer making same.

43. Unless the partition of the estate and the allotment of the revenue shall have been effected by the Collector, when the Deputy Collector shall have completed the partition and allotted the public revenue on each of the estates into which it is proposed that the estate shall be divided, he shall prepare and submit to the Collector a paper of partition showing how he proposes to divide the estate and to apportion the public revenue. This paper shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the Board, and shall be accompanied by a detailed statement of the mode observed and the reasons which influenced in selecting the lands included in each estate, and shall specify the nature of the accounts upon which the apportionment of the public revenue assessed thereon shall have been based. The paper shall further contain a detail of the adjustments, if any, which shall have been made in respect to any tanks, places of worship, or other matters as specified in the preceding sections. The Deputy Collector shall also submit a map or maps showing the several estates into which the estate is proposed to be divided.

Procedure of Collector thereupon.

44. The Collector shall take into consideration the papers as laid before him, and after calling for any further information which he shall deem necessary, and disposing of any objections which shall be taken to the proposed partition and allotment of public revenue, shall adopt the partition as proposed, or return it for amendment to the Deputy Collector who made it, or to another, or shall draw out a fresh paper of partition. It shall also be lawful for the Collector of the district to return for amendment or inquiry the paper of partition as often as he may think fit.

Notice to be given that partition papers as settled by the Collector are open to inspection;

45. When the Collector shall have finally decided upon the mode in which the partition is to be made, he shall draw out a paper of partition in such form as may be prescribed by the Board, and a map corresponding; and in case his partition differs from that made by the Deputy Collector, the Collector shall hold a proceeding stating in detail the objections which may have been urged against the Deputy Collector's partition, and his reasons for altering that partition. He shall also serve a notice upon each sharer, and a general notice as per section twenty-five, to the effect that such paper of partition and such map shall be available for inspection at his office for forty-five clear days (irrespective of holidays) to any sharer or agent of any sharer.

Lots to be drawn for equal shares.

46. When two or more of the estates into which it is proposed to divide the estate under partition shall consist of the same proportions of the entire estate, the Collector, and after him the Commissioner, may direct the parties entitled thereto to draw lots for the same before himself. Similarly, lots may be drawn when the aggregate of two or more shares equals one other share, the division of the two or more shares being made within the aggregate share thus decided by lot.

No further objections to be heard.

47. It shall not be lawful to the Collector, after drawing out the paper of partition as directed in the section last preceding, to take into consideration any objections against such partition or to receive any petition regarding it.

Papers to be forwarded to Commissioner.

48. As soon as practicable after the expiration of the forty-five days mentioned in the last section but one, the Collector shall forward to the Commissioner all the papers relative to the partition made by the Deputy Collector and by himself.

Commissioner may confirm or modify partition, subject to appeal to Board of Revenue.

49. The Commissioner, on receipt of the papers from the Collector, shall fix a day, not being less than thirty clear days from the date of his order, for hearing and disposing of the case; and shall notify the same by a notice to be stuck up in his own office, and that of the Collector who forwarded the papers. On the day fixed, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case (being continued from day to day) may extend, or on any subsequent day to be notified by a notice stuck up in his own office, the Commissioner shall, after hearing and disposing of all objections, either uphold the partition proposed by the Collector, or modify the same, or return the partition to the Collector for any changes he (the Commissioner) may think advisable. In the event of the partition being returned to the Collector, notices shall issue as above, on the Commissioner receiving the papers back again. The Commissioner, before coming to a decision, may call for any additional papers, or direct any further inquiry that he shall consider necessary. The final decision of the Commissioner shall not be open to revision by the Civil Court, but shall be subject to appeal to the Board, if such appeal be made within one month from the date of the Commissioner's order.

Procedure by Collector on receipt of order of Commissioner, or of Board of Revenue on appeal.

50. Forty days after the receipt of the order of the Commissioner, or if an appeal be preferred to the Board, then, on receipt of the order passed on the appeal, the Collector shall cause the same to be published in his office, and in some conspicuous place in each of the estates separately constituted by such order. The Collector shall, at the same time, specify the date from which each of the estates shall be held to be a separate estate, and shall enter the several estates into which the estate has been divided in the Register of estates paying revenue to Government. The Collector shall give the several proprietors possession of the estates allotted to them, and, if necessary, may avail himself of the assistance of the Magistrate in giving possession. He shall also give to each sharer a copy of that part of the paper of partition which relates to his own share.

Partition may be stayed if parties so desire.

Recovery of costs.

51. If, at any time after an order shall have been passed for making a partition, it shall appear that the parties do not wish that the partition should proceed, it shall be competent to the Collector, with the sanction of the Commissioner, to stop the partition, and to strike the case off the file, recovering from the sharers all costs and expenses incurred up to that time.

Partition may be stayed and proceedings quashed by Commissioner.

Decision not open to revision by Civil Court.

52. At any stage of the proceedings after a partition shall have been ordered, if it shall appear from information which was not before the Collector at the time the partition was ordered, or otherwise, that any reason not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act exists, why the partition should not be proceeded with, it shall be competent to the Commissioner, on the report of the Collector, and subject to any orders that the Board may pass in the case, to stay the partition, and to order the proceedings to be quashed. The decision of the Revenue Authorities under this Section shall not be open to revision by the Civil Court.

Government may order new allotment of public revenue among estates formed by partition, in case of fraud or error in original allotment being proved.

53. In order to prevent collusion or error in the distribution of the public revenue assessed upon an estate which may be ordered to be divided into two or more distinct estates, if it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor, within twelve years from and after the date of confirmation of the partition, that the public revenue was fraudulently or erroneously apportioned at the time of the partition, the Lieutenant-Governor shall have power to order a new allotment of the public revenue upon the several estates into which such estate may have been divided, conformably to the principles prescribed in this Act, on an estimate of the gross produce of each estate at the time of the partition, to be made agreeably to the best evidence and information which may be procurable respecting the same. Such order shall not be liable to be contested in the Civil Court. The parties whose estates may be declared to have been under-assessed shall be required to pay to the proprietors of the estates which shall have been over-assessed the sum in which they shall be found to have been over-assessed, and in default of payment, the amount shall be leviable as arrears of revenue.

Consequence to party having interest in any estate, if he neglect to affirm or establish such interest while the estate is under attachment with a view to partition.

54. If, during the time an estate is under partition, any party shall neglect or omit to claim by a suit, any right or title he may then have to the ownership or occupancy, at a fixed rent, of any land situated in such estate, or any other interest therein, such neglect or omission shall be a valid plea in bar of any suit relating to such right, title or interest, unless the party can satisfy the Court that there was good and sufficient reason for his neglect or omission to institute the suit at or before such time. Provided that this section shall not bar any action for arrears of rent, or the enhancement or alteration of rent.

Holder of decree of Civil Court, awarding right to portion of an estate, may apply for partition, and Collector may proceed thereon under Act.

55. Whenever any Court of Civil Judicature shall pass a decree, awarding to any person the proprietary right in a portion of an estate paying revenue to Government, whether the portion so awarded shall consist of a fractional share in the whole, or a part of the estate, or of specific lands, and shall direct the Collector to separate the lands belonging to such share, or to allot to such share proportionate lands from the lands of the entire estate, the Collector shall proceed thereupon under the provisions of this Act, which are hereby declared applicable to such orders of the Civil Court. If the division or separation as ordered by the Civil Court cannot be made in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Collector shall inform the Civil Court

Union in certain cases of severed portions of estates originally undivided.

56. If two or more estates, which originally formed portions of the same estate, shall come into the possession of one person, such person shall be entitled to have such estates united, and to hold them as a single estate; or if two or more persons shall have separate possession of their respective shares of an estate which was originally held as a joint undivided estate, such persons may apply to have their shares united, and to hold them as one estate.

Application for such union how to be made, and how to be dealt with.

57. The applications for the union of the estates, or of the shares of the estate, as the case may be, shall be made in writing to the Collector, and the Collector (provided he see no objection) shall comply with the application, and cause the necessary entries to be made in the records of his office, reporting the case to the superior Revenue Authorities.

Procedure in case of arrears of revenue accruing during course of partition of estate.

58. If an arrear of public revenue shall accrue on an estate ordered to be divided, while the partition of the estate is being made, any one or more of the proprietors may tender to the Collector his or their quota of the balance, and the Collector shall receive the same, and credit the amount to the share or shares of such proprietor or proprietors. If a sale of any part of the estate shall ultimately become necessary for the liquidation of any part of such arrear which may remain due, only the share or shares of the proprietor or proprietors who shall not have contributed their quota of the balance shall be sold in the first instance, and the partition shall go on and be completed in the same manner as if no arrear of public revenue had accrued. The purchaser or purchasers of the share or shares sold shall be entitled to separate possession of the estate or estates which, under the partition, would have been allotted to the defaulting proprietor or proprietors. Provided always that, in all cases of a partition, if the demand of any arrear due shall not have been fully realized by the sale of the shares of such of the shareholders as have not paid their quota, the entire estate shall be considered responsible for the public revenue assessed upon it until the partition shall have been completed and the several proprietors shall have been put into possession of the separate estates into which the estate may be ordered to be divided, according as the same may be allotted to them.

Certain provisions of Act applicable to partition cases pending at the time of its passing.

59 The provisions of this Act, so far as they relate to the completion and confirmation, or to the staying or quashing, of the partition of an estate, may be applied at the discretion of the Collector, in all cases of the partition of estates pending at the time of the passing of this Act, provided that he give due notice in each case that such procedure will be followed.

Provisions of Act may be applied to partition of estates held free from payment of revenue.

60. The provisions of this Act may, in so far as the same are applicable, be applied by order of the Lieutenant-Governor or of the Civil Court to the partition of any estate held free from the payment of Government Revenue, recorded in the Collector's Register of Revenue-free estates.

Powers to be exercised by Collector, or Officer appointed to make partition.

61 In carrying out the provisions of this Act, the Collector shall exercise the powers described in Regulation II, 1819, as modified by Section 5, Regulation IX of 1825;

Sections 11, 12, 14, 19, 21, 23, 24 and 34 of Regulation VII of 1822;

Regulation XIV of 1825, and Act XX of 1848.

Any Deputy Collector appointed to make a partition under this Act may also exercise the powers described in the foregoing Regulations, so far as the same may be applicable.

Powers of Officers exercising jurisdiction under this Act, with regard to false evidence 62 If, in any case in which a Collector or other Officer shall exercise jurisdiction under this Act, any person is guilty of the offence of giving or fabricating false evidence, or of forgery, as defined in the Indian Penal Code, or of abetting any of those offences, such Collector or other Officer shall have the same powers in respect of such offence, and of the person charged with committing the same, as are vested by the Code of Criminal Procedure in a Civil Court, when any such offence is committed before or against such Court, or when a document believed to be a forgery is given in evidence in any proceedings in such Court.

63. In the performance of his duties under this Act, the Collector shall be subject to the general direction and control of the Commissioner of the Division and the Board, and all orders passed by the Collector and the Commissioner respectively shall, unless otherwise specially provided, be open to revision by the Revenue authorities superior to them.

65. The redemption of shares of which the revenue, after partition, would be less than 10 Rupees, shall be allowed upon payment of a sum equal to 25 years' purchase of the revenue.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT has been a general subject of complaint for many years that the procedure laid down by the existing law for effecting the partition of estates is so dilatory, and gives so much opportunity for delaying the completion of partitions by advancing frivolous objections, as to be a serious cause of harassment to those who desire to have partitions carried out.

These defects in the existing law were recognized by the Governor-General of India in Council twelve years ago, and remedied, as far as the North-Western Provinces are concerned, by the passing of Act XIX of 1863, on which the present Bill is principally founded.

The opportunity has been taken to express the intention of the legislature distinctly on certain points which have been the subject of doubt, discussion, and litigation under the existing laws.

In Tirhoot and some other districts in which the greatest use is made of the partition law, estates are being sub-divided into minute properties liable for trifling demands of land revenue. If the process continues, the number of estates from which the revenue must be collected will be so great, and the amount to be realized from each so petty, as materially to enhance the cost of collecting the revenue, if not to endanger its safety. The present Bill therefore provides that no shareholder out of a number who hold an estate subject to joint liability for payment of revenue shall have a right to claim the separation of his share from the rest, and to hold it as a separate estate, if the result of such separation would be to form any separate estate which is liable for an annual amount of revenue less than ten rupees; unless the proprietor of the share, which would bear such revenue shall agree to redeem the revenue for which his share, when separated, will be liable by a payment of twenty-five times the amount of the annual revenue.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In consequence of irrigation works having been opened with great success in the Midnapore district, and the projected extension of such works to other districts, it has been found necessary to introduce a Bill for the purpose of extending the operation of the existing law, as contained in Bengal Acts VIII of 1867 and VI of 1869, which apply only to the irrigation works executed in Orissa.

The opportunity has been taken to repeal these Acts and to re-enact the whole in one Act, with such amendments as experience has shown to be necessary.
